CHARLES P. SKOURAS

NEWS of the death of Charles P. Skouras struck the entire industry as a bombshell of major proportions.

"Tsolly," as he was affectionately called by brothers Spyros and George, had dominated the exhibition scene for so many of his fruitful years that he was truly "Mr. Exhibitor."

From his early days in St. Louis through the depression, through his revivifying and expanding of Fox West Coast, and through his several years as the top salaried executive in the USA, Charlie Skouras' every waking thought and deed was picture business.

Brothers, friends, family, and even his home in the penthouse of his west coast headquarters were so intertwined with pictures, theatres, and theatre operations that they fitted him like a glove, and his influence was felt throughout all facets of his industry.

Here was a man who never forgot a friendly act, a man who worked harder and harder with each new success, a man who surrounded himself with fiercely loyal executives who shared his successes, a man who thought big and made a big impression on the industry, on financiers, and on America as a whole.

His loss creates a void that is equally big.

We are sure we speak for the entire industry when we extend to brothers Spyros and George our heartfelt sympathy.

The confidence, affection, and whole-souled interest in one another's well-being that existed between the brothers was a great example for all.

May it be said of all of us, as it has certainly been said of Charlie Skouras, "He served well the industry he loved!"

INCREASED RUNS AND THE PRINT SHORTAGE

ONE of the more enlightened distributors, while crying quietly over his recent inability to capture 28 prints for a simultaneous day-and-date playoff of an average picture in his territory, blamed recent changes in runs and accelerated availabilities, rather than less prints, for his dilemma.

According to his thinking, a representative distribution center would formerly receive six to eight prints to serve the initial key runs, following which in orderly fashion would come gradually increasing numbers of 14, 21, 28, 35-day and longer clearance situations with the addition of only a few more prints.

In more recent years, as clearances were shortened, the number of 21 and 28-day runs has increased so acutely that no one center can exist on its normal ration.

For purposes of combined advertising punch, and with common availability, more and more theatres want to join in huge day-and-date area showings, but because this situation is common to all neighboring territories at the same time, it is no longer possible to borrow prints. So headaches arise in both exhibition and distribution.

Because more prints, particularly in color, might prove uneconomic, it would seem that the time has come when an expeditor should be added to each company's New York staff.

Such a man could mix territories for an irregular national release spaced a week or two apart rather than on the same date.

Under this arrangement, Atlanta might serve its first-runs two weeks before New Orleans on one picture and two weeks behind it on another, but the territories' second and third-run breaks could then be negotiated through borrowed prints shuttled between the two areas.

NEWSREELS AND THE WORLD PREMIERES

NUMEROUS letters and comments over recent months indicate a rising resentment on the part of theatremen to newsreel coverage of the supposed newsworthy "goosed up" world premiere and its honored guests.

It is pointed out that in this era of TV and picture magazines, the value of newsreels is limited and therefore, every effort should be made to keep their subject matter as dramatic and powerful as possible. It is also pointed out that newsreels cost money and that a theatre is entitled to expect clips that entertain and interest the admission paying public.

And it is noteworthy that, while the world premiere of an expensive show may be tremendously important to the distributor involved, it is only a headache to the contemporary first-run theatreman who isn't going to play that show.

Only partly in shadow now, the total eclipse of newsreels won't be far distant if distributors continue to make use of them to exploit their major wares.

Johnston Spurs Efforts On Arbitration System

NEW YORK—The arbitration outlook looked brighter as the distributors' committee met at the behest of Eric A. Johnston, MPAA president. The meeting led to reports that members of the committee would meet at the TOA convention, currently in progress in Chicago, with representatives of the exhibitor organization, including general counsel Herman M. Levy, to attempt to expedite the evolution of a workable system of solving disputes between exhibition and distribution without resorting to litigation.

Distribution heads of the various companies have been invited to attend the TOA conclave in Chicago, and most were expected to accept Johnston, who leaves for the Far East this week, was said to be anxious to know what was holding up the effort to agree on an arbitration plan.

Present at the meeting with Johnston were Al Schwalberg, Paramount; Al Lichtman and William Gehring, 20th-Fox; Abe Montague, Columbia; Herbert Greenblatt, RKO; Ed Saunders, MGM; Richard Altschuler, Republic; Morey Goldstein, Allied Artists; and J. K. Chapman, United Artists.

SCTOA Joins Fight Against Pay-TV

LOS ANGELES—Southern California Theatre Owners Association, led by Harry C. Arthur, lined up solidly behind the exhibitors' committee fighting subscription television. The organization passed a resolution calling attention to the fact that Kansas Senator Andrew F. Schoepel has suggested that the Federal Trade Commission explore the possibilities of toll TV.

SCTOA expressed the opinion that approval of the new medium would be against the public interest since it would grant a monopoly in the communications field to a favored few. The resolution also pointed out that the public should be entitled to both free entertainment as provided by radio and television and entertainment at an admission price when it desires to pay, to wit, motion pictures.

The west coast group pledged to participate in assembling and distributing information on toll TV so that the government agencies involved and the people can be sure whether or not approval is in the public interest. Copies of the resolution were forwarded to the FCC, President Eisenhower, Senators, Congressmen, and others.

Loew's May Divest One

NEW YORK—It was reported last week that negotiations were being completed whereby Brandt Theatres were to lease Loew's 86th Street. By dropping the house, Loew's will only have three more theatres in the city which it must divest itself of in accordance with government decree. Loew's denied that it was also planning to lease the Avenue B, another Manhattan house, to Brandt.

At a recent meeting in the RKO home office following the announcement that the company will distribute Michael Myerberg Productions' "Hansel and Gretel" were, left to right, seated, Myerberg and Herbert H. Greenblatt, RKO's domestic sales manager. Standing are E. J. Smith, assistant foreign sales manager; Leonard S. Gruenberg, Metropolitan district manager; R. K. Hawkinson, assistant foreign manager; Arthur Gray, Jr., president, Myerberg Productions; and John J. Bergen, Jr., vice-president in charge of industrial and commercial films for Myerberg.

NEW YORK By Mel Konecoff

IF YOU EXHIBITORS will tack on to your present rental price for cartoons the price of one admission ticket, cartoon producer Walter Lantz can turn out longer and possibly better cartoons in the future, he says. Besides, it wouldn't take him as long to get his money back on the subjects thus permitting greater latitude in spending on future subjects, he declared.

KONECOFF

Lantz, who recently returned from a two-month tour of Europe, was optimistic about the future of cartoons and hoped to delve deeper into the matter with the aid of exhibitors who would benefit in the long run.

Over lunch with Lantz and other U-I execs, we discussed his 4,000-mile trip of the continent during which he took in audience reaction to his "Woody Woodpecker" and other subjects, talked to exhibitors, big and small, and witnessed their method of presentation, and he came to the conclusion that there is a healthier respect for cartoons abroad than here.

He related how the subjects in general were appreciated by everyone since there is no nationality bar, and he thought that all cartoon producers were doing a wonderful public relations job. They were also classified as great morale boosters in army camps.

Lantz, celebrating 25 years with U-I, reported that Europeans remember cartoons, stories, settings, etc., long after they have seen the subjects and that exhibitors exploit the subjects in newspaper and other ads, considering them an im-

Technical Problems Said To Have Caused Delay; Shea Managers Told They Must Sell Films

PITTSBURGH—Managers of Shea Enterprises attended a general meeting last week and heard Glenn Norris, 20th-Fox eastern sales manager, report that the flow of prints from the company will increase now that technical problems posed by CinemaScope have been solved. Improvement will be noticeable with the release of "Desiree."

Also addressing the meeting was William C. Gehring, 20th-Fox assistant general manager, who emphasized the importance of an exhibitor establishing an intimate relationship with his customers to the point where he can call them by name. He added that once a picture has reached the theatres the job of selling it to the public must be assumed by the theatre management with every possible means being employed to create public interest in the quality films presently available.

Gerald Shea, circuit president, also told the managers that it was their responsibility to sell films and promote public interest in the new processes. Norris and Al Levy, 20th-Fox Pittsburgh district manager, conducted a forum on what managers can do to aid the advance of CinemaScope.

Martin Wolf, assistant sales manager, Altec, was the main speaker at a sound service clinic. Screenings for the delegates to the meeting included Paramount's "White Christmas," and 20th-Fox's "Black Widow" and "Carmen Jones."

Raymond Smith, head, Shea buying and booking department, told managers that the product situation looked good between now and January, 1955, but added that concentration on selling the better pictures made abroad was necessary.

Bob Wile, executive secretary, Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, advised managers to keep their Senators and Congressmen posted on efforts to impose local ticket taxes.

Gehring presented Shea with a silver tray from circuit managers in tribute to Shea's administration of circuit affairs.

Theatre Birthday Observed

NEW YORK—It was announced last week that to herald the 17th birthday of the Trans-Lux 85th Street, a unique contest has been arranged.

Photographs of old-time motion pictures and old-time film stars are on display in the lobby. Contestants are required to identify these photographs, and winners will be presented with an ocean cruise to Bermuda for two via the Furness Bermuda luxury liner, Queen of Bermuda; a two-week vacation at the Belmont Manor Hotel and Golf Club, courtesy of Simmons Tours; and many other gifts.

Celebrities from stage, screen, and TV have been invited.

Marcus Defends Myers In Regulation Dispute

MILWAUKEE—Ben Marcus, president, National Allied, in a letter sent last fortnight to Harry Brandt, president, Independent Theatre Owners Association, New York, came to the defense of Allied board chairman and general counsel Abram F. Myers, attacked by Brandt following the release by Allied's bill to regulate the industry through the Federal Trade Commission.

Marcus termed "grossly unfair and unjustified, Brandt's statement that Myers was "deliberately fomenting strife in our industry" and did not want peace. The Allied head said that Myers, while not the owner of a single theatre, "has contributed more than any other individual during the past 25 years to the welfare of the independent exhibitor and the industry as a whole."

Marcus added that all Allied leaders had given the bill for regulation careful consideration before approving it after other avenues of approach to distribution failed.

Ohio Censors Challenged

CLEVELAND—Victor Salupo, Group 16 director, said last week that he is prepared to go to court to establish the legality of showing films to subscribers of the 16mm. organization that have not received the Ohio Censor Board seal.

The statement came after a contract to show a series of five non-censored films in Masonic Hall was cancelled on advice of the police chief. Salupo said his case would be based on the alleged unconstitutionality of pre-censorship.

Toll TV Word War Goes On Unabated

CHICAGO—Verbal warfare continued last week in the battle between a newly formed exhibitors' committee against toll TV and proponents of the pay-as-you-see systems. Alfred Starr, TOA, and Truman T. Rembusch, National Allied, committee co-chairmen, charged that subscription television would doom free home television in one station locales. Even in two or three station cities, the exhibitors contend, all channels would be forced into toll TV at choice broadcasting hours through competition, depriving listeners of meager means of all available TV entertainment.

Starr and Rembusch added that attempts by Commander E. F. McDonald, Zenith Radio Corporation president, to compare theatre TV with toll TV could be discounted since theatres do not use the free air waves for televising. Approval of subscription television, exhibitors contend, could concentrate control of communications in a single group, a dangerous situation.

McDonald, in rebuttal, charges that theatremen are simply trying to eliminate a competitor that could, through home box-offices, allow far more persons to see feature films, sporting events, etc., than would be possible through exclusive theatre television. Subscription television, the Zenith president said, is the only solution to the problem of not enough advertising revenue to permit profitable operation of many TV stations.

Three Dimensional Headache

HOLLYWOOD—Arch Oboler, producer of Hollywood's first three dimensional film, "Bwana Devil," filed suit in Superior Court last week for $1,178,484 against Brenco Pictures Corporation, Edward L. Alperson, and Milton H. Bren alleging conspiracy to defraud and "malicious prosecution of a civil action" in connection with a limited partnership controversy involving "Bwana Devil."

Oboler's complaint charges that the action and trial were part of a conspiracy "to extort monies" and "defraud" him. The trial was decided in favor of Oboler, but he claims that he suffered mental and emotional damages amounting to $1,000,000 and could earn no money for a year after the suit was filed because of time spent assisting in the defense. He ask $100,000 for money he would have earned.

Admission Prices Up

WASHINGTON—The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced last week that motion picture theatre admission prices were again on the rise in late August and early September. The cost of living index reported that all recreational and reading costs dropped slightly, but that a large drop in the price of TV sets "was almost offset by higher movie theatre admission prices."

TOA Hears Plea For Single Exhibitor Body

Premieres Assist Broadway Grosses

NEW YORK—Business continued from fair to good in most of the Broadway first-runs last weekend, with several premieres, particularly 20th-Fox's "Carmen Jones," Rivoli, and the same company's "Black Widow," Roxy, getting off to fast starts.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"A STAR IS BORN" (Warners). Paramount claimed the third week would hit $65,000.

"A STAR IS BORN" (Warners). Victoria, playing day-and-date with the Paramount, reported $36,000 for third week.

"BLACK WIDOW" (20th-Fox). Roxy opened to $46,600 from Wednesday through Sunday, with $61,500 in sight for the first week.

"WHITE CHRISTMAS" (Paramount). Radio City Music Hall, with stage show, claimed $100,000 for Thursday through Sunday, with the third week bound to top $167,000.

"SABRINA" (Paramount). Criterion anticipated the sixth week at $25,000.

"CARMEN JONES" (20th-Fox). Rivoli reported $30,706 for Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, with the opening week sure to exceed $60,000.

"THE BLACK KNIGHT" (Columbia). Globe was heading toward a $15,000 opening week.

"SUDDENLY" (UA). Mayfair hit $15,000 on the fourth week.

"ON THE WATERFRONT" (Columbia). Astor held steady at $24,000 on the 14th week.

"BAREFOOT CONTESSA" (UA). Capitol expected fifth week to tally $29,000.

"BEAU BRUMMELL" (MGM). Loew's State was heading toward a $20,000 second week.

Levy, Schimel Discuss Arbitration

NEW YORK—Herman M. Levy and Adolph Schimel met last fortnight at the TOA offices for the purpose of discussing and analyzing the preliminary draft of the industry system of arbitration.

Levy is acting as counsel to the exhibition section of the drafting committee and Schimel as counsel to the distribution section. A series of meetings between Levy and Schimel was scheduled to take place after the TOA convention in Chicago.

Claughton Suit A Mistrial

MIAMI, FLA.—After eight hours of deliberation and six weeks of testimony, the Claughton suit against six film companies for $9,450,000 trebled damages was declared a mistrial in Federal Judge George W. Whitehurst's court last week. The jury brought in a verdict of 11 for the defense and one for the plaintiff. Any future court action will necessitate a complete retrial.

Lillian Claughton, circuit officer, immediately filed a petition before senior Federal Judge John Holland seeking a retrial.

Industry Pays Final Respects At Charles Skouras Funeral

HOLLYWOOD—More than 4,000 persons paid their final respects last week to Charles P. Skouras at funeral services in St. Sophia Greek Orthodox Cathedral, built largely through Skouras' efforts at a cost of $2,000,000.

In addition to industry personnel representing production, distribution, and exhibition, state, county, and city officials were among the throng crowding the cathedral and outside area and listening via a public address system to the eulogy read in Greek by Archbishop Athenagoras and spoken in English by Dean Leonidas C. Contos. Following the ceremonies, those unable to gain admittance to the church previously filed past the casket.

Burial took place in the Skouras-built mausoleum adjoining the cathedral.

Admission Receipts Decline

WASHINGTON—Figures made available last week by the Department of Commerce indicate that Americans in 1953 spent $32,000,000 less on theatre admissions than in the previous year. The report stated that in 1952 Americans spent $1,284,000,000 at motion picture boxoffices, with the figure dropping in 1953 to $1,252,000,000.

The department gave no reason for the decline, and it was noted that admissions to legitimate theatres, operas, and entertainment features by non-profit organizations rose from $181,000,000 to $185,000,000. Expenditures for other types of recreation rose correspondingly.

Buena Vista Names Two

NEW YORK—Leo F. Samuels, Buena Vista general sales manager, announced last week that Herb Schaefer has been appointed district manager for the New Haven, Buffalo, and Albany exchange areas, with headquarters in Boston. Leo Greenfield was appointed mid-central district manager, headquartering in Cleveland and handling the Detroit and Cincinnati branch areas.

Industry leaders and national personalities joined last fortnight in mourning the death of Charles E. Skouras, well-known philanthropist and president, National Theatres, who succumbed in a west coast hospital of heart attack.

Pat McGee Seeks Merger; Decries Leadership Lack, Product And Print Shortage; Asks For Arbitration

CHICAGO—Pat McGee, general manager, Cooper Foundation Theatres, and the TOA vice-president, who was instrumental in the tax repeal effort, in his keynote speech scheduled to kick off the TOA convention at Conrad Hilton Hotel this week in conjunction with the TESMA-TEDA-TOA-IPA trade show, called for a unification of all exhibitor organizations into "a single theatre group, in which no one will lose his identity," and urged the appointment of an action committee by the organization, with a single executive empowered to explore methods of financing increased production and more efficient distribution methods. McGee asserted, "... the reasons for the separation between Allied and TOA have long since disappeared ..."

The most important problem facing the industry, McGee added, "is the very basic need for our theatres to have sufficient pictures to provide the change of diet necessary for our patrons and the necessary prints to make this possible." He decried the industry's lack of "leadership or statesmanship in the true sense of the word" and the fact that people in all branches were working for their own interests with little concern for the problems of others. McGee did credit 20th-Fox and Spyros Skouras for the introduction of CinemaScope and MGM's Dore Schary and Herman Hoffman for assistance during the tax effort.

He pointed out that there was a continuing decline in film attendance which, coupled with fewer films and increased rental terms, threatened the existence of thousands of theatres despite the gains brought by tax relief. While a few big pictures do exceptionally well in a few big theatres, McGee emphasized that the benefits of such a policy could not reach 80 per cent of the theatres in the nation. High film rentals, runs that are too lengthy, and print shortages, he said, threaten to force the closing of 5-8,000 theatres.

McGee emphasized the economic, social, and political value of small town and suburban houses. He also pointed out that while a smash picture can recover its investment in larger situations, the widest possible playing time is needed to rescue run-of-the-mill product from loss. The loss of a third of the nation's theatres, he maintained, would mean that the industry, as presently constituted, could not survive.

Present conditions, McGee warned, create the danger that increasing admissions will cause exhibitors to over-price themselves right out of business. The profit margins of 80 per cent of the country's houses, he said, are such that the properties can not be maintained if distributors continue to demand 40 and 50 per cent rentals without question.

McGee added, "Exhibitors going out of business naturally look desperately for

Manitoba Exhibitors Seek Tax Reduction

TORONTO—A mass rally at the Manitoba Legislature Buildings in Winnipeg was held on Nov. 1 by the Manitoba Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, which is seeking to press for tax relief.

In a letter from the committee organizing the mass rally, Ben Sommers said exhibitors are on the verge of bankruptcy because of the local recession caused by crop conditions and TV. The only salvation for exhibitors at this time, he said, was the retention by exhibitors of the weekly tax remittances.

"This would be enough to make the difference between profit and loss, a needed improvement in financial position," if the exhibitors will co-operate "in the most important rallies in the history of our business," said Sommers.

The exhibitors will press for the elimination of the amusement tax on all tickets priced at 50 cents and under. Sommers, owner, State, Winnipeg, will lead the delegation and act as its spokesman after a meeting at the Marlborough Hotel, Winnipeg. In connection with the meeting of the association, a trade screening of "White Christmas" was held.

At a special dinner in Toronto, 26 Ontario employees of Famous Players were inducted into the 25-Year-Club. Old and new members of the club were praised by a group of company executives and after induction by R. W. Bolstad, vice-president, John J. Fitzgibbons, president, presented each with diamond-studded memberships. Speakers included Bolstad; Norman Robertson, company counsel; Morris Stein, eastern division general manager; and Leonard Bishop, manager, Shea's, Toronto. Those inducted from Toronto were Charles H. Aitcheson, Lorne E. Arnold, William Ayers, Leonard Bishop, Augustine Castrucci, Lorne R. Duck, Mrs. Violet C. M. Glynn, Arthur R. Gunn, John F. Hyland, Alfred E. Jackson, Vera Elizabeth St. Edward, William E. Shields, and Raymond C. Shortt.

Snarling Sinatra and flash lettering made an effective display recently for the London premiere of United Artists' "Suddenly," Pavilion. The line-up of prospective ticket buyers underscores the sock British opening of the thriller.

Others were A. DeSalliers and David Smith, Windsor; William J. Langmuir, St. Catharines; William B. Lovell, Niagara Falls; Thomas H. McClelland, Brantford; Clarence H. Perry, Sudbury; Harold L. Preston, St. Thomas; Gordon E. Ringel, Preston; Nicholas Rizzo, Hamilton; Helena Maude Simpson, Guelph; and Mrs. Ethel Thompson, London.

Canadian Comment

Four wall houses and drive-ins were unharmed by Hurricane Hazel, although some of the ozoners had to close on the night of the storm, resuming business the next night. During and after the storm, despite difficult conditions, Mavety Film Delivery provided service. It undertook the delivery by roundabout routes of films that would ordinarily be shipped by train, as well as those the company's trucks usually carry. The Motion Picture Theatres Association of Ontario has offered to aid flood relief in any way requested, including special shows and audience collections. Emergency relief was organized immediately and further help is being developed. A special Sunday evening benefit show was held at 18 Allied Theatres units in Toronto with all proceeds to the fund. Distributors provided the films and the staffs gave their services gratis. Elaine Stewart, one of the stars of "Brigadoon," in Toronto to help launch the film at Loews, aided the fund in an appearance as mistress of ceremonies in the opening of Yonge Street. She made other appearances which contributed to the growth of the Hurricane Relief Fund which has a $10,000,000 objective. The flood took many lives in areas over-run by the swollen waters of the Don and Humber rivers, but did little damage to motion picture property.

The manner in which newspapers and TV play footsie was the subject of criticism by the meeting of the Maritime Motion Picture Exhibitors Association gathered in Saint John, N.B. The exhibits were highly critical of the manner in which the daily journals give front-page publicity to TV openings while denying the same location to film news. The meeting also went on record to oppose road-show pictures, designated playing time, and advanced prices, and the unequal provincial amusement tax, which the MMPEA suggests should be rearranged as a straight 10 per cent. An honorary life membership was bestowed on P. J. Dwyer, who for the past eight years was the association's president-treasurer and recently retired from the industry to enter another business field. A. J. Mason was reelected president. Vice-presidents are F. Gordon Spencer, Saint John, N. B.; F. M. Gregor, New Waterford, N.S.; and B. Yeo, Montague, PEI. Secretary is G. A. Walters, Charlottetown, PEI, and treasurer is W. G. Fenety, Fredericton, N.B. The directors are J. McDonough, L. Sprague, M. Franklin, A. A. Fielding, and R. Pope.

Nine members were elected to act as the directors of a new Quebec exhibitors association, L'Association des Propriétaires de la Province de Quebec, Inc., which was formed in Montreal recently. The organization, which has an office at the Montrose, Montreal, is said to have 50 members.

Bob Harvey is winner of the annual Showmanship Contest of the Canadian Moving Picture Digest. The manager of the Capitol, North Bay, picks up a $75 cash prize. Second prize-winner, Nicky Langston, Odeon, Capitol Hamilton, got $50, while third prize of $25 went to John McKim of the Odeon, Ladysmith, B.C. Jacques Martin, Odeon Mercier, Montreal, won a $25 prize for the best individual example of showmanship not related directly to a motion picture.

St. Louis "Mutiny" Showing Challenged

ST. LOUIS—The St. Louis Amusement Company, a Fanchon and Marco affiliate, filed suit last week in United States District Court seeking to restrain Columbia, Loew's, Inc., and Loew's Dayton Theatre Company from exhibiting "The Caine Mutiny" at Loew's State at the advanced admission rate of $1.

The anti-trust action charges the three defendants with a conspiracy to violate anti-trust acts and provisions of the consent decree with respect to fixing admission prices. The petition seeks an immediate temporary injunction pending a hearing on a permanent restraining order and also $7,000 actual damages or a total of $21,000 trebled.

The plaintiff stated that it has been exhibiting Columbia product for about 10 years and that under a rotating plan it has been dividing such pictures with Loew's, Inc. Under this arrangement it was entitled to exhibit "The Caine Mutiny." However, it charges the plaintiff received an inquiry from Columbia as to whether it planned to increase prices for admissions and gave a negative reply. Columbia then demanded a percentage of gross that was so exorbitant that plaintiff could not accept it. Therefore, it is charged, an arrangement was made by Columbia to give the picture to Loew's State with the provision that the adult admission rate would be raised from 75 cents to $1.

20th-Fox Limits Shorts

NEW YORK—A program of 26 Terrytoons, all in color and suitable for standard, wide screen, and projection through CinemaScope's anamorphic lens, will be released by 20th-Fox during 1955, Lem Jones, short subjects sales manager, announced last week.

Of the 26 subjects, 13 will be new and 13 reissued Terrytoon Toppers. The first 10 Terrytoons to be placed in exhibition next year are "Gandy Goose In Barnyard Actor," "A Yokohama Yankee," "Terry Bears In Duck Fever," "Aesops Fable—The First Flying Fish," "Little Roquefort In No Sleep For Percy," and Terrytoon Toppers "Dear Old Switzerland," "Swooning The Swooners," "Gandy Goose In It's All In The Stars," "The Two-Headed Giant," and "Smoky."

Joining the 26 CinemaScope short subjects previously announced for release in 1955, the overall shorts program totals 52 attractions. In addition, editions of Movietone Newsreels will be issued twice weekly next year.

Swanson Heads UPA Sales

BURBANK, CAL.—Fred W. Swanson was appointed last week to head the sales department of UPA's studio, it was announced last week by Stephen Bosustow, president of the animated cartoon organization. Swanson will be in charge of character merchandising as well as acting as company sales representative in the TV spot, educational and industrial film fields. He was vice-president, Russel M. Seeds ad agency, before joining UPA's staff.

Walter Lantz, celebrating his 25th year of releasing his cartoons through U-I, was feted recently at a trade press luncheon-interview in New York. Seen, left to right, are Henry A. Linet, eastern sales promotion manager; Irving Sochin, short subjects manager; Lantz; Budd Rogers, Lantz's sales representative; and Philip Gerard, eastern publicity manager for the firm.

GPEC Reports Rise In Earnings, Profit

NEW YORK—Hermann G. Place, president, General Precision Equipment Corporation, reported last week that consolidated sales and net earnings for the first three-quarters of 1954 increased over 1953's similar period.

Consolidated net sales for the three months ended Sept. 30 were $31,141,460, a rise of 45 per cent over 1953's $21,391,405. Net profit after adjustment for minority interest was $1,060,987, or 30 per cent more than 1953. After deducting stock dividends, the profit was equivalent to $1.15 per share of outstanding common stock compared to $1.24 per share at the end of the third quarter in 1953.

For the nine months ended on Sept. 30, consolidated net sales were $85,446,656 compared with $62,493,972 for the same period in 1953. Net profit was $3,602,640, equivalent to $4.44 per outstanding common share, as compared to $3.46 per share for the comparable nine months of 1953.

Place also announced the election of Edwin A. Link, Jr., chairman, Link Aviation, Inc., as a director of General Precision Equipment.

About People

NEW YORK—John H. Harris, Pittsburgh, national campaign chairman, amusements division, 1954-55 drive of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, in annual observance of Brotherhood Week, will be formally presented to the trade at the first luncheon meeting of the division on Nov. 9 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Harris will discuss plans for the forthcoming drive and will hold a press conference following the luncheon. The luncheon program also will include the presentation of a plaque to Emanuel Frisch by the National Conference in tribute for his services in last year's drive. J. Robert Rubin is general chairman, amusements division, for the NCCJ 1954-55 effort.

NEW YORK—Fanshawe Lindsley has been appointed general sales manager of TNT Tele-Sessions, business and industrial division of Theatre Network Television, Inc., it was announced last week by Nathan L. Halpern, president. For the past 13 years, he has been associated with Time, Inc., as an advertising executive on Fortune Magazine. Lindsley will institute an intensive sales and promotion program to acquaint agencies and corporations with TNT activities and the benefits of theatre TV.

NEW YORK—Don Hartman, Paramount executive producer, has been elected to the board of the Southern California Society for Mental Hygiene, it was announced last week by Miss Beatrice L. Kotas, assistant director. Hartman has for some time been affiliated with the aims of the Society, a non-profit citizens organization endorsed by the Los Angeles County Mental Association to promote mental health in the community through public education.

NEW YORK—Al Cohan has been named national magazine contact in U-I's eastern advertising and publicity department to work under Philip Gerard, eastern publicity manager, replacing Lowell Benedict, who has resigned, it was announced last week by Charles Simonelli, eastern advertising and publicity department manager.

NEW YORK—It was announced last week by Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus, president and general manager, Technicolor Motion Picture Corporation, that Dr. Maurice Nelles will join the company in a newly created position of director of diversification and research development. Dr. Nelles comes to Technicolor from Borg-Warner Corporation.

NEW YORK—John Scuoppo has joined the United Artists' publicity department, it was announced last week by Francis M. Winikus, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation. Scuoppo, previously associated with Columbia and Eagle-Lion, will contact New York newspapers, syndicates, radio, and television.

NEW YORK—Sidney C. Bell, head of the contract department, National Screen Service, is transferring his activities to the NSS Hollywood Studios, where he will represent the company in television film commercial sales, it was announced last week by Herman Robbins, president.

UA Benjamin Drive Sets Billings Record

NEW YORK—The first six-week lap of United Artists' Robert S. Benjamin Drive has racked up the highest weekly average billings ever recorded by the company in a sustained period, it was announced last week by co-captain B. G. Kranze, general sales manager.

The salute to UA's board chairman, which has established itself as the most successful sales effort in the company's history, has compiled billings averaging more than $744,000 a week for the six-week period, with totals for the sixth week alone exceeding $1,000,000.

The drive, which will award $50,000 in prizes to the winners among United Artists' 32 competing branches, supports the "blockbuster-a-month" releasing program announced recently by President Arthur B. Krim.

The salute to Benjamin, which is being led by co-captains William J. Heineman, vice-president in charge of distribution, and Kranze, is divided into four laps, Sept. 5 to Oct. 16; Oct. 17 to Nov. 27; Nov. 28 to Jan. 1; and the "home stretch," Jan. 2 to March 5.

The 32 UA branches in the United States and Canada are competing in three groups of equal grossing potential. Cash prizes will be awarded to the winning exchanges in each group at the end of each lap and again at the completion of the drive.

Associated British Expands

HOLLYWOOD—Associated British-Pathe is on the threshold of wide expansion in its distribution and production operations, it was disclosed last fortnight by MacGregor Scott, general sales manager, whose company has a joint distribution and production deal with Allied Artists.

Scott held conferences with Steve Broidy, Allied Artists president; Harold Mirisch and G. Ralph Branton, vice-presidents; and Walter Mirisch, executive producer. Scott also revealed plans to engage a publicity representative in New York who will coordinate his work with John C. Flinn, AA director of advertising and publicity.

In the season just past, Scott said, Allied Artists films in the United Kingdom have found increased favor. He predicted even greater revenues during the 1954-55 season as a result of the company's upgrading of product.

New Releasing Company Formed

HOLLYWOOD—Upon their return last week from a visit to 28 exchange centers, James H. Nicholson, veteran Los Angeles exhibitor, and Roger Corman, producer, Palo Alto Productions, announced the formation of American Releasing Corporation, of which Nicholson is president and general sales manager, to handle Palo Alto releases through independent exchanges.

ARC, through its agencies, plans to release for Palo Alto four films in 1955, the first of which is "The Fast And The Furious," starring John Ireland and Dorothy Malone.

Other ARC officers are Samuel Z. Arkoff, vice-president and counsel, and Joseph Moritz, treasurer.

Goldman, Zimmerman, and Snyder Form Production, Distribution Unit

Canadian Release Set For Disney Features

NEW YORK—Roy O. Disney, president, Walt Disney Productions, announced last week a deal with Empire-Universal Films for the distribution in Canada of three of the Disney studio's feature productions, "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea," "The Vanishing Prairie," and "The Littlest Outlaw."

The deal was negotiated by Leo F. Samuels, president, Buena Vista, and Empire-Universal executives Paul L. Nathanson and Alfred Perry.

The deal is unprecedented for Disney in the western hemisphere and follows the company's policy of releasing its product in the foreign field only through the most important distribution organizations. In the United States the pictures will be distributed by Buena Vista and in the United Kingdom by the Buena Vista subsidiary, Walt Disney Film Distributors.

Pioneers Expect Record Crowd

NEW YORK—Reservations coming in at a record clip for the 16th Annual Showmanship Dinner of the Motion Picture Pioneers honoring Si Fabian as "Pioneer of the Year" on the occasion of his 40th anniversary in the industry, give evidence that this dinner on Nov. 17 at the Sheraton Astor Hotel will be the biggest in the history of the organization, it was announced last week.

The announcement by Herman Robbins, general chairman, that there will be no speeches has been well received on all sides and the news of the outstanding entertainment has spurred interest in the dinner. In addition, a record number of new memberships has been received.

Boomer Leaves TESMA Post

HOLLYWOOD—Roy Boomer resigned last week as secretary-treasurer, Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers Association because of ill health. He has held the position for eight years. Boomer has been connected with the industry as an exchange manager and theatre executive since 1922.

Edmund J. Baumgarten was recently named president, Lippert Pictures, by Robert L. Lippert, who will remain in an advisory capacity and supervise picture sales. Sales heads will be named.

NEW YORK—A trio of American motion picture executives, who have for years figured prominently in three different phases of the film industry, have joined forces in the formation of a new enterprise called William Films, Inc., it was announced last week. William Goldman, William Zimmerman, and William L. Snyder are the founders of the new organization engaged in acquiring films from abroad for specialized exhibition in the United States theatrical market and in the production of television films for children.

The new company marks the first venture into the foreign motion picture field for William Goldman, prominent Philadelphia exhibitor, who recently began to expand his motion picture interests. Goldman made his initial entry into the film production field and formed with Paul Gregory the motion picture and legitimate play company called Gregory-Goldman Enterprises, Inc. William Zimmerman, former RKO vice-president and general counsel, is also active in this company as a director and vice-president.

William L. Snyder, an independent importer of specialized films for a number of years, has put "The Emperor's Nightingale" and "White Mane" into distribution during the past few years and has provided a number of films for specialized television programs. He will be responsible for the acquisition of new product and its preparation for the American market. Zimmerman will act in a general advisory capacity and supervise distribution.

Columbia's Ruby Dies

CLEVELAND—Oscar Ruby, 57, for approximately 20 years Columbia branch manager in Milwaukee, and for the past 10 years here, died last week in University Hospital. Funeral services were held in Temple Memorial Home with burial in Youngstown, O. He is survived by his wife, a son, a grandchild, and his parents.

"Bread" Set For Holiday

NEW YORK—Holiday playing-time engagements in 16 key cities have been set for Gina Lollobrigida's comedy, "Bread, Love And Dreams," it was announced last week by Bernard Jacon, IFE vice-president in charge of sales.

Schumann Suit Dismissed

NEW YORK—State Supreme Court Justice William Hecht last week dismissed the damage action brought by the heirs of the late composer Robert Schumann in connection with MGM's 1947 production, "Song Of Love." More than $5,000,000 in damages had been sought.

Fox Wisconsin Joins Makelim

HOLLYWOOD—John Wolfberg, vice-president, Makelim Productions, announced last week that Fox Wisconsin Theatres had joined the circuits that have contracted to play product to be made under the Makelim plan.

portant part of the program and not filler. They give the cartoons billing in programs and use display stills in lobbies, etc.

Lantz bewailed the fact that he can't make his cartoons longer due to the high cost of production. At present, subjects cost anywhere from $30,000 to $50,000. He cited one example of increased production costs, animator salaries, which back in 1941 averaged $80 weekly. Today, the same job has a minimum of $147. Exhibitors have been paying practically the same price for his cartoon subjects, he said.

Lantz thought that unless the exhibitor sees fit to increase rentals, lengths of cartoons may well be reduced. He plans to deliver 13 subjects this year and his studio is working on a new character, a penguin, "Chilly Willy." He is not turning out any subjects specifically for CinemaScope use.

Presently, it takes four years to get the cartoon negative cost back before a profit is realized, but he admits assistance by fees from licensees such as manufacturers of toys, books, clothes, etc., which amounts to about 30 per cent of the overall cost. Lantz will not release any of his shorts, to television nor will he make any for that medium, primarily because it's not profitable, he said.

It takes 60 people at his studio four weeks working 40 hours weekly to turn out one cartoon. Lantz reported his cartoons receive about 15,000 playdates. Were each theatre willing to up the rental price by 50 cents, the cost problem would take quite a licking. Lantz believed that if shorts were better merchandised in theatres, business would increase, reminding that there is a huge comic book readership just waiting for the proper exploitation.

Incidentally, five years after his cartoons are first released, they are then put out in 8mm. and 16mm. for home and organizational consumption, but even this market has dropped about 75 per cent because of the advent of television.

TRIBUTE: More than 250 industry executives gathered at the Hotel Astor to pledge renewal of the fight against bigotry and pay tribute to the trade press for "distinguished services in behalf of human rights" at a luncheon sponsored by the Joint Defense Appeal.

William J. German, chairman, amusements division, who accepted the post for the second year, outlined the work and purpose of the JDA and urged all industryites to support it. Paul Lazarus, Jr., luncheon chairman, reminded his audience that the industry is freer of bigotry than any other and took the opportunity to praise the industry press.

Kim Novak, Columbia starlet, presented inscribed medallions to each of the papers, including MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, which was accepted by Paul J. Greenhalgh, general manager, in the absence of publisher Jay Emanuel. Principal speaker was Henry Edward Schultz, national chairman, Anti-Defamation League, who described the activities of the JDA agencies.

Others aboard the dais were Sam Rinzler, Emanuel Frisch, John J. O'Connor, Charles Boasberg, Ed Fabian, Sol A. Schwartz, John Balaban, Sam Rosen, Leon Goldberg, Louis Phillips, Arthur Krim, Bob Benjamin, Russell Downing, Douglas Yates, Burton Robbins, Martin Levine, Saul Jaffe, Mrs. Marj Lewis, Martin Quigley, Jr., Roger Littleford, Greenhalgh, Sumner Smith, Mort Sunshine, Charles Alicoate, Sherwin Kane, Marvin Kirsch, and Leonard Coulter.

REGRETS: The other day amongst our mail was a note from Charles P. Skouras, which reached us about the same time the papers announced his demise due to a heart attack. It was a double shock. We were sorry to hear of his passing and extend our regrets to his family and to his brothers, Spyros and George. Their loss must be a great one. The industry has lost a capable executive, a friend, a philanthropist, and a man with a sense of humour.

MORE ON HORIZONTAL PROJECTION: An impartial observer who witnessed the horizontal projection of Paramount's VistaVision film "White Christmas" at the Radio City Music Hall told us that projectionists may not be too happy working with these machines. He found that the noise of the film going through the machines at twice the normal speed resembled a machine gun in action; that the film was running from bottom reel to top reel instead of reversely as is customary; that the threading was complicated; that big 5,000-foot reels had to be used; that because of the length of the footage on each reel, the rewind time was increased considerably especially as careful inspection is in order and the result has been that a number of prints have had to be assigned the house to make sure that a print is always available for each showing; that overtime was given the men so that rewinding and other attendant chores could be properly attended; that portholes have been covered by burlap to prevent the projection noises from infiltrating the theatre; and that the horizontal projector has been coupled to a regulation projector, with the latter running only the sound track and the former the picture with both machines synchronized. The latter condition is a temporary one until Paramount can arrange to put the sound track on the horizontal prints.

Columbia Sells Old Shorts, Westerns To Television

NEW YORK—Columbia has closed a deal to dispose of some of its out-of-date cartoon and western properties, it was disclosed last week. The announcement was made jointly by the distributing company and Hygo Corporation, television film sales agency.

In explaining the arrangement, Jack Cohn, executive vice-president, said, "This in no way alters our company's policy of not releasing our features for television showing. The cartoons and Westerns which we have just disposed of have long since outlived their theatrical value. They have no further potential for reissues."

The deal provides for the turning over by Columbia to Hygo of the rights to a number of cartoon series on which theatrical distribution rights have expired, as well as a group of western films dating back 15 years or more and including films starring Bill Elliot and Russell Hayden.

Exterior Ad Code Rejected By Exhibs

NEW YORK—City exhibitors, License Commissioner Edward T. McCaffrey, religious, civic, and business leaders last week rejected a voluntary code for exterior advertising as a dangerous form of censorship.

At a meeting in the License Commissioner's office, a pledge was received from two Times Square area theatres brought in on "indecent and immoral" complaints for cooperation in self-regulation of lobby displays and marquees. Exhibitors attending the meeting rejected any exterior advertising code, pointing out that censorship was not necessary since self-regulation of advertising exists. It was reported that McCaffrey stated that he had never had any intention of imposing a code, but rather wanted to suggest some method of self-regulation. Representing the industry at the meeting were Martin Levine, Max A. Cohen, Harold Klein, Herman Schwartz, and Morton Sunshine.

Irving Wormser, who ends a 24-year association with Columbia's executive sales staff, has joined Distributors Corporation of America as vice-president and general sales manager recently.

MGM Sets Further Workshop Sessions

NEW YORK—Two more Ticket Selling Workshops have been scheduled by MGM, making a total of five so far, the latest two to be held in March and May of 1955, according to vice-presidents Charles M. Reagan and Howard Dietz, who are sponsoring the gathering for ideas and expressions for improving box office business in the industry.

The new dates are March 1, Columbus, O., in cooperation with the Allied of Ohio unit, and May 10, Billings, Mont., at the request of the Montana Theatre Owners Association, whose directors recently passed a resolution to that effect at its Missoula convention.

Mike Simons, in charge of customer relations for MGM, will conduct the newly scheduled sessions as well as the other three previously listed. Also attending the three meetings from the home office will be Emery Austin, in charge of exploitation under Dietz. A number of panelists will be selected for each session to cover as wide a field bearing on promotion and coordinated activities as possible.

The "kick-off" Workshop session was held last week at the William Penn Hotel in Pittsburgh, where various independent and circuit theatre groups were on hand, as well as a number of important exhibitor leaders. The second and third Workshops will be held on Nov. 16 in Indianapolis and Dec. 6 in Boston.

RKO Theatres Head Sued

NEW YORK—Broker's representative Harry Kuffler filed suit last week in New York Federal Court against Albert A. List, chairman of the board, RKO Theatres, for $89,350, for alleged services rendered in connection with acquisition of 930,000 shares of RKO Theatres stock.

The suit claims that in 1953, he and his firm suggested to List that he acquire a block of stock of RKO Theatres, then controlled by Howard Hughes. Kuffler claims that List requested him to arrange a meeting with representatives of Hughes with a view to negotiations for the stock. Relying upon List's alleged agreement to pay a broker fee for services rendered, the plaintiff introduced David J. Greene to List. It was through Greene, Kuffler claims, that negotiations were started which resulted in the sale.

for relief—even to the government. This, we of TOA do not believe to be a good answer."

The print shortage, the veteran exhibitor said, created a situation of impossibly high terms for sub-run exhibition of top films, causing over-bidding and loss without adjustment. He saw a workable arbitration system as a necessity since "too many exhibitors complain that they have no place to air their grievances." The constant name-calling and bitterness "never cured anything," according to McGee.

He also called for a giant engineering research and analysis under neutral direction, such as COMPO, to eliminate waste. "Our entire machinery is outmoded and archaic," he said, with "an appalling amount of waste in distribution and some . . . in production." An arbitrary sales policy in all areas "is not right," McGee said, since it is bearable only in certain situations.

Solutions to problems created by a seller's market, McGee pointed out, lie in encouraging increased independent production and foreign production to satisfy American tastes, and a distribution channel more sympathetic to exhibitor product needs during the lean months of April and May, November, and December. He encouraged support of such production efforts as Distributor Corporation of America, headed by Fred Schwartz; William Goldman's new production-distribution organization; Filmmakers; Makelim; and others.

Committee chairmen delivered reports to the convention, including LaMar Sarra and Robert E. Bryant, state and local legislation; Myron N. Blank, research; Jack D. Braunagel and William T. Powell, drive-ins; S. H. Fabian and Mitchell Wolfson, theatre television and the dangers of toll TV; Joseph J. Zaro, Lucian E. Pope, and Edwin Gage, theatre equipment and accessories; H. F. Kincey, film reviewing; E. D. Martin, reduction of fire insurance rates through the exclusive use of acetate film; and Sam Pinanski, COMPO.

Another feature of the convention's opening session was an MGM demonstration of Perspecta stereophonic sound, adopted by MGM, Warners, and Paramount, at the State Lake, along with the showing of current and future product from Columbia, 20th-Fox, and Allied Artists.

TOA also announced the adoption of a plan to award a plaque to "The Star of the Year," with the first recipient being Danny Kaye, set to receive his award at the President's Dinner tomorrow (Nov. 4).

UA Settles Suit

NEW YORK—United Artists entered in a stipulation last week settling the suit for $370,500 against it brought by Arnold Productions, Inc. The settlement came shortly before trial before State Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg. The action involved distribution of the Arnold Pressburger films, "It Happened Tomorrow," "Hangmen Also Die," and "Scandal In Paris." The plaintiff sought funds gained through foreign distribution of the features.

The Tip-Off On Business

(The Tip-Off On Business is a record of how pictures are grossing in various parts of the country. The rating given the pictures (see key) is a cross section of reports received from the field, and presents a summary of various types of runs. Inasmuch as the rating given cannot constitute the business of each individual engagement, an attempt is made to present a general average. By studying the ratings, which are constantly kept up-to-date, exhibitors may guide themselves in their buying and booking.—Editor)

(KEY TO "THE LITTLE MEN" RATINGS: (NOVEMBER 3, 1954)

 Registering grosses in the highest brackets.	 Just fair, nothing out of the ordinary, average.
 Good, although not breaking down the walls.	 Disappointing, below what was expected.

"it's a pleasure to do business with 20th!"

UA advertising, publicity, and exploitation chiefs mop the $500,000 promotion program for "The Barefoot Contessa," and seen, left to right, are Francis M. Winikus, national advertising-publicity-exploitation director; Roger H. Lewis, advertising manager; Mori Krushen, exploitation manager; Alfred Tomorin, assistant to Winikus; and Mort Nothanson, publicity.

"The Barefoot Contessa," which stars Humphrey Bogart and Ava Gardner, backed by UA's "blockbuster" campaign, drew this line of early morning patrons to the Capitol, where the film is currently in its smash New York premiere. Crowds like this one boosted the Technicolor production to the greatest UA business ever recorded of the popular Broadway showcase.

Vice-President Mox E. Youngstein and Winikus survey national magazines and learn that the biggest promotional push ever launched by UA paid off in features and stories to reach millions.

Winikus and Merrill Watson, vice-president, National Shoe Manufacturers Association, launch the coast to coast tour of a $10,000 collection of gem-studded shoes to ballyhoo the production.

UA Blockbuster

AS the first of United Artists' blockbuster releases, "The Barefoot Contessa" is being given a promotional send-off on the grand scale. The campaign, by far the most intensive ever mounted by the company, will set the pattern for the productions slated for release within the coming year.

The promotion started long in advance of the record breaking world premiere at the Capitol and was designed by UA's ad-pub-exploitation staff to hit every moviegoer.

Personal appearances, heavy radio and TV saturation, merchant co-ops, and a jumbo ad program have keyed the drum-beating. Backed by an initial budget of $500,000, the comprehensive campaign will carry through regional premieres and sub-runs to assure the greatest possible pre-selling for every engagement on the local level.

An avalanche of newspaper and magazine breaks kicked off the campaign. Ava Gardner's internationally reported Latin American tour earned tremendous additional coverage that was climaxed with the world bow in New York, which drew full TV coverage and immense crowds.

National co-ops based on the fabulous wardrobe worn by Ava Gardner in her starring role are booming "The Barefoot Contessa" with magazine ads, newspaper insertions and store promotions sponsored by leading manufacturers and retailers of women's wear.

A national letter-writing contest that will award free trips to Italy is spotlighting "Contessa" dates in every exchange area. So will a statue of Ava made in Italy and flown to the United States for TV and lobby display throughout the country.

Jersey Houses Sue Distribs

NEW YORK—Anti-trust actions filed last week by two New Jersey theatre companies seek damages totaling almost $5,000,000. In one of the Federal District Court actions, Golden Lane Theatre Corporation, operating the Temple, Union City, seeks $3,750,000, charging that distributors discriminated in favor of Loew's, Stanley Warner, and RKO Theatres on runs and clearances.

The second action involves the Court, Sommerville, formerly operated by Sompru Theatre Company and now leased to Brookpru Theatre Company. Unreasonable clearance in favor of other theatres is charged and the suit seeks $639,000 for Sompru and $592,000 for Brookpru.

Union Picketing Allowed

NEW YORK—Queens Supreme Court Judge Stoddard last week at a hearing set aside a temporary injunction restraining Local 306 projectionists from picketing the Fair, Queens, and indicated he would deny the theatre's application to have the injunction made permanent.

The local contended the injunction had been granted without a hearing and stated it regarded Judge Stoddard's ruling as precedential.

The picketing of the theatre began again, with union officials stating the dispute arose when the theatre, which formerly employed projection members, changed to non-members of the local.

England

In London, Cinematograph Exhibitors Association formally ratified the new Eady levy scale averting government imposition of a statutory rather than a voluntary levy. CEA officials approached J. Arthur Rank, whose theatres resigned from the organization several months ago in protest against the manner in which Eady negotiations were conducted, but Rank reportedly made it clear he had no intention of rejoining.

Dance Is Launched To Plug "Americano"

NEW YORK—Arthur Murray Studios throughout the country will introduce a new dance, The Americano, created by Murray, in conjunction with local playdates of the RKO production, "The Americano," it was revealed last week. The dance was inspired by one performed by Abbe Lane in the Technicolor South American adventure.

Every licensed Arthur Murray Studio is receiving detailed instructions on how to teach the new dance, with information concerning cooperation with local exhibitors playing the RKO picture. In addition, the studios will receive press-book promotion material, as well as photographs of scenes from the film and its stars, Glenn Ford, Ursula Thiess, Frank Lovejoy, and Cesar Romero.

A series of promotion ideas to create interest in learning the new dance as well as in the picture have been planned for the joint use of local theatre and local dance studio by RKO's exploitation department. These include mailing campaigns involving a variety of contests with free dance lessons as prizes, dance contests, demonstrations at schools and social organizations, and lucky number dances in night clubs and dance halls.

In communities without an Arthur Murray Studio, exhibitors can arrange similar exploitation campaigns with any local dance school.

"20,000 Leagues" Manual Being Offered To Exhibs

NEW YORK—Buena Vista Film Distribution Company, Inc., releasing Walt Disney's "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea," last fortnight issued a comprehensive campaign manual which indicates the wide interest and acceptance the film has already received.

It is stated that from now until the release of the picture there will be many additional promotions developed and that exhibitors will be informed of these as soon as possible, so they may take advantage of them.

Editors Get "Conqueror" Stills

NEW YORK—To emphasize the magnitude of "The Conqueror," a series of 16-by-20-inch photographs, twice the size of ordinary stills, of the CinemaScope-Color production is being sent to editors of leading daily newspapers, accompanied by a personal letter from Perry Lieber, RKO's national director of publicity and exploitation. The first photo showing stars John Wayne and Susan Hayward on horseback against a background of fiercely fighting Tartars and Mongols has been mailed to the editors.

Photos of MGM stars on the Storecaster music-lantern are seen in a Dilbert Brothers supermarket in Astoria, L. I. The lanterns are pink and charcoal gray. The lantern acts as a source of Storecast System music, as well as a marker.

Standing Bull recently backed UA's "Sitting Bull" in Denver. A steer, a bannered truck, and a ballyhoo were the ingredients used by manager Joe Achuleta, Paramount, in a weight guessing contest that rolled through the city to herald the film. The entrant who came up with the closest estimate of bull's weight won half a side of beef. Others received passes for the film.

"Run-Down" Theatre Gets Lease On Life

RIVERSIDE, R. I.—This diminutive village, actually a part of the town of East Providence, has a total population of less than 3,000; yet it has a motion-picture theatre that is operated on the plane of a first-run house in a metropolitan area. To Joseph Jarvis, owner and manager, goes the credit for having foresight and exploitative vision that transformed the once-shabby and backward Lyric into a modern, well-designed and appointed theatre.

Just one year ago, Jarvis, formerly associated with Bomes Theatres, took over the run-down Riverside house, completely remodelled, redecorated and refurnished it. Renaming it the Gilbert Stuart, in honor of the Rhode Island painter noted for his portraits of George Washington, Jarvis fulfilled a dream to give local residents a modern entertainment center.

Celebrating the first anniversary of the Gilbert Stuart, Jarvis presented an extensive and well-planned series of promotions. Orchids, gift-boxed and flown by air-express from the Hawaiian Islands, were presented every feminine patron during the week-long anniversary celebration. Daily drawings saw tickets to Cinerama, playing in Boston, awarded to lucky patrons. Well-filled grocery baskets were given away at every performance, and working out a special deal with the Jordan-Marsh store in Boston, Jarvis awarded round-trip tickets to the Hub city, together with valuable merchandise certificates. Other features included free distribution of candy and other confections to patrons. Near capacity attendance justified Jarvis' labors. Next on the agenda is the area's first CinemaScope installation; and other modern features.

BRANCHES
Atlanta

November is the date for the annual election meeting for the Variety Club.

The remaining walls of the old Atlanta, which workers began demolishing several weeks, won't go down without a legal fight. The destruction of the old Atlanta showplace was stopped by a temporary injunction signed in Fulton Superior Court by Judge George P. Whitman, Jr. The petition asking for the injunction was brought by J. Nelson Jones, owner, Houston Garage, next to the old theatre.

WOMPI is making plans for the annual Christmas party. New members are Ruth Carter, Brookhaven, Brookhaven, Ga., and Harriet Duval, ABC Theatrical Enterprise.

Congratulations go to Doris Evans on the birth of a daughter. . . . Juanita Cardin, United Artists, left to join her husband in Fort Knox, Ky., on an indefinite leave of absence.

Mrs. Laura Kenny, UA is proud of the WOMPI trophy won for the best publicity scrapbook. Thanks go to Grace Wooley and Marie Pinkston, with Messrs. Benson and Barnett at the Fox.

The Augusta Drive-In Theatres, Augusta, Ga., has taken over the two drive-ins; the Augusta, formerly owned by Dixie Drive-In Company, Atlanta; the Cloverleaf, from the Cloverleaf Company; and the Hilltop, from the Hilltop Theatre Company.

Bob Langley, sales representative, National Screen Service, was in the hospital in Birmingham, Ala. . . . Harvey Rudisill, manager, Kay, had a heart attack. . . . Marshall Maddox is the new owner, Jasper, Jasper, Ga. . . . J. A. Nations is the new owner, Senoia, Senoia, Ga., from former owner Marshall Maddox.

On the Row visiting and booking were Bill Griffin, Culman, Ala.; Walter Morris, Knoxville, Tenn.; R. E. Ziebell, Swan, Norcross, Ga.; William Greene, Glenn, Decatur, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. John Carter, Brookhaven, Brookhaven, Ga., and Jay Solomon, Independent Theatres, Chattanooga, Tenn.

William B. Pratt, formerly an Atlanta manager and now of Tacoma, Wash., was killed in an automobile accident near Yakima, Wash.

B. D. Benton, president, Benton Film Express, was injured in a parade when a horse fell on him and broke his hip. He was a member of the horse patrol of the Shriners.

To obtain the maximum newspaper publicity for Robert C. Ruark's "Africa Adventure," Spence Steinhurst, RKO field man in the Atlanta area, sent letters to the editors of all newspapers in his territory which carry Ruark's syndicated column. Steinhurst suggested a variety of approaches which would mutually benefit the paper and the local theatre playing the RKO feature.

President William Richardson, Astor, is back after a spell of illness. . . . Mrs. Vera Haygood, MGM, is back after a stay at the hospital.

The owner of the Rose, Hartford, Ala., A. C. Saunders, installed CinemaScope. . . . The former Gem, Newton, N. C., has been sold by G. Otto Hartsoe to Ed Haupt.

Rudy Rudisill, office manager, Kay, was still in the hospital. . . . Dave Prince, southern district manager, RKO, was at home improving from an heart attack.

The Lyric, Waycross, Ga., is being renovated.

Partners Fred and Robert Rainey, owners, Hatfield Drive-In, Athens, Ala., installed CinemaScope.

The new owners of the Charlotte Drive-In, Punta Gorda, Fla., are John B. Browning and Harold Reason. . . . The regular monthly meeting of WOMPI was held at the Variety Club. Nell Allen, president, presided.

Vernon Hunter, retiring city manager in Orlando, Fla., for Florida State Theatres, was honored at a surprise midnight banquet in the Pine Hill Country Club attended by 170 industryites.

As a contribution to "National Kids Day," sponsored by the Kiwanians, the manager of the Carib and Park, Clearwater, Fla., admitted all children free that day.

Mr. and Mrs. David Shapiro, owners, Capital, Homerville, Ga., returned there after a vacation. . . . Whitney Lindsey, manager, Florida State Theatres, Lakeland, Fla., since 1951, resigned. Tom Sawyer replaced.

Olin Atkins, owner, Moonlite Drive-In, Evergreen, Ala., celebrated the completion of a remodeling program. Jack Rudd is manager. . . . Stein Theatres opened the new drive-in at Adel, Ga. Ben S. Rivers is manager.

John Hoge, manager, LaBelle, LaBelle, Fla., is redecorating the theatre. The exterior will be replastered and painted and brick planter boxes built on either side of the entrance. The ticket box is to be remodeled and the lobby redecorated. New Simplex equipment will be installed.

Jimmy Gaylord, owner, Starlight Drive-In, Troy, Ala., is the new owner of the Crenshaw Drive-In, Leverage, Ala. . . . Bill Fincher is the new owner, Bay Mountain Drive-In, Kingsport, Tenn. Rook Booking Service will handle the buying and booking.

The Family Drive-In, Harriman, Tenn., will close for the season. . . . The Roan Drive-In, Harriman, Tenn., is installing CinemaScope. . . . A party was held by United Artists at the home of sales representative Bob Tarwater. The UA

North Carolina Durham

Three drive-ins were put out of operation by Hurricane Hazel. Forced to cease operations when the storm either destroyed or severely damaged their screens and other properties were the Skyview, on the Wake Forest Highway; the Midway, on the Hillsboro Road; and the Valley, on the Chapel Hill Road. J. W. Thompson, owner, Valley, estimated damages that are at about $6,000 and said he was "undecided as to whether to reopen before spring." He said the screen was twisted so badly it will have to be rebuilt completely and that the marquee was a complete loss, as was the aluminum fence. The drive-in, open for only about a month, was partially covered by insurance. Although the screen was destroyed at the Midway. J. W. Allen, manager, said he hoped to have it back into operation soon. He listed damage to the screen at $3,000 and said that the marquee and aluminum fence were damaged badly, and that some of the steel speaker posts were broken off by the wind. The roof of the concession stand also was damaged. The screen was blown away at the Skyview, and all but 13 of the poles supporting the structure were blown down. The marquee also was destroyed and the aluminum fence badly damaged. J. B. Bankston, manager, said the loss was partially covered by insurance and that the drive-in will reopen as soon as repairs necessary to put the ozoner back in working order are made.

Tennessee Cookeville

The Tennessee Theatre Owners Association is organizing its ranks to combat a proposed three per cent tax on gross receipts of motion picture theatres by the state, it was reported by Stacy Wilhite, TTOA president. On Oct. 18, 1954, the legislature council committee listed 18 tax sources open to the General Assembly. Included was the restoration of a three percent tax on gross receipts of theatres, an estimated revenue of $100,000. TTOA leaders immediately began plans for a full-fledged fight to prevent the enactment of any such legislation, Wilhite stated, and a series of regional meetings in November will launch the campaign.

Theatres playing RKO's "Passion" will receive a "Ruffians' Rogue's Gallery" setup of pictures for a display such as the one recently employed in the lobby of the Palace, Columbus, O. Harry Schreiber, manager, looks at the display.

State exhibitors seen on Film Row were Tommy Bello, Nanty Glo; Ross Acheson, Rimersburg; Joe Birroco, Clarion; Joe Shapiro, Mount Union; Lew Rothenstein, Cambridge Springs; John Nagy, Rural Valley; Mrs. V. Hayes, Linesville; Guy Christy, Conneautville; John Wilson, Koppell; and Lou Lambros, Farrell.

Kentucky Harlan

For a recent kiddie show at Schine's Margie Grand, Tom Williams tied in with a bottling company whereby each patron received a free bottle upon leaving the theatre. The bottling company set up a large display in the outer lobby and gave away approximately 300 bottles. Williams also sold half of a herald, which effectively plugged the kiddie show and the Cola giveaway.

Richmond

For the sixth consecutive year, Ken Carter sold two banks on a Christmas rental at Schine's Madison.

Ohio Columbus

Lou Holleb has been named general manager, In-Town Auto Theatre, now under construction in suburban Whitehall, O. The new drive-in will have a 1000-car capacity, largest in Franklin County, and will be the first here to be equipped for CinemaScope. Marshall and Paul Holleb, cousins of Lou, are associated with him in the project.

Al Sugarman, who has relinquished active participation in his local theatre interests, was on the way to Tucson, Ariz., where he plans to spend the winter season.

Showing of "A Star Is Born" at $1.25 top with matinees at 90 cents at the RKO Palace here highlights the growing trend toward advanced-price admissions in all first-runs.

J. Real Neth has installed CinemaScope equipment in the State, opposite the Ohio State University campus. This is the first such installation in the Neth Circuit. Daily matinees have been instituted at the State.

Technical sergeant Bob Salkin, son of Richard Salkin, Jackson Park, is back after seven years in the army, with his last year in Korea. A royal welcome is awaiting him after his mustering out at Spokane, Wash. . . . Eastbound Dore Schary, MGM chief, and westbound Don Hartmann, Paramount head, crossed paths.

Allied Theatres of Illinois officially thanked the Chicago American amusement editor, William Carroll, for inaugurating and calling the public's attention to a new feature on the amusement pages headed "Top Films Of The Week On Local Screens." The group stated, "There is no question but that this latest effort by your newspaper on behalf of the theatres of Chicago will help stimulate greater public interest in the currently choice movies being shown in the neighborhood theatres and should thereby produce good results boxoffice-wise."

In Urbana, Ill., Gene Russell, Champaign, Ill., was elected regional vice-president, Champaign region, United Theatre Owners of Illinois at a meeting at the Urbana Lincoln. George Barber, Tuscola, Ill., and W. E. Simmons, Monticello, Ill., were named to represent the Champaign area on the UTOI board. Mrs. W. E. Simmons, Monticello, Ill., was appointed secretary. Although the majority of exhibitors in this area are UTOI members, plans were made to obtain 100 per cent representation. Trade practices plaguing exhibitors were discussed and frequent meetings of the group are being planned. The theatre owners heartily endorsed TOA's efforts to spur increased production and to bring an end to the seller's market.

Dallas

St. Louis

One-man projection room operation with union projectionists in all but 16 of the theatres in St. Louis and St. Louis County is provided for under the terms of a new five-year wage scale and working agreement worked out at a conference between committees of Local 143 and theatre owners. Richard F. Walsh, president, IATSE, sat in on the final conference that worked out the terms. It is understood that the basic terms of the five-year contract are that the men in the one-man houses will be given a 20 per cent increase in the old basic wage scale of the house, plus a five per cent retirement fund contribution by the theatre owner. This arrangement will apply immediately to 47 of the theatres covered by the agreement. Effective on Sept. 1, 1955, 11 other houses will also go to one man operation, including such theatres as the Granada, Tower, Rio, Shenandoah, Victory, Wellston, and Lindell, Fanchon and Marco-St. Louis Amusement Company Circuit, and also the Varsity, Esquire, Norside, and Melba. In those theatres, the old wage scale and working conditions will prevail until Sept. 1, 1955, and the projectionists employed in such houses are not to come under the retirement fund provisions until the theatres go to one-man operation. At such time, those workers will get 20 per cent wage increases in addition to the five per cent retirement contribution. Five deluxe first-runs are to continue with two-man projection booth operation indefinitely, and in those houses the management has agreed to grant the five per cent contribution immediately. The first-runs are the Fox, Missouri, and St. Louis, Fanchon and Marco-St. Louis Amusement Company, and Loew's State and Loew's Orpheum, operated by Loew's Theatres. St. Louis has a city ordinance that requires the use of two projectionists. Immediate steps will be taken, it is understood, to have that ordinance repealed.

Sympathy goes to Henry Kamuda, owner, Grand, Indian Orchard, Mass., in the death of his mother, Mrs. John Kamuda, widow of the original owner of the Grand.

Because of the success of the first annual industry golf tournament held at the Woodland Country Club, Auburndale, Mass., which attracted a large number of industryites, it was voted unanimously to hold the second annual tourney at the same spot next year and to retain the same working committee. Fifty golfers turned out to compete in the afternoon tournament while an added 25 non-golfers joined later for cocktails and dinner. Congratulations were being received by the committee, co-chaired by Larry Herman and Jim Mahoney, with Joe Cohen, Mal Green, Dick Dobbeyn, Ralph Iannuzzi, and Bill Koster, who worked to make the evening a success. The low gross prize was won by Jerry Govan, New England Theatres, Inc. The handicap prizes were won by Vincent Canavan, Dick Cummings, Cohen, Henry Price, Maurice "Fishy" Green, Nate Oberman, Lloyd Clark, and Tom Dawson. The two door prizes were won by "Red" Pierce and Jim Mahoney. Due to the hit of the first affair, this industry social function is bound to be looked forward to in years to come.

This city will be the sixth out of seven cities to be visited by Ginger Rogers and her husband to exploit "Twist Of Fate," distributed by United Artists. Joe Mansfield, UA publicist is setting up a press luncheon at the Ritz Carlton Hotel for Nov. 17 for the stars. She will appear on several radio programs during her two-day visit and he will also appear on a TV program.

Phil Bloomberg, Orpheum, Danvers, Mass., was in the district and stated that he has given up his option on the new drive-in to be built in Georgetown, Mass., on Route 133. Another rare visitor was Lon Vail, who operates the Warren, Warren, R. I., and the Pastime, Bristol, R. I.

The managers of New England Theatres, Inc., are hitting on high gear for the "Profit and Prestige Campaign" now in effect for the final quarter. The managers themselves are conducting the drive under the supervision of the home office executives, with the campaign devoted to promoting bigger and better business for October, November, and December. Each theatre district in the circuit has one special representative to whom other managers in his district submit promotional and exploitation plans. He discusses them with special representatives from the other districts at weekly meetings, where the best and most practical ideas are developed, and passed along to all the managers. A colorful and highly practical brochure has been created by the committee and is now in the hands of the managers. Every possible angle of theatre sales, showmanship, and merchandising is being covered by the group. According to reports of the enthusiasm being generated by the managers, this fourth quarter business could easily make history for the circuit. The organizational committee for the "Profit and Prestige Campaign" includes president Martin J. Mullin, Hy Fine, Robert Sternburg, Jerry Govan, Chester Stoddard, Harry Browning, H. W. Glidden, Joseph Plunkett, Jack Saef, Bill Romanoff, and George Moffitt. Representing the field men for October were managers James Davis, Leo Lajoie, and Max Naylor; for November, Larry Burke, Mel Morrison, and Marvin Huban; and for December, Arthur Keenan, Ray McNamara, and Ben Greenberg.

Congratulations are being received by Mr. and Mrs. Rene LeBrun, owners-managers, Star, Limestone, Me., on the birth of their third child and second daughter, Andrea Mary.

Phil Zimmerman, head, real estate department, Stanley Warner Theatres, and C. P. O'Toole, head, engineering department, were here on routine business.

Film District

Ken Hamilton, New York State salesman, won first place in the Manley merchandising contest recently concluded out of the Boston office. Hamilton and his wife left to enjoy a week's vacation at the Caribe Hilton Hotel, San Juan, Puerto Rico, as guests of the Manley Company. The contest was conducted in division manager Lyman O. Seley's district, which includes New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky. A point system was set up by Seley to determine the winners, by which a certain number of points were awarded to each salesman for equipment sold, new accounts added, and increases in business with old accounts. Hamilton had been running third until the last two days of the contest when three accounts he had been working on materialized in time to push him ahead of the field. Second honors went to John Stone, selling in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and eastern Massachusetts, and Irving Dunn placed third, selling in Connecticut, Rhode Island, and New York City.

Nathan Buchman, vice-president, American Theatres Supply Company, and head, candy and vending departments, resigned to enter the theatre concessions business for himself. He is leaving ATS on Nov. 15 and will shortly announce his new headquarters. He joined American Theatres Corporation in the accounting department 20 years ago and became head of the vending department in 1942. A year ago, when American Theatres Supply Company combined the merchandising with the buying of concessions into one department, Buchman headed the merger. His place at ATS will be taken by Benjamin S. Conviser, who has been with American Theatres Corporation since 1949 as head, maintenance and construction. He has been associated with Samuel Pinanski, head of the circuit, since 1932, when it was M and P. After Nov. 15, when Conviser takes over, the maintenance, supply, and vending departments of ATS will be combined into one department with Conviser's headquarters at 646 Washington Street in the home office building and with the warehouse and shipping offices continuing at 78 Broadway. Conviser is also a vice-president, American Theatres Supply Company.

Major Theatre Equipment Company, successor to Joe Cifre, Inc., recently installed the Motiograph equipment at E. M. Loew's Route 128 Drive-In and a Motiograph mixer at ATC's Oxford Drive-In, Oxford, Mass. The company added a huge sewing room for theatre stage draperies and curtains, supervised by Howard Alcorn, for 50 years a member of the industry. Alcorn is presently engaged in the making of the stage accessories for the Natick, Mass., High School, which has a proscenium arch opening of 60 feet in width and 22 feet tall. Mack Paul, one of the coowners of Major, has added a business builder for night clubs to the audio-visual department. He takes 16mm. informal shots of guests at the 5 O'Clock night club in Salisbury Beach, Mass., and the following week presents these pictures on a screen at the club with a tape recorder and sound track.

Judson Parker has been appointed branch manager at Republic replacing Herbert Schaefer, who resigned to join Buena Vista for the New England territory. Parker has been in the industry since 1938 except for two years' service with the marines. He started as a shipper at WB, went to United Artists as a booker, transferred to U-I as a salesman, and more recently was head booker and salesman for Screen Guild. He lives in Sharon, Mass., with his wife and three sons, 6, 11, and 14.

Jeanne Flatley, secretary to office manager Max Berlone at United Artists, announced her engagement to attorney Thomas Fleming, Holyoke, Mass.

Mrs. Doris Flanagan, bookkeeper, 20th-Fox, resigned to await the stork. She was given a farewell dinner by the office staff. Paulin Vallas, same office, spent the holiday weekend enjoying the outdoor sports at the Jug Inn Barn, Pittsfield, Mass.

Frankness crowded sentiment and conviviality at an unusual dinner given Leo Greenfield, retiring U-I branch manager, by the Variety Club and other industry associates. Greenfield began the address of thanks and acceptance (for a wrist watch, presented by co-chairmen Norman Jackter, Columbia manager) in a humorous vein. Jackter, who called Greenfield "my closest friend," found it difficult to put his feelings into words. Al Marchetti, U-I head booker, lauded Greenfield's kindness and thoughtfulness and praised his direction of the exchange. Sylvan Leff, introduced as a speaker for exhibition, referred to Greenfield's high marks in U-I campaigns. Jack playing of records on the outside of a theatre is prohibited here, but this was circumvented by using the line "Give Your Less Fortunate Neighbor A White Christmas. Give To Your Community Chest." Special screenings were set up for disc jockeys and TV personalities, newspaper people, and record dealers. A tieup was made with the popular Billy Johnston TV show over WTOP-TV. A Santa Claus drawing contest was featured and Johnston gave as prizes albums from "White Christmas" promoted from the Super Music Stores, plus two $25 dresses for the ladies promoted from Lansburgh's department store. This store ran an 800 line ad on opening day plugging the picture and the Natlyn dresses which are replicas of dresses worn in the picture. In addition, the store devoted two windows to the film, and also used inside the store displays. Stickers were placed on all juke boxes in the area plugging the song "Count Your Blessings" and the opening. A tieup was also made with Super Music Stores whereby they ran a full page ad in the show section of The Washington Post Sunday before opening. They also gave additional window displays in two main stores. Decca Records issued a life-size cut-out of Bing Crosby plugging his anniversary album. Arrangements were made with Decca distributors to place 18 inch circles plugging "White Christmas" on 50 of the cut-outs in the best locations in the territory. Joe McCann, Schine's Wicomico, had an outstanding campaign on "Rear Window" which featured "Rear Window" photo contest for which he tied up with a local photographic studio. The three winners were awarded prizes.

In addition, the winning photos were displayed in the camera shop window for a week, with suitable copy. The theatre awarded passes to the runners-up.

The contest was picked up by the local station, roughly, $200 worth of free publicity. The night time disc jockey plugged the contest three times nightly during his show, which is directly beamed at the high school crowd, suggesting to wives and mothers that they have their teen-age children or relatives enter the contest. The station also played "Lisa" on afternoon and night time shows. McCann also tied up with a local music store for a window on the picture, particularly "Lisa," and also had a window for a sporting goods store on the binocular angle. The local weekly paper ran its "Inquiring Photographer" using the question, "James Stewart in

Philly Art "War" Hits Newspapers

PHILADELPHIA—What appears to be an "art film" battle for patronage has hit town, it was observed last fortnight with, so far, the newspapers the only ones benefitting from some nice display advertising.

Exceptional Films announced a series of "prize foreign pictures, film classics, films of fact and social documentation, of psychiatry and the arts, film poems, experimental films and avant garde efforts, films by distinguished directors of a dozen nations, etc.," at the Franklin Institute, with membership limited and 13 programs through next May.

Cinema Guild promises "unusual cultural films for adults. Ten excellent programs for private showing in the comfort and intimacy of the Wayne Avenue Playhouse," operated by Joe Conway. "You will, as a member, see films by famous directors, by pioneers in avant garde techniques; films of superb artistry; in conception, in scripting, in photography and in recording. Films rarely seen because of their controversial nature. Performances will be held Sunday afternoons and Wednesday nights, once each month. Admission by membership only."

In addition, local theatres currently with art policies are the SW Lane and Commodore, the Green Hill, Hill, Studio, Locust, and a few others.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Goldstein, Paytang, Paxtang, Pa., were in Atlantic City on a combination business and pleasure trip.

Kennett Square

Dave Brodsky is now doing his own buying and booking for the Auditorium.

Luzerne

The Luzerne closed due to local conditions.

Myerstown

Samuel D. Giacomo reopened the Hiway.

New Cumberland

Frank Freistock opened the Shore Drive-In with capacity for 500 cars. Milgram Theatres, Philadelphia, is handling the buying and booking.

New Holland

Stanley Peters, who also has the Ritz, St. Clair, Pa., is now doing the buying and booking for the Ritz.

Palmyra

Stanley Warner Theatres did not renew its lease on the Seltzer. H. R. Seltzer and his wife, owners, are now operating it themselves.

Reading

Up in Schuylkill Haven, with one theatre, borough council put in force a curfew law, barring youngsters from the streets after nine p.m., except when accompanied by parents, every weekday night. Sunday is excepted.

Monsignor John J. McKenna, secretary, Legion of Decency, recently presented a commendation to Lester Isaac, director of exhibition for "Cinerama," during the first anniversary of its showing at the Boyd, Philadelphia. Hal Grossman, managing director, watches the presentation.

Post C. Travelers Protective Association engaged the Strand, Kenneth Hinkle, manager, for its annual show for boys and girls on Oct. 30 in observance of the association's "Child Accident Prevention Week."

Reports say that the Reading Consistory, Scottish Rite Masons, is planning to move from the Plaza to the Rajah Theatre. Masonic bodies own both theatre buildings and opinion among the membership is divided on the proposed change.

Considerable damage was done to the two drive-ins near here, one at Mount Penn, Pa., and the other in Muhlenberg Township, north of the city line. Fences, small buildings, and other fixtures were damaged, but in both locations the screens, one of steel and the other of wood, were unharmed.

Eugene Plank, here and in Harrisburg, Pa., in alternate seasons, will become assistant manager, Embassy, here, after the season for the Reading and Mount Penn Drive-Ins, which he managed, closes. He will take the place of the recently deceased George Gross, assistant to manager Paul E. Glase.

Scranton

According to an announcement by J. J. O'Leary, general manager, William Butler has been named Scranton city manager in charge of the Comerford and Capitol, with Bud Irwin, formerly of the Comerford, reportedly being named manager, Hollywood, Pottsville, Pa. Butler's new position will place the neighborhood theatres on a basis of individual responsibility, which is associated with the new policy of the theatres. It was also announced that Lloyd Hause has been named Wilkes-Barre, Pa., manager, succeeding William Walsh, who resigned. James Reilly, former manager, Penn, has been advanced to manager, Comerford, succeeding Hause. O'Leary also reported that the Sunbury, Pa., district headquarters were being shifted to Milton, Pa., resulting in the transfer of a number of managers and assistant managers.

The Bob Mathias Story

BIOGRAPHICAL DRAMA
80M.

ESTIMATE: Satisfactory sports yarn for the duallers.

STORY: In a small California town of Tulare, Bob Mathias, a high school student of 17, decides to enter the try-outs for the American team in the Olympics. Coach Ward Bond encourages the boy's hopes and gives him a thorough training agenda. Mathias' parents Howard Petrie and Ann Doran are concerned about their son's health but finally agree to the rugged schedule before him. The boy becomes part of the team. At Wembley, England, with his parents in the stands, Mathias comes out top scorer in the decathlon. A celebrity, he returns to his home town to receive a rousing welcome. However, he also learns that his application for Stanford University was turned down. He breaks off with his girl, Melba Mathias, and goes east to a prep school to make up his requirements. The next year he is admitted to Stanford where he again meets Melba. She refuses to see him, but eventually they become engaged. Deciding to settle down, he refuses to enter the 1952 games, but pressure from his friends and Melba convinces him to change his mind. At Helsinki, Mathias wins the decathlon, the only one ever to do it twice. Mathias returns to take on the marine uniform.

X-RAY: Although there is not much of dramatic material here in this true story of Mathias, the simple success story of a youngster might appeal to sports fans with Mathias and his wife playing themselves as an added asset. Both, it might be said, are at ease before the cameras. For the lower half, this should be a satisfactory entry. Richard Collins wrote the story and screen play. Maximum aspect ratio: 1.85 to 1.

AD LINES: "Bob Mathias, The Only Person Ever To Win The Olympic Decathlon Twice"; "The True Story Of A Youngster's Magnificent Success Before The World"; "The Dreams And Success Of An American Boy."

CAST: Johnny Sheffield, Beverly Garland, Donald Murphy, Barry Bernard, Leonard Mudie, Smoki Whitfield, Russ Conway, Rory Mallinson, Roy Glenn, Harry Gording, Charles Stevens, Bill Walker. Produced and directed by Ford Beebe.

STORY: Beverly Garland, American film actress, arrives in Africa in search of her husband, Donald Murphy, who has embezzled money in America. She learns that he has gone into the jungle, probably to a diamond mine, with a crooked guide. At the commissioner's headquarters, she meets Johnny (Bomba) Sheffield, who volunteers help. During their trek through the jungle, they are menaced by a leopard which Sheffield finally kills. Murphy arrives at the diamond mine and concludes a deal to buy some uncut diamonds. Sheffield and Garland pursue Murphy until they overtake him. Murphy tries to kill Sheffield, but government police intervene. Murphy is put under arrest.

X-RAY: A routine entry in the "Bomba Of The Jungle" series, this offers the usual thrills and animal fights. The players give adequate performances. Ford Beebe, who also produced and directed, wrote the screen play. Maximum aspect ratio: 1.85 to 1.

AD LINES: "A Killer Leopard Stalked The Jungle To Kill Anything In Its Sight"; "A Perilous Journey"; "A Beautiful Actress Comes Thousands Of Miles To Save Her Husband, But Finds He Is A Scoundrel"

The Affairs Of Messalina

HISTORICAL DRAMA
108M.

(Italian-made) (Dubbed in English)

ESTIMATE: Import will find slow going.

CAST: Memo Benassi, Maria Felix, Georges Marchal, Jean Chevrier, Jess Tissier, Michel Vitold, Giuseppe Varni, Germaine Karjean, Delia Scala, Erno Crisa, Camillo Pilotto, Carla Ninchi, Ave Ninchi, Cesare Barbetti, Gina Saltamerenda. Produced by Produzione Gallone, Rome, and Filmsonor, Paris; directed by Carmine Gallone.

STORY: Revolving about the oversexed Maria (Messalina) Felix, fifth wife of Roman emperor Memo (Claudius) Benassi, this covers some of her affairs in the court and in brothels, with Georges (Caius) Marchal her principal favorite. Because of a prediction, Benassi is willing to divorce Felix and let her wed Marchal, but, in a showdown after the Roman games and the wedding of Felix to Marchal, Benassi marches on Rome to stop a threat to his crown. Marchal is murdered, while Felix dies a suicide.

X-RAY: This Italian import may be played in a few situations, Italian and art, but for the run of the mill it isn't suitable material despite the sex overtones and the usual type of production associated with film of Roman days. The dialogue, dubbed in, is easy to understand for

The Black Knight (719)

COSTUME
MELODRAMA
85M.

(Color by Technicolor)
(Filmed in England)

ESTIMATE: Period meller with Ladd has the angles.

CAST: Alan Ladd, Patricia Medina, Andre Morell, Harry Andrews, Peter Cushing, Anthony Bushell, Laurence Naismith, Patrick Troughton, Bill Brandon, Ronald Adam, Basil Appleby, Thomas Moore, Jean Lodge, Pauline Jameson. Produced by Irving Allen and Albert R. Broccoli; directed by Tay Garnett.

STORY: In the days of King Arthur and his knights on the estate of nobleman Harry Andrews, his wife, Pauline Jameson, and their daughter, Patricia Medina, there lives commoner Alan Ladd, who is an expert sword and armor maker. A horde of attackers dressed as Vikings attack the castle and kill Jameson, which upsets Andrews mentally. Medina and Ladd are in love and when she sees him riding off in pursuit, she thinks him a coward and refuses to see him again. Ladd follows the leaders of the assault, Peter Cushing, and his servant, Bill Brandon, to the castle of Anthony (King Arthur) Bushell, and accuses Cushing and Brandon of the evil deed. He is laughed off but is granted time to prove his accusations. Bushell believes the attackers were Vikings but in reality they were soldiers of Cushing and king of Cornwall Patrick Troughton, who are in league to overthrow Bushell and capture the throne. Knight Andre Morell befriends Ladd and teaches him the art of battle in armor. Ladd disguises himself as The Black Knight and makes a reputation for himself. He saves a number of victims from Cushing including Medina without revealing his identity and overhears Cushing and Troughton planning to overthrow Bushell. With Morell's help, he alerts the king, and they are able to turn the tables on the revolt. Ladd is rewarded with knighthood and the hand of Medina in marriage.

X-RAY: There's a good deal of colorful action to be found in this latest Ladd entry as well as an interesting yarn and good direction and production. Although the subject and theme are fairly familiar by now, there probably is still a market, with the Ladd draw to assist, and colorful Technicolor mounting. The story and screen play are by Alec Coppel with additional dialogue by Dennis O'Keefe and Bryan Forbes. There's a ballad, "The Bold Black Knight." Maximum aspect ratio: 1.85 to 1.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better program price.

AD LINES: "The Black Knight" Seeks Adventure And The Hand Of The Lady He Loves In The Days Of King Arthur And His Knights Of The Round Table"; "Action And Adventure In The Days Of Old"; "Alan Ladd In A Great Adventure Thriller As 'The Black Knight'."

Phffft (715)

COMEDY
91M.

ESTIMATE: Entertaining comedy has names to help.

CAST: Judy Holliday, Jack Lemmon, Jack Carson, Kim Novak, Luella Gear, Donald Randolph, Donald Curtis, Army

Freeman, Merry Anders, Eddie Searles. Produced by Fred Kohlmar; directed by Mark Robson.

STORY: After eight years, marriage has become boring for TV soap opera writer Judy Holliday and attorney Jack Lemmon. They agree to a divorce, but each finds life unhappy after their parting, she in a house in Connecticut and he sharing the New York bachelor quarters of writer Jack Carson. Each tries out new love interests, he with Kim Novak and she with Donald Curtis, but this fizzles. Carson persuades Lemmon to grow a mustache, drive a sports car, and learn the latest dance steps. Holliday, too, steps out. She also decides to see what effect Carson might have on her romantically and invites him for drinks. When Lemmon hears this, he goes into a jealous rage, but when he arrives, he finds Carson has been sent on his way by Holliday and he overhears her admit she loves Lemmon. They are reconciled.

X-RAY: A sneak audience seemed to enjoy itself thoroughly as this comedy played fast and furious. There are much mugging, pratfalls, and humorous situations, to say nothing of a snappy script, attractive settings, good characterizations, and competent direction and production. The story and screen play are by George Axelrod. Maximum aspect ratio: 1.85 to 1.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better price.

AD LINES: "Phffft" Means Fun Galore For Everyone"; "The Only Woman He Had A Way With Was His Wife"; "Fast And Furious Fun For All When They Go 'Phffft'."

Tarzan Escapes (509)

ADVENTURE DRAMA
89M.

ESTIMATE: "Tarzan" reissue is adequate for the action houses.

CAST: Johnny Weissmuller, Maureen O'Sullivan, John Buckler, Benita Hume, William Henry, Herbert Mundin, E. E. Clive, Darby Jones, Cheetah. Associate producer, Sam Zimbalist; directed by Richard Thorpe.

STORY: A young woman and man come to Africa and hire a guide to take them through jungle territory to where they think their cousin is stranded. They will inherit a million dollars if the cousin, Maureen O'Sullivan, signs a document. They are also concerned about O'Sullivan, whom they wish to bring back to civilization. The guide, however, undertakes the expedition with the intention of catching Johnny (Tarzan) Weissmuller. After some difficulty, the group arrives at O'Sullivan's tree house, which she shares with Weissmuller. They are welcomed, and when O'Sullivan hears the story, she reluctantly agrees to return to civilization to assure her cousin the inheritance. On the trek out of the jungle, the group splits up and the white guide manages to ensnare Weissmuller. With the aid of his animal friends, he escapes and comes upon O'Sullivan and the party being held by headhunters. He rescues them. The evil white hunter is killed and O'Sullivan learns that she need not really return to civilization if she signs a document.

X-RAY: An early episode in the series, this reissue has held up well enough over the years. With Weissmuller in the pink of youthful vigor and O'Sullivan looking appropriately feminine, this should be an adequate reissue for the action houses. The screen play is based on characters created by Edgar Rice Burroughs. This was originally released in 1936.

TIP ON BIDDING: Usual reissue price.

AD LINES: "A Thrilling Jungle Adventure"; "Adventure, Action, And Intrigue Splits The Jungle Into Two Opposing Camps"; "Tarzan Escapes From The Clutches Of An Evil White Man."

Tarzan, The Ape Man (508)

ADVENTURE
DRAMA
102M.

ESTIMATE: Reissue will depend on name draw.

CAST: Johnny Weissmuller, Neil Hamilton, C. Aubrey Smith, Maureen O'Sullivan. Directed by W. S. Van Dyke.

STORY: Maureen O'Sullivan, daughter of trader C. Aubrey Smith, arrives in Africa to see her father and volunteers to accompany her father on a safari to discover the secret graveyard of the elephants. O'Sullivan is kidnapped by Johnny (Tarzan) Weissmuller. She is fascinated, and the two spend some happy days together. Later, she is returned to her father's party. Unfriendly natives capture the group and plan to throw them to a gorilla. Tipped off, Weissmuller arrives to save the party with the help of elephant friends. The elephants then take them to the elephants' graveyard. Smith dies, while O'Sullivan discovers that she is in love with Weissmuller and agrees to stay in the jungle with him.

X-RAY: The first of the series of "Tarzan" films, released in 1932, this reissue has excitement and adventure to offer. Technically, the film is still in good condition. This should be a satisfactory reissue for the action houses or on the lower half. Cyril Hume wrote the adaptation from characters created by Edgar Rice Burroughs. Legion of Decency: "B."

TIP ON BIDDING: Usual reissue price.

AD LINES: "The First Jungle Adventure with 'Tarzan'"; "A Thrilling Safari To The Forbidden Jungle And The Secret Graveyard Of The Elephants"; "They Came For Ivory And Found A Strange Jungle Man."

PARAMOUNT

Three Ring Circus (5404)

COMEDY
104M.

(Color by Technicolor)
(VistaVision)

ESTIMATE: Team draw will make the difference.

CAST: Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Joanne Dru, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Wallace Ford, Gene Sheldon, Elsa Lanchester, Nick Cravat. Produced by Hal Wallis; directed by Joseph Pevney.

STORY: Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, army buddies, are discharged, and Lewis heads for a job with a circus hoping someday to become a clown. Martin tags along. Circus owner Joanne Dru hires them to do odd jobs under the direction of manager Wallace Ford. The boys clean up, work for concessions, and care for animals, and Lewis tries his hand at lion taming as well as assisting star clown Gene Sheldon, who is drunk most of the time. Trapeze star Zsa Zsa Gabor takes a fancy to handsome Martin and insists he be made her assistant. Dru is forced to agree although she is romantically inclined towards Martin herself. Lewis pinch hits for a sick clown and gets laughs, which angers Sheldon. Martin through Gabor gets Dru to agree to put gambling concessions on the midway and tries to keep it honest. At a birthday party for Dru, Sheldon tells her either to fire Martin and Lewis or he quits. She tells him to leave and gives Lewis the job. He is a great hit and when he is given top billing, Gabor quits. Dru, unable to battle Martin, who is gaining more and more control of the circus, decides to leave and put the operation in the hands of Ford. Martin tries to cancel a benefit for youngsters which angers Lewis, and he and the others do the benefit anyway with Dru also showing up. As the show draws to a close, Martin appears to help out, and he and Dru and Lewis are together to stay.

X-RAY: This entry isn't the best of the Martin and Lewis series nor the worst, but rather falls somewhere about the middle. There's a minimum of story, gags, and music, with the apparent intent being to depend on circus backgrounds and incidents to carry the ball. It sometimes does, but even the circus setting can reach a saturation point. The story is of average interest with several weak points, the cast is efficient in the assignments, and direction and production are average. Three songs are to be heard, "Ey Punchinello," "It's A Good Day," and "It's A Big Wide Wonderful World." Filmed with the VistaVision cameras, the screen play and original story were written by Don McGuire. Youngsters should get a particular kick out of the film, what with the circus animals, clowns, etc., in evidence. Advised aspect ratio: 1.85 to 1; Maximum aspect ratio: 2 to 1.

TIP ON BIDDING: Usual Martin and Lewis price.

AD LINES: "Martin And Lewis Join The Circus And Everybody Has Fun"; "Fun For All Beneath The Big Top With Martin And Lewis"; "Jerry Lewis Wants To Be A Circus Clown While Dean Martin Wants To Sing And Make With Romance Beneath The Big Top."

20TH-FOX

Black Widow (423) MYSTERY
(Color by DeLuxe)

ESTIMATE: Good mystery.

CAST: Ginger Rogers, Van Heflin, Gene Tierney, George Raft, Peggy Ann Garner, Reginald Gardiner, Virginia Leith, Otto Kruger, Cathleen Nesbitt, Skip Homeier, Hilda Simms, Harry Carter, Geraldine Wall, Richard Cutting. Produced and directed by Nunnally Johnson.

STORY: When actress Gene Tierney leaves play producer Van Heflin alone, he meets Peggy Ann Garner, would-be writer, at a party given by actress Ginger Rogers, who stars in his play, and winds up taking her to dinner and giving her advice on writing. She is the niece of actor Otto Kruger, who has a part in Heflin's play. After a week, she gets a job in a cafe, meets Virginia Leith and her brother, law student Skip Homeier, and they seemingly fall in love. She also meets Reginald Gardiner, husband of Rogers, at the theatre and they wind up having lunch. She meets Heflin again and persuades him to let her use his apartment mornings to write until Tierney gets back. When Tierney returns one day, she finds Garner's body hanging in the bathroom. Lieutenant George Raft, in charge of the case, finds that it is murder and all the circumstantial as well as physical evidence make Heflin look guilty. Heflin gets away from the police, digs into Garner's past, and finds enough to make him think that Gardiner might be guilty, but Raft, who has kept abreast of the case and of Heflin, proves at the showdown that the killer is Rogers, who was insanely jealous.

X-RAY: A good deal of suspense is to be found in this attractively mounted mystery entry in CinemaScope as well as an interesting yarn that holds attention on high from start to finish, smart direction, and good production, to say nothing of a capable cast. This should please adult audiences. The screen play is by Nunnally Johnson, from a story by Patrick Quentin. The theme music is "The Dance Of The Seven Veils," from Salome.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better program price.

AD LINES: "She Wove A Web Around Many People . . . All Of Whom Could Be Guilty Of Her Murder"; "The Mystery Thriller With A Surprise Ending"; "Mystery And Murder . . . In Color And CinemaScope."

UNITED ARTISTS

The Golden Mistress MELODRAMA
82M.
(Kay-Rybnick)
(Print by Technicolor)
(Filmed in Haiti)

ESTIMATE: Okeh programmer for the lower half.

CAST: John Agar, Rosemarie Bowe, Abner Biberman, Andre Narcisse, Jacques Molant, Kik, Pierre Blain, Shibley Talamas, Andre Contant, Napoleon Bernard, Andre Germain, and the players of the National Folklore Theatre of Haiti. Produced by Richard Kay and Harry Rybnick, with Sam X. Abarbanel, executive producer; directed by Joel Judge.

STORY: John Agar uses his boat to continually search for treasure in the Caribbean, but he is in danger of losing the vessel because of unpaid bills. Abner Biberman, also a confirmed treasure seeker, risks his life by stealing an idol during a voodoo ceremony and sends his daughter, Rosemarie Bowe, to hire Agar and his boat for a treasure hunt. The latter is reluctant, knowing Biberman's inability to pay, and when Bowe becomes insolent, he tosses her in the water and she has him tossed into jail. Biberman, pursued by the voodoo high priest, sends a golden statue to persuade Agar to join in the venture. He agrees, but before they can meet him, Biberman falls a victim to voodoo vengeance. Agar rescues the idol and takes it to a friend, Andre Narcisse, a priest in a fishing village, who tells him the story of the idol and helps him find the road to the treasure by finding the other half of the statue. Narcisse is killed by a snake when he tries to replace the statue. Bowe and Agar find the island of the untamed native tribe and find the treasure as well, but are captured. As they are about to be put to death, the oxygen tank he uses for diving explodes, setting the village afire, and this enables them to escape. They decide that finding each other is worth more than the treasure and sail on into the future.

X-RAY: This program entry was filmed in and around Haiti and because of the on-the-spot lensing, it is that much more entertaining with the colorful settings, costumes, customs, and dances. The cast does well in the roles with Bowe looking particularly attractive via a multitude of costume changes. Because of its off-beat theme and suspenseful situations, it should fit well as part of the twin bills. The screen play is by Lew Hewitt and Joel Judge, based on a story by Hewitt.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program price.

AD LINES: "An Exciting Tale Of Adventure And Treasure Hunters"; "They Were Both Looking For Treasure And Found Each Other"; "Thrill To The Unknown As A Pair Of Young Lovers Go Treasure Hunting."

The Lawless Rider WESTERN
62M.
(Royal West)

ESTIMATE: Weak western for the lower half.

CAST: Johnny Carpenter, Rose Bascom,

Frankie Darro, Douglas Dunbrille, Frank Carpenter, Noel Neill, Kenne Duncan, Weldon Bascom, Bud Osborne, Lou Roberson, Bill Coontz, Bill Chaney, Roy Canada, Tap Canutt, Hank Caldwell and his Saddle Kings. Produced by John Carpenter; directed by Yakima Canutt.

STORY: Kenne Duncan takes over a town and surrounding territory with the aid of a gang of outlaws. Aid is requested of U.S. Marshal Douglas Dunbrille, but his staff is limited. When deputy marshal John Carpenter returns from a tiring assignment, he pleads that his own ranch needs defending against cattle rustlers. An old girl friend, Rose Bascom, finally writes him for help. It seems she and her brother, Frankie Darro, coowners of a large ranch, have been asked to sell to Duncan, and while the latter is able to talk Darro into selling and coming over to his side, Bascom has proven unwilling. Carpenter disguises himself as a jailed gunman who has been hired by Duncan. The real gunman breaks out of jail. They shoot it out, with Carpenter surviving. Bascom puts on a show to raise some money but Carpenter's real identity is revealed. With the aid of his friends and deputies, he manages to corral the gang after Darro is shot. Duncan tries to get away after throwing a stick of dynamite at Carpenter, who throws it back killing Duncan.

X-RAY: This is another one of those entries one has to see to believe. Horses run only to the accompaniment of music, the story is confusing, the editing rough on the eyes and abrupt on the ears, while the cast, consisting of a few professionals and a lot of amateurs with the latter winning out by sheer numerical superiority, is only fair. Direction and production are poor. It was written by Carpenter, and an original song, "Thinking Of You," is to be heard among others.

TIP ON BIDDING: Lowest bracket.

AD LINES: "He Had A Tough Job As Deputy U.S. Marshal"; "Action . . . And More Action As 'The Lawless Rider' Swings Into Action"; "A Two Fisted Marshal Shows What He Can Do Against 'The Lawless Rider'."

Operation Manhunt MELODRAMA
77M.
(MPTU Corporation)
(Filmed in Canada)

ESTIMATE: Satisfactory programmer for the lower half.

CAST: Harry Townes, Irja Jensen, Jacques Aubuchon, Robert Goudier, Albert Miller, Caren Shaffer, Kenneth Wolfe, Will Kuluva, Ovila Legare, Igor Gouzenko. Produced by Fred Feldkamp; directed by Jack Alexander.

STORY: The film is based on an experience of ex-Russian code clerk, Igor Gouzenko (played by Harry Townes) since he went into hiding nine years ago after exposing a Soviet atom spy ring in Canada. Townes and his wife, Irja Jensen, live quietly somewhere in Canada under police protection with no one knowing his real identity including their children, but they are on the alert against reprisals by Soviet agents. The latter do have plans for avenging his betrayal, and secret police agent Jacques Aubuchon is imported to find and kill Townes under the direction of Colonel Will Kuluva and assisted by embassy employe Albert Miller. They attempt to trap him several times through his publisher and friend, Robert Goodier, but fail. Finally, Aubuchon is instructed to write Townes and tell him that he, too, would like to leave Russian control for the freedom of Canada, thus setting a trap. Townes insists on keeping the appointment on the chance the plea is genuine. They rendezvous, whereupon Aubuchon surrenders to Townes and gives him valued information. Miller, seeing the betrayal, wounds Aubuchon before police capture him. (The real Igor Gouzenko disguised by a hood addresses the audience.)

X-RAY: This entry for the program is aided by suspense-filled sequences, authentic settings and backgrounds, good performances, and capable direction and production. While there isn't too much action, the plot should hold interest pretty well from start to finish with the story still attractive though the case made headline history nine years ago. The original screen play is by Paul Monash.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program Price.

AD LINES: "The Story Behind Igor Gouzenko . . . The Russian Code Clerk Who Destroyed A Canadian Atom Spy Ring"; "Manhunt For Murder"; "An Espionage Thriller Torn From Newspaper Headlines."

COMPILATION

(Swartz-Doniger)

ESTIMATE: For the lower half.

CAST: Paul Kelly, Maureen O'Sullivan, Walter Slezak, John Ireland, Lawrence Tierney, Kenneth Tobey, Alan Mowbray, George E. Stone, Lyle Talbot, Elizabeth Fraser, Stanley Andrews, Morris Ankrum, Don Beddoe, Robert Bice, George Chandler, Arthur Franz, George Cooper, Ned Glass, Herb Jacobs, Henry Kulky, Charles Nolte, Gene Roth, James Seay, Charles Tannen, Ben Welden, Ian Wolfe. Produced by Herman Swartz and Walter Doniger and directed by Walter Doniger.

STORY: "THE CHEF"—Walter Slezak is the chef at San Quentin and his desserts are the delight of all the inmates. The inmates, in conjunction with someone on the outside, conspire to get Slezak in trouble once he is out on parole so that he would be sent back. With the aid of warden Paul Kelly and wife, Maureen O'Sullivan, Slezak manages to take his place in the world. "THE HOSTAGES"—Prisoner Lawrence Tierney, along with John Ireland and Charles Nolte, attempt a break from San Quentin. Tierney holds two members of the prison board as hostages. Conflicts between Tierney and Ireland end in death for both. "THE FACE"—Arthur Franz, overly zealous prison chaplain, persuades a hardened prisoner to repaint the mural of the last supper in the chapel. The prisoner paints the faces of inmates as those of the apostles. A trusted prisoner friend of Franz is painted as Judas, and the chaplain is distressed until he finds that the trusted inmate is planning a break. The unbelieving prisoner saves Franz from death and is killed himself. The chaplain learns humility and understanding.

X-RAY: This tells three stories of prison life, ranging from comedy to melodrama to drama, and although slight and sketchy, they manage to hold interest. Based on "The San Quentin Story," by warden Clinton T. Duffy and Dean Jennings, the screen plays are "The Chef," Berman Swartz and Walter Doniger; "The Hostages," Oliver Crawford; and "The Face," by Guy Trosper.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program price.

AD LINES: "Three Tales Of Prison Life That Will Make You Laugh And Think"; "Laughs, Excitement, And Drama . . . In 'The Steel Cage'"; "A New And Different Film About The Men In 'The Steel Cage'."

Twist Of Fate

MELODRAMA

89M.

(Setton)

(Made in France)

ESTIMATE: Interesting melodrama has star draw to help.

CAST: Ginger Rogers, Herbert Lom, Stanley Baker, Jacques Bergerac, Margaret Rawlings, Eddie Byrne, Coral Browne. Produced by Maxwell Setton and John R. Sloan; directed by David Miller.

STORY: Ginger Rogers, ex-actress, lives in a house on the French Riviera lavished on her by international businessman Stanley Baker, who has promised to marry her once his divorce comes through. When she learns that no divorce is forthcoming, she leaves him and drives madly until she almost has an accident. She meets artist Jacques Bergerac, and they are attracted to one another. They see each other often, he teaching her to make pottery, until they fall in love. Herbert Lom, confidence man and friend of Rogers, steals a bracelet from her safe to pay off a debt to a henchman of Baker, who heads an international counterfeiting ring on the side. Baker assumes that Rogers has fallen for Lom. The latter has seen Baker placing large sums in Rogers' safe preparatory to making a getaway with her to a different country and he tries to rob the safe but is discovered by Baker. There is a struggle and Baker is killed, whereupon Lom places the body in Rogers' car intending to destroy the body in Bergerac's kiln. He is caught by Bergerac and held for the police. An accomplice of Baker wounds Lom fatally but he is able to confess to clear Bergerac and Rogers.

X-RAY: This is interesting and well-done with the story highly plausible and well-developed until the climax, when logic is thrown to the winds and contrivance enters the scene. The cast is good, as is the direction and production, while the authentic backgrounds and setting assist in the presentation. With a little selling this might wind up better than average since it has a number of saleable angles. The screen play is by Robert Westerby and Carl Nystrom based on an original story by Rip Van Ronkel and David Miller. Incidentally, Bergerac, who makes his film debut with this entry looks good and handles his role capably. Theme song is "Love Is A Beautiful Stranger." Maximum aspect ratio: 1.85-1.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program rates.

AD LINES: "An Intriguing Melodrama About Love, Action, And Shady Adventure On The French Riviera"; "He Told Her She Was His . . . And If Any Man Dared Take Her Away He Would Kill Him"; "She Had To Love Him Or No One."

STORY: In the winter of 1856, Sepoy troops, part of a brigade of the Bengal Army in India, are ordered to attack the fortress of rebels seeking the overthrow of the British. Too late it is learned that the men have entered a trap. Captain Rock Hudson disobeys orders of Colonel Torin Thatcher and leads troops to the assistance of the trapped men, succeeding in saving them and capturing the fort. Because he disobeyed orders, he is court-martialed and convicted with the lies told by cowardly fellow officer, Dan O'Herlihy. The sentence amounts to a reprimand, and he submits his resignation. Because the future looks bleak, he breaks with the woman he loves, Arlene Dahl, Thatcher's daughter. Later he learns that the natives plan an uprising, and he is offered command of the troops of Rajah Arnold Moss, rebel leader. Moss learns that he plans a double cross and orders him killed. He is only wounded, however, and cared for by native girl Ursula Theiss. He learns the revolt is in effect and at gutted headquarters he learns that Thatcher, Dahl, and O'Herlihy are safe and in hiding. They are captured, and Moss orders them executed, but the men Hudson once saved from the trap refuse to carry out the order and turn on Moss who is killed. O'Herlihy is also killed. Before he dies, he confesses he lied about Hudson.

X-RAY: There's a goodly amount of action, a fairly interesting story, average performances, and okeh direction to be found in this entry for the program. The use of color by Technicolor proves of assistance. Perhaps a little selling can insure better than average returns, with Hudson a seemingly more valuable property following his appearance in "Magnificent Obsession." The screen play is by Richard Alan Simmons based on the novel, "Bengal Tiger," by Hall Hunter with the adaptation by Helen I. Miller.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program rates.

AD LINES: "The 'Bengal Brigade' Crushes A Revolt In India"; "Action . . . Thrills . . . Romance In Mysterious India"; "He Lost His Job And The Woman He Loved Because He Fought For The 'Bengal Brigade'."

Ricochet Romance (504) COMEDY

80M.

ESTIMATE: For the lower half.

CAST: Marjorie Main, Chill Wills, Pedro Gonzales-Gonzales, Alfonso Bedoya, Rudy Vallee, Ruth Hampton, Benay Venuta, Judith Ames, Darryl Hickman, Lee Aaker, Irene Ryan, Philip Tonge, Philip Chambers, Charles Watts, Marjorie Bennett. Produced by Robert Arthur and Richard Wilson; directed by Charles Lamont.

STORY: Chill Wills, owner of a guest ranch, is more concerned with perfecting his magic tricks. Therefore, guests and help come and go. Much of the work is done by his daughter, Judith Ames, and Mexicans Pedro Gonzales-Gonzales and Alfonso Bedoya. The latter pair bring food-loving Rudy Vallee, new cook Marjorie Main, and waitress Benny Venuta, who makes a play for Wills. To complicate things, guest Ruth Hampton makes a play for Ames' boy friend, neighbor Darryl Hickman. Main, not wanting to see Wills trapped, arranges with the help of the Mexicans to have Vallee and Venuta fall in love while Ames gets back Hickman. Main remains to cook at the ranch and even Wills is happy at the way things turn out.

X-RAY: This may best be suited for rural audiences, where the broad slapstick might be appreciated. The story, acting, direction, and production are fair. The story and screen play are by Kay Lenard. Music heard includes "Ricochet," "Las Altenitas," "Para Vigo Me Voy," and "Un Tequila." Maximum aspect ratio: 1.85-1.

TIP ON BIDDING: Low bracket.

AD LINES: "Fun On A Guest Ranch Loaded With Characters"; "She Was A Prize Cook . . . He Was A Prize Sucker"; "He Was More Interested In Magic Than In Romance Until The Right Gal Came Along."

FOREIGN

Operation Diplomat

MELODRAMA
64M.

(American Feature Attractions)
(English-made)

ESTIMATE: Below average English import.

CAST: Guy Rolfe, Lisa Daniely, Patricia Dainton, Sydney Tafler. Produced by Butcher's Film Service, Limited.

STORY: Guy Rolfe, British surgeon, is accosted on his way home from his London hospital by a nurse in an ambulance, who begs him to help a patient. As he steps into the windowless ambulance, he realizes he is being kidnapped. The ambulance finally arrives at an estate, where he meets a young doctor friend. The patient, who proves to be a missing Minister of Western Defense, is operated upon and his life saved. Immediately following the operation, however, Rolfe is drugged, awakes next morning sitting on a park bench. He goes to the police, but they can scarcely believe his story, so he sets out on his own. He finds the nurse, Lisa Daniely, but she disappears again. With the aid of his own nurse, Patricia Dainton, he catches up with Daniely, and she admits she has been working for a foreign agent, who kidnapped the Minister, but that she wants to get out of the deal. While she is trying to help Rolfe, she is shot and eventually dies in the hospital, murdered in bed by an enemy agent before she tells her entire story. There are several other murders and disappearances before the police help Rolfe clear up the entire matter.

X-RAY: This is strictly for the lower half. It has some elements of suspense, but is slow moving and confusing. The authentic London shots are murky and the photography is dark. No other credits are available.

AD LINES: "Blind Man's Buff With Death As A Diplomat!" "Death Carried The Briefcase . . . Of International Espionage And Murder"; "Diplomacy Outwits A Gang Of International Murderers."

MISCELLANEOUS

Jamboree

DOCUMENTARY
54M.

(Exploitation Productions, Inc.)
(Color)

ESTIMATE: Value is limited by Boy Scout tieup possibilities.

CAST: Boy Scouts and visiting film stars. Produced by GM Productions.

STORY: Boy Scouts, 50,000 strong, from all over the world save their pennies for the 1953 Boy Scout Jamboree at Irvine Ranch, Cal. Their daily activities, recreation, eating habits, etc., are chronicled, punctuated by appearances of a host of Hollywood stars and an address by President Eisenhower.

X-RAY: A faithful account of the Boy Scout Jamboree of 1953, this shows boys from all over the world working and playing together. The color is uneven in spots, and the appearances of Hollywood personalities are too fleeting to mean much. Where interest in Boy Scout activities is high, this can be exploited, but its value would seem to depend on such tieup possibilities.

AD LINES: "Democracy In Action At The Boy Scout Jamboree"; "Hollywood Stars And 50,000 Boy Scouts Guarantee A 'Jamboree' Of Entertainment."

Mystery Lake

NATURE DRAMA
60M.

(Lansburgh)
(Ansco Color)

ESTIMATE: Good nature study film for supporting fare.

CAST: George Fenneman, Gloria McGough, Bogue Bell, R. P. Alexander, Edgar Bergen. Produced and directed by Larry Lansburgh.

STORY: Scientist Edgar Bergen assigns naturalist George Fenneman on a field trip to Reelfoot Lake, Tenn., to study and photograph wild life in this sanctuary. Fenneman meets Gloria McGough, country girl, who knows more about nature and the birds and animals in the swampy lake sanctuary from first-hand observation than Fenneman does from books. She joins him on many trips and their association leads to love. Fenneman finally persuades her to guide him to spot inhabited by egrets, blue herons, and other rare birds in trees high above ground occupied by demented hermit Bogue Bell, who has forbidden access. The hermit chases them and smashes up their boat, but the couple manage to wade through the swamps and its dangers such as snakes, deep water holes, etc., to the lake. Fenneman takes off with his films, but it is understood he will return to McGough.

X-RAY: This nature study has the slightest thread of story to hold it together, which may or may not be an asset since the study of wild life far exceeds everything else. The denizens of the region are filmed as they pursue their daily life and caught by excellent camera work by Floyd Crosby, Karl Maslowski, and W. W. Goodpaster. Woodchucks, swimming rabbits, raccoons, spadefoot toads, snakes, etc., are fascinatingly shown as well as some shots of a water moccasin attacking a salamander. The highlight comes, however, in the beauty of the egrets, herons, etc., in their lofty nests high in the trees above the swamps. The screen play is by Rosalie and John Bedrere, from an original by Janet Lansburgh.

AD LINES: "Nature As It Is"; "A Fascinating Nature Story"; "An Absorbing Study Of Wild Life In Gorgeous Color."

TWO REEL

Ballet

ROMANTIC YOUTH. Joseph Burstyn. 15m. With Colette Marchand and Milorad Miskovitch in the leading dance roles, this ballet with choreography by Colette Marchand and music by Jacques Bazire is concerned with a lonely shop clerk who dreams that the figure he is draping comes to life. Marchand, as the dream image, comes to him as romance, seductress, and the spirit of youth and each time she eludes him. Finally he goes back to work and discovers the incarnation of his dream image in his assistant. Some sketchy modern settings dress up the background on this ballet piece that should be a fair addition to the programs at art houses. FAIR.

Comedy

BROTHER KNOWS BEST. RKO—Edgar Kennedy Reissues. 17m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of February, 1948, it was said: "Edgar Kennedy's brother-in-law, Jack Rice, decides to get married, and approaches Kennedy for a loan. Rice is promised $1,000 by Kennedy if he will match it. Rice pawns a bracelet owned by Kennedy's wife and Kennedy is forced to cough up the $1,000. This leads to complications as the check is no good, and Kennedy's boss cashes it. Everything ends up okeh as the money is replaced. FAIR." (53505).

I'LL TAKE MILK. RKO—Leon Errol Re-releases. 18m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of August, 1946, it was said: "Leon Errol is awakened by a blonde who tells him he stole a necklace from the hostess at the party he attended the night before. He is about to give the necklace to the girl when his wife arrives, and demands an explanation. He tells her he bought it for her, but she gives it to her cousin, who is staying at the Errol house with her fiancé. That night Errol has trouble, but finally gives the necklace to the blonde, who turns out to be a jewel thief. GOOD." (53705).

MIND OVER MOUSE. RKO—Edgar Kennedy Reissues. 17m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of January, 1948, it was said: "When Edgar Kennedy discovers a mouse in his kitchen, he spares nothing in his efforts to catch it. His mother-in-law thinks he has lost his mind, and summons the police. A detective arrives while Kennedy's wife is next door borrowing a cat, and while Kennedy is plastering up the damaged wall. At his mother-in-law and brother-in-law's urging, the police officer has Kennedy rip out the wall in an attempt to find the body. She turns up, and he replasters the wall. The cat seems to meow from within the wall, so he rips it out again only to have his brother-in-law show up with the cat in his arms. FAIR." (53504).

ROLLING DOWN TO RENO. Columbia—Comedy Favorite Re-releases. 16½m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of October, 1947, it was said: "Newscaster Harry Von Zell threatens to reveal a gangster around town as a character with eight murders to his credit. One of the mobsters threatens Von Zell and he boards a train Reno-bound to get a rest and keep his health. He takes along his parrot. On the train, he meets the wife of the racketeer who is Reno-bound to get a divorce. The crook manages to catch the train and make life miserable for Von Zell by attempting to kill him for his threatened expose, and also for imaginary love making with his wife. Von Zell winds up a hero, and is given a raise. GOOD." (7432).

TWIN HUSBANDS. RKO—Leon Errol Re-releases. 18m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of June, 1946, it was said: "While Leon Errol goes to Boston on a business trip, his wife goes to a beauty parlor, and acquires some glamour. Meanwhile, Errol's twin brother comes into town, and because he has never met Errol's wife, is stopping at a hotel. As the wife is leaving the beauty parlor, she runs into the twin. Believing it is her husband, who doesn't recognize her, she flirts with him, and accepts an invitation to his apartment. The fun begins when Errol comes home, and is threatened with a divorce action, but all ends well when his wife realizes her mistake. FAIR." (53704).

WEDDING BELLE. Columbia—Comedy Favorite Re-releases. 17m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of November, 1947, it was said: "Dick Lane, recently married, is scared when one of his old girl friends shows up. Lane enlists the aid of his side-kick, Gus Schilling, and pretends he is dying in order to scare the girl away. The girl decides to pitch in and help Lane get well, to the dismay of Lane. When his wife arrives on the scene, however, things really reach a high pitch. FAIR." (7431).

Color Travel

IN FOURTEEN HUNDRED NINETY-TWO. Warners—Specials. 17m. The West Indies, the first pieces of land spied by Columbus on his voyage, are viewed here as they are today. Shown is the city of Trujillo, the oldest in the New World and the modern capital of Puerto Rico, San Juan. The ancient fortress of El Morro, noted from pirate days stands as a reminder of the past on the tip of the island of San Juan. Queen Elizabeth on her recent world tour stopped off at Jamaica, the first time a reigning monarch visited the island. Other islands and tourist attractions in the Caribbean area are also seen. This is in WarnerColor. GOOD. (2002).

ONE REEL

Color Cartoons

A HUNTING WE WON'T GO. Columbia Color Favorite Reissues. 7½m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of July, 1943, it was first said of this reissue: "The crow is on a fox hunt. The fox is on a crow hunt. They both meet. Each is unaware of the other's identity, and when they find it out, pandemonium breaks loose. Finally, the crow is cornered, and he begs the fox to shoot him. After due pity, the fox does, and is he surprised. GOOD." (7603).

BY WORD OF MOUSE. Warners—Merrie Melodies. 7m. Hans, a foreign mouse on a visit to America meets his American cousin at shipside. Confused by the hubub of activity Hans asks for an explanation and a professor mouse tries to explain the American way of life. Constant interruptions by Sylvester, the cat, makes the lessons difficult with the intruder is done away with. When Hans returns to the old country he in turn explains the American way to his brothers and sisters. FAIR. (2703).

GOO GOO GOLIATH. Warners—Merrie Melodies. 7m. An intoxicated stork accidentally delivers a baby marked for Mr. and Mrs. Giant at the top of the beanstalk to a normal sized pair of parents. The baby soon causes havoc when he begins to grow a little. Meanwhile the Giant couple have to deal with a comparably microbe sized baby. The error is discovered and the stork exchanges the children to the relief of both parents. GOOD. (2702).

Comedy

SO YOU'RE TAKING IN A ROOMER. Warners—Joe McDoakes Comedies. 10m. When Joe McDoakes finds that his budget does not balance he is persuaded to take in a roomer. However, the first occupant of the vacant room is a beautiful girl whom Joe's wife soon dispossesses. When the situation is reversed Joe asks the handsome boarder to leave. Finally the room is rented to Marvin, the next door neighbor, who wants to set up a potato business. McDoakes accepts part share in the business, not knowing that it is really a bookie establishment in disguise. When the gangsters crack down on the establishment to collect their winnings, Marvin skips town leaving Joe full ownership of the business and its troubles. FAIR. (2401).

Musical

GENE KRUPA AND ORCHESTRA. Columbia—Thrills Of Music Reissues. 10m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of July, 1948, it was said: "Disc jockey Fred Robbins provides the chatter as each platter gives forth some of drum-beater Gene Krupa's rhythm. Among numbers heard are 'Bop Boogie,' 'Sabre Dance,' and 'Disc Jockey Jump.' Vocalist Dolores Hawkins provides the words. FAIR." (7952).

Color Novelty

THE STORY OF LIGHT. Al O. Bondy. 9m. Telling in color of man's efforts to defeat darkness this shows through the medium of puppet figures the story of light from cave man days, through ancient Egyptian civilization, the middle ages, up to the present day. Some fine color photography, an original musical score, and top rate technical execution make this a worthy addition to the program. The General Electric short is available without charge and has no commercial plugs. EXCELLENT.

Novelty

KEEP YOUNG. MGM—Pete Smith Specialties. 9m. Dave O'Brien this time believes that he is beginning to show his age. He determines to stop the battle of the bulge at the beltline with some gymnastics. However, out of trim for years the first attempts are not easy and he ends up with a good many aches and pains while his frame remains as flabby as ever. FAIR.

THIS MECHANICAL AGE. Warners—Varieties. 10m. A monument marks the spot at Kitty Hawk where Wilbur and Orville Wright first proved that mechanical flight was possible. However, here we are given a survey of other unsuccessful attempts at flight. Humorously depicted these also-rans include "Parasol Plane," the "beer barrel" plane, "Bat wing Special" and a variety of other outlandish machines that hopeful inventors envisioned would take them off the ground like a bird. GOOD. (2601).

Color Sports

HATTERAS HONKERS. Warners—Sports Parade. 10m. The storm swept islands of Cape Hatteras off the North Carolina coast is a seemingly barren spot of land. But the people there live a happy life retaining much of their ancient traditions and colonial speech patterns. Untouched by the modern civilization the people carry on their major industry, fishing, as their fathers before them had. A wealth of fish in the surrounding waters make this a popular vacation land for surf casting sportsmen. FAIR. (2502).

Color Travel

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK AND WATERTON LAKES. MGM—Fitzpatrick Traveltalk Reissues. 9m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of April, 1942, it was said of this reissue: "Exquisitely beautiful Technicolor visit to the above mentioned natural beauty spot shows some of the many glaciers, numberless lakes, Blackfoot Indians, tourists, squirrels, gorgeous Swiss patterned chalets, etc. It ends with a friendly tribute anent the unguarded U.S.-Canadian border. GOOD." (T-614).

PICTURESQUE PATZCAURO. MGM—Fitzpatrick Traveltalk Reissue. 9m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of June, 1942, it was said of this reissue: "A visit to this quaint Mexican locale brings views of the natives, their local industries, dances, etc. It makes for a colorful picturization of a portion of one of our good neighbors. GOOD." (T-613).

SUGGESTION FROM OHIO

A SUGGESTION in a recent bulletin of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio might be found amusing by exhibitors who never know where their next picture is coming from in this type of market.

The bulletin read as follows:

"In those theatres which play pictures mostly on percentage, it's tough to get a picture for the week before Christmas. On the other hand, every distributor has a top Christmas release he wants to get into your theatres. It has been suggested that the company who gives you the picture you want in the week before Christmas should be given the Christmas playdate. No one comes to dissipate good product, but the larger theatres must keep their doors open."

We doubt whether the product situation is any different in Ohio than elsewhere, but the way things stand now, a lot of exhibitors are hardly in a position to start being selective on a picture for Christmas Week.

There is another thought here, too, that in many areas Christmas Week is not one of the best of the year, and the good grosses don't start coming in until just before the New Year's holiday.

ON COOPERATIVE ADVERTISING

MUCH has been said from time to time about the failure of some exhibitors to sell their pictures in a more comprehensive manner. This always makes interesting reading, but it does not necessarily reflect the facts.

As it stands, the distributor is often as much at fault or even more to blame than the exhibitor.

Let us examine one example. A picture is booked with a cooperative campaign, but the distributor insists that the extra cooperative advertising be placed in newspapers with a big advance ad and on TV and/or radio. The exploitation man, instead of being able to use the money as best befits the situation, finds that his hands are tied by the home office when it comes to discussing a real campaign. The result finds a full page or a quarter page being used, but the next day the ad drops down to a directory size.

Regardless of how the exhibitor feels, the distributor and exploitation man are of the opinion that they did everything possible to get a big opening. They are pretty much in the same category as an advance man for a circus. He sees that the paper gets up, that the newspaper ads are placed, that the readers and passes are distributed, and then leaves. He did his job, but beyond that he has no interest.

We do not feel that cooperative advertising as illustrated above is real cooperative advertising. Every situation is different and what may fit in one town may not in the other. One theatre may find that its best values come from spending money on an attractive special front or a special truck, but the home office policy might overlook this because of the fact that the home office interest leans toward the other forms of merchandising.

In the same vein, exhibitors, from time to time, find fault with the press books, pointing out that there have been few changes in style in years.

The point we are trying to make is that with the distributor asking for extended playing time and demanding and getting such high terms, he should be a little more flexible in his thinking.

There isn't an exhibitor in the country who wouldn't like to play pictures as long as possible if they hold up, but in order to make them hold up, there will have to be revisions in the merchandising.

So who is to blame? In addition, there are not enough exploitation men available to cover all key towns, a fact that should be reconsidered.

SLOW REPORTS

ONE OF THE constant complaints of distributors is that many exhibitors are slow in sending in their boxoffice statements when they play pictures on percentage.

This is an obligation on the part of the theatreman provided for in all contracts, and some of the excuses heard as to why these reports are not mailed promptly are difficult to swallow.

One would think that with so many suits filed against exhibitors in the matter of underreporting when playing films on percentage, they would mail their boxoffice statements promptly.

It is no secret that some distributors have been known to order an audit of exhibitors' books when accounts repeatedly fail to send in boxoffice statements on time.

Sometimes delays are unavoidable, but it would be difficult to justify lapses of a week or more.

NEW YORK By Mel Konecuff

United Artists' president Arthur Krim and vice-president Arnold Picker recently returned from a six-week tour of the Far East in connection with the 35th anniversary celebration, during which they met with company personnel, exhibitors, and government officials, and thanked them for the support extended the company during its crucial years, as well as the public through the press for appreciation and support.

KONECUFF

During their absence, the world-wide billings for the company came to seven millions, the best in UA history for any six-week period, which means that the last estimate of 40 millions in earnings for 1954 will have to be revised upwards.

Throughout the Far East, they said, picture business is encountering prosperity. In Manila, things got so good that one exhibitor took out his last five rows of seats to get in more standees. American films are tops, except for home-made product in certain countries.

In some situations, severe economic problems bring about delays in payment for the films, with export of currency restricted, but elsewhere internal pressures from filmmakers at home are in evidence. Still elsewhere, there is government interference. The MPEA is doing a fine job in these situations, according to the pair, and they paid tribute to that organization.

With regard to locally produced pictures, Krim reported that most of the producers would like to see them shown in the United States. UA is reducing their opposition by trying to distribute some of their product here as well as lending the services of the UA organization abroad wherever possible.

Rhoden Succeeds Skouras As National Theatres Head

HOLLYWOOD—The board of National Theatres unanimously elected Elmer C. Rhoden, 61, as president to succeed the late Charles P. Skouras. He will head-quarter in Los Angeles. Alam May was elected a member of the board.

Before he joined the Fox organization, Rhoden organized the Midwest Theatre Company, including 45 theatres in Kansas and Missouri, which he sold to Fox West Coast Theatres in 1929, being retained as division manager. He later took charge of all midwest houses as president, Fox Midwest Theatres, Inc. Rhoden is a veteran in the industry with 42 years of experience in exhibition and distribution. He is also a director, Motion Picture Association of Kansas City.

Columbia Income Rises

NEW YORK—Harry Cohn, president, Columbia Pictures, announced that the company's gross income has in the last 20 years "grown from $11,178,000 to over $80,000,000 in the fiscal year recently finished."

During the same period, it was said, the firm's net working capital has grown from approximately $4,800,000 to $37,696,190.

Gross income from rentals and sales of film for the fiscal year ended June 26, 1954, amounted to $80,209,238 as opposed to $60,273,881 for the previous year. Net earnings of $3,594,733 equalled $4.41 per share of common last year on the 757,843 shares of common outstanding. This compares to net profit of $942,385 and earnings of $0.99 per share the preceding year.

Also explored abroad was the possibility of co-production in some of the countries visited. Much enthusiasm was found during surveys of physical and financial setups which would insure speedy action should the right property come along.

The pair thought that more top American execs should visit abroad, that there should be a drive to reduce tax rates abroad and up admission prices, that the increase in new theatre construction was wonderful for the industry and encouraged the improvement of older existing houses, that CinemaScope was a big hit in the Far East, that the 16mm. market in which the company was interested was good in many spots.

PRODUCTION DEPARTMENT: Dick Powell was both host and guest of honor at a luncheon attended by trade press representatives and reported that he came east just to talk to us about his forthcoming film, "The Conqueror," the first he's ever produced.

Powell reported that he likes producing pictures. If "The Conqueror" is the success that he thinks it will be, then he will try his hand at a few others. As soon as the CinemaScope epic is ready for showing, he'd like to take it around

TOA Board Approves Production Financing

Favors United Action With National Allied, But Votes Against Move For Federal Regulation

CHICAGO—As expected, the industry problem uppermost in exhibitors' minds as Theatre Owners of America called its convention, combined with the TESMA-TEDA-TOA-IPA trade show, into session at the Conrad Hilton Hotel last week was the current product shortage.

The organization answered the challenge by adopting a resolution "to take necessary lawful action, either in the formation of a production finance company or otherwise, to the end that there shall be a substantial increase in the number of motion pictures produced and distributed."

The TOA leadership was left free to decide what form such action should take and Delegates authorized the collection of money for the plan. To supply initial funds, each member was asked to pledge "an amount equivalent at least to his current average film bills for one week's operation in each of his respective theatres." Members also pledged to "offer playing time" to films produced under the TOA-financed plan. Membership in the effort would be open to all exhibitors, whether TOA members or not.

The resolution was voted by the convention in the "conviction" that "the deplorable conditions" facing exhibition can only be relieved through production of an increased number of better pictures.

Alfred Starr, outgoing board chairman, emphasized that TOA is not going into the field of production, but would provide funds for independent production. Distribution of such features would not be through the majors.

The announcement brought response from James R. Grainger, who proposed a meeting between TOA officials and RKO executives on the subject of encouraging independent production. In a letter to newly elected TOA President E. D. Martin, Grainger stated, "... we at RKO would be interested in learning to what extent TOA was contemplating becoming financially interested in participating in financing independent production." Grainger pointed out that RKO has been participating in such financing for the past 18 months and that he and C. J. Tevlin, studio vice-president, would be interested in meeting in Hollywood with Martin or a TOA committee. A suggested time for the meeting was after Jan. 1.

Another convention highlight directly concerned with the product shortage was the report by Fred Schwartz, president, Distributors Corporation of America, that his company will produce and distribute nine features within the next three years including "Lelia," starring Olivia de Havilland, produced by Bernard Lubet; "I Am A Camera," starring Julie Harris, Shelley Winters, and Laurence Harvey, a Moulin production; "The Viking," to be filmed in Scandinavia; "The Way We Are," starring Joan Crawford, to be produced by

Trustees Are Named For TOA Product Fund

CHICAGO—TOA's board closed the business of the group's convention last week by approving plans to finance independent production through a new company. TOA members named to serve as trustees to receive subscription funds were L. S. Hamm, Sam Pinanski, John Rowley, and Myron Blank. One additional trustee will be named from outside TOA ranks. The resolution authorized TOA to lend $5,000 to the trustees to meet organizational expenses. Distribution through one of the established companies was not necessarily ruled out, it was reported.

E. D. Martin, new president, stated that the meeting asked by RKO head James R. Grainger would have to wait until TOA's new company is "off the ground."

The board also directed chairman Walter Reade, Jr., to suggest to Ben Marcus, National Allied president, the appointment of a joint committee to discuss Marcus' proposal that both groups support Allied's "declaration of emergency."

It was decided that TOA will furnish a room in the Sunday School of the Cathedral of St. Sophie, Los Angeles, as a memorial to Charles P. Skouras.

Robert Aldrich; "Finian's Rainbow," a feature cartoon; "The Survivors," to be produced by the Boulting Brothers; "Hunters Of The Deep," underwater adventure; an untitled Bella and Sam Spewack film; and "Long John Silver," produced by Joseph Kaufman, the first DCA release. Schwartz reported that $1,000,000 already has been subscribed by exhibitors for shares in DCA, and added that he was endeavoring to secure pledges for more money which may or may not be needed to carry out DCA plans.

Prior to the convention, the TOA board elected Martin, president, Martin Theatres of Georgia, Inc., Columbus, Ga., to succeed Walter Reade, Jr., as president. Reade was named board chairman, a post formerly held by Alfred Starr, Nashville, Tenn., who continues as chairman, executive committee. Samuel Pinanski, named honorary board chairman to succeed the

Holdovers Hold Own In Broadway First Runs

NEW YORK—With not a single new opening, business in the Broadway first-runs was holding up fairly well last weekend.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"A STAR IS BORN" (Warners). Paramount was heading toward $58,000 for the fourth week.

"A STAR IS BORN" (Warners). Victoria, playing day-and-date with the Paramount, reported $33,000 for the fourth week.

"BLACK WIDOW" (20th-Fox). Roxy claimed $27,642 for Wednesday through Sunday, with the second week down to $34,500.

"WHITE CHRISTMAS" (Paramount). Radio City Music Hall, with stage show, garnered $95,000 for Thursday through Sunday, with the fourth week expected to reach $140,000.

"SABRINA" (Paramount). Criterion anticipated the seventh week at $22,000.

"CARMEN JONES" (20th-Fox). Rivoli was sure to top $58,000 on the second week.

"THE BLACK KNIGHT" (Columbia). Globe was heading toward an $11,000 second week.

"SUDDENLY" (UA). Mayfair expected to hit $15,000 on the fifth week.

"ON THE WATERFRONT" (Columbia). Astor was due for $21,000 on the 15th week.

"BAREFOOT CONTESSA" (UA). Capitol expected sixth week to tally $30,000.

"BEAU BRUMMELL" (MGM). Loew's State was heading toward $14,000 on the third, and last, week.

late Charles P. Skouras, told the convention that problems besetting exhibition make it necessary for all members of TOA to "stick together" and "work in unison." The number of vice-presidents was increased from seven to eight. Reelected were A. Julian Brylawski, Roy Cooper, Pat McGee, Myron Blank, Albert M. Pickus, and John Rowley, and newcomers are George G. Kerasotes, Springfield, Ill., and J. J. Rosenfield, Spokane, Wash. Robert R. Livingston and Si H. Fabian were reelected as secretary and treasurer, and Herman M. Levy continues as general counsel. Named to the executive committee were Carl E. Anderson, Art Adamson, Tom Bloomer, Jack Braunagel, James S. Carbery, C. E. Cook, Horace Denning, Edward L. Fabian, Nathan Greer, M. A. Lightman, Jr., Mack Jackson, R. M. Kennedy, Arthur H. Lockwood, Morris Loewenstein, Roy Martin, Jr., Martin J. Mullin, J. J. O'Leary, A. Fuller Sams, Jr., Jay Solomon, Morton Thalhimer, David Wallerstein, R. B. Wilby, and Nat Williams. The board elected Mitchell Wolfson as chairman, finance committee, and voted him the authority to name from three to five members to serve with him.

Wolfson issued TOA's statement of opposition to National Allied's plan to seek

TESMA, TEDA, And IPA Shows Draw Record Number Of Exhibs

CHICAGO—While delegates to the TOA convention were convening last week, TESMA, TEDA, and IPA, the other organizations participating in the huge Conrad Hilton Hotel trade show, were attending to their business.

The International Popcorn Association, participating for the first time, elected Bert Nathan, Theatre Popcorn Vending Company, Brooklyn, to the presidency by a unanimous vote. Nathan, who had served as first vice-president, succeeds J. J. Fitzgibbons, Jr., who becomes board chairman.

Newly elected directors include Robert Pelton, Pelton Popcorn Company, Bloomdale, O., processors; Allen W. Adams, Adams Corporation, manufacturers and wholesalers; Nathan Buchman, American Theatre Supply Corporation, theatres; H. H. Miller, Caramel Crisp Shop, Madison Wis., retail popcorn shops; Dave C. Evans, Gold Medal Products, Cincinnati, jobber-distributors; A. J. Villiesse, Villiesse Sales Company, Wilmette, Ill., brokers; and Rex Yocum, Seedboro Equipment Company, Chicago, equipment manufacturers. A committee was formed to select the "Popcorn Man of the Year" for 1955, who will receive a Golden Ear of Corn.

TESMA directors discussed the possibility of expanding the trade show to include both Allied and TOA, with the trade show in operation for six days and one exhibitor organization meeting the first three days and the other meeting the last three. Washington was named as a possible site for next year's show, but sentiment seemed to favor holding it again at the Conrad Hilton. The importance of the trade show was well demonstrated during the convention by the crowds of exhibitors.

TESMA elected Fred J. Wenzel, Wenzel Projector Corporation, and M. H. Stevens, Bausch and Lomb Optical Company, as directors to fill the unexpired terms of Bob Engel, no longer in the field, and Harry Strong, Strong Electric Company, who resigned because of ill health.

Skouras Will Probated

LOS ANGELES—The will of Charles P. Skouras, National Theatres president, who died last fortnight, was filed for probate in the Superior Court last week. The estate is listed as being in excess of $10,000.

By terms of the will a trust is created in his community property interest in certain securities, with the income to be payable to his widow, Mrs. Florence L. Skouras for life. Upon her death, the trust property will go to his three surviving children, Mrs. Jack Jungmeyer, Mrs. Margaret L. Curti, and Charles P. Skouras Jr. The balance of the estate was left to his wife.

The son, Charles P., Jr., a brother, George, president, United Artists Theatres; and two friends, Michael Rosenberg, vice-president, Pacific Drive-In Theatres, and John B. Bertero, vice-president, National Theatres, Inc., were named as executors of the will and as trustees of the trust.

Reelected for another three-year term as directors were Jack Nolan, National Carbon Company; Jack O'Brien, RCA; and Erwin Wagner, Wagner Sign Company.

TEDA engaged in a heated discussion on the forthcoming reduction in price of Bausch and Lomb's smaller anamorphic lenses, indicating that a larger discount than presently contemplated by the optical company would allow equipment dealers to make adjustments of their own with future buyers.

TEDA members said that many will be caught with stock on hand, purchased at higher prices, and they believe that there will be unfavorable reactions from customers who recently bought lenses at the higher price.

Ray C. Colvin, TEDA executive director, stated that the organization's public relations program will be broadened in the coming year to include about 60 talks before various civic groups on the importance of the theatre to the community. The board elected Henry Sorenson, Modern Theatre Supply Company, Dallas, and Kenneth R. Douglas, Jr., Capitol Theatre Supply Company, Boston, to three-year terms. They succeed Homer Tegtmeier, B. F. Shearer Company, San Francisco, and S. F. Burns, Modern Theatre Equipment, Seattle.

North Central Exhibs Hear TOA Position

MINNEAPOLIS—Top TOA officials met last fortnight prior to the opening of the exhibitor association's annual convention in Chicago with more than 75 independent and circuit exhibitors from Minnesota, the Dakotas, and upper Wisconsin and explained TOA's approach to current industry problems.

Harold Field, Pioneer Theatres, and E. R. Ruben, Welworth Theatres, sponsored the meeting, and speakers included Walter Reade, Jr., TOA president; Herman M. Levy, executive counsel; Alfred Starr, board chairman; George Kerasotes, Illinois; and Roy Cooper, San Francisco. No concrete steps were taken to form a TOA unit in the North Central area. Kerasotes stated that film companies, in an effort to improve exhibitor-distributor relations, should allow branch and district managers to exercise greater responsibility, since they are close to local problems and understand the situations confronting theatre owners in various locales.

Many attending exhibitors are members of North Central Allied, and the question was raised as to why the two national organizations have not or do not merge. Reade insisted that he has favored such a merger all along.

Ruben stated that he favored formation of regional units in the Minneapolis trade area patterned on the Illinois UTO plan, with affiliation in a national organization, preferably TOA, whose greater size gave it increased bargaining power.

federal control of distribution, and said that the plan invites "regimentation," and expressed his opposition to "the loss of the American concept of a free market which this bill proposes . . ." The need for increased production, Wolfson asserted, could only be satisfied if producers and distributors have the profit incentive "to risk making pictures of unusual box-office value." Wolfson agreed that exhibitors must fight for fair prices and policies, but not through the medium of government regulation. He said, "We want more pictures, not more policies. We should see to that end in unity and not force prices up by trying to out-bid each other."

Another convention speaker who raised his voice in opposition to government regulation and also made a strong pitch in favor of arbitration of disputes was Al Lichtman, 20th-Fox director of distribution. Recent meetings, Lichtman said, had resulted in the ironing out of all obstacles standing in the way of arbitration but one, and he expressed the belief that it also would be overcome soon. Arbitration, Lichtman asserted, would give exhibitors an easy, inexpensive tribunal before which to air their grievances. Answering questions from the floor, Lichtman said he is always willing to arbitrate with an exhibitor, even without a formal plan; salesmen are always willing to conciliate; steps are being taken to increase the volume of CinemaScope prints, both optical and magnetic; the company maintains and has always maintained a flexible sales policy depending upon the situation; no CinemaScope pictures will be made available in 2-D versions; and Darryl F. Zanuck, 20th-Fox production chief, has promised to provide him with 20 pictures a year if it could be done and the talent is available.

Lichtman also reported on his company's technical progress, stating that the goal of 20th-Fox engineers in the field of theatre television is Eidophor in color on screens "in a size similar to CinemaScope." He stressed the importance of effecting a producing organization to provide TV programming. Turning to CinemaScope, Lichtman declared that 20th-Fox in 1955 hoped to have "startling improvements" in camera techniques and equipment, and urged the adoption of magnetic stereophonic sound wherever possible.

Despite the general air of cooperation, however, there was convention talk which indicated that TOA, too, was considering taking certain problems to the government, and that TOA was prepared to ask the Justice Department to review results of the consent decrees in the paramount case designed to aid exhibitors in order to determine who in the industry is reaping the benefit, and to ask for a modification of the decrees to permit all divorced theatre affiliates of production-distribution firms to engage in the production of films.

In one of the more militant convention sessions, small town members protested current distributor practices, and gave particular attention to clearances and film rentals, adding that the key to the whole situation was sufficient product. Exhibitors proposed a variety of methods of attacking the problem, even a product boycott against some distributors. Starr led the session, and outgoing President Reade told the throng that "we will do anything you ask" to the limits of legality in obtaining relief.

The necessity for exhibitor unity was stressed, and it was recommended that Allied and TOA set up a joint committee to bring about trade practice reforms. The board was authorized by the membership to take immediate action on such issues as standardization of equipment, unification of exhibitors, high amusement advertising rates in newspapers, distribution of product to army theatres before commercial theatres, and the frequent lack of trailers for current releases. It was emphasized that distribution was in a new era of prosperity while exhibition was threatened with disaster. The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Metropolitan District of Columbia distributed a resolution demanding that the board take action in regard to clearance, print shortages, film rentals, and other issues and vote in favor of any measures to remedy unfair practices.

Other convention business included approval of a resolution by Fabian that the industry as a whole hold a one-day collection in a given week to aid the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital. Hospital President Abe Montague appealed for continued support of the hospital.

The TOA board decided to make a new effort to obtain more favorable liability rates, discussing the possibility of obtaining coverage on a per-seat rather than a per-admission basis. It was felt that improved safety measures should bring about a reduction in theatre insurance rates. The board also voted to reactivate the TOA insurance committee to obtain data on the problem.

Starr predicted that the next TOA convention would see a "big representation" of foreign exhibitors since problems confronting American and British theatre-men were similar and commented on a cabled message from Kenneth Winckles, joint assistant managing director, J. Arthur Rank Organization, who expressed regret at not being able to attend this year's conclave. Starr also urged the use of more foreign pictures in the American market, both as an answer to the product shortage and a way to win back the special audience.

Martin and Kerasotes delivered the organization and membership report, urging that the board continue the employment of George Gaughan as field representative in the east, middle west, and south. The engagement of a second such representative in the west and far west was recommended. Such a representative could attempt to form TOA units where none exist. The report pointed to Gaughan's accomplishments with the Tennessee TOA, the ITO of Arkansas, and the UTO of Illinois.

Levy, general counsel, reported that the board had approved a motion to continue its opposition to subscription TV in "every legal way available to it," cooperating with the exhibitors' committee headed by Starr and Trueman Rembusch of Allied. The board also authorized the creation of a fitting memorial to the late Charles Skouras.

Berger, Civic Leaders Tour RFE Installations

NEW YORK—Benjamin Berger, Minneapolis exhibitor and president, Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Minnesota, North Dakota, and South Dakota, and Elizabeth McStea, board member, National Board of Review, represented the industry in the delegation of 72 civic leaders who inspected Radio Free Europe's installations last fortnight.

Berger joined the special flight in his capacity as Minnesota co-chairman, Crusade for Freedom. The tour of labor leaders, businessmen, religious leaders, clubwomen, and others, as well as Crusade state chairmen, kicked off the 1955 campaign on behalf of RFE.

Berger and other members of the party personally participated in the project by setting aloft balloons carrying messages from west to east. They viewed a monitoring plant where all Soviet broadcasts are taped so that lies can immediately be refuted, and visited Berlin where the marked difference between east and west is most apparent.

The Minnesota theatreman broadcast directly to the Red zone from RFE's Munich station.

COMPO Ad Warns Of Taxes

NEW YORK—The 30th in the series of Council of Motion Picture Organizations ads in Editor and Publisher, which appeared last week, called attention to the threat of new municipal admission taxes and pointed out to editors a few aspects of such taxes that may not have occurred to them.

"When Congress reduced the 20 per cent federal admission tax last spring it took great care," the ad says, "to make it known why this relief was being voted."

A committee consisting of L. S. Hamm, San Francisco; Elmer Rhoden, Kansas City; and Levy was named to formulate the plans.

Another important phase was a theatre equipment and new processes forum where the industry's technical future was described. Earl I. Sponable discussed forthcoming advances in CinemaScope, and Paramount's Loren Ryder discussed the three types of prints available through VistaVision, standard, anamorphic, and double-frame horizontal. Ryder stated that VV's aim was to allow both large and small theatres to project the best picture possible and that Paramount was not against any system. RCA's Jack O'Brien urged the industry to move along "some avenue of direction" in the new developments. He did not mention Allied by name, but he referred critically to that organization's plan to enter the field of manufacturing equipment.

Other speakers were Leonard Satz, Raytone Screen Company; A. E. Neumer, Bausch and Lomb Optical Company; and A. J. Hatch, Strong Electric Corporation. Panel members were Fred C. Matthews, TESMA; Nash Weil, TEDA; A. E. Meyer, International Projector Corporation; Louis E. Pope, Fox Midwest; Edwin Gage, Walter Reade Theatres; Joseph Zaro, Bijou Amusement Company; E. J. Nelson, Bal-

Westrex Managers Meet

NEW YORK—Westrex Corporation's subsidiary company recording managers from Australia, England, France, and Japan were last week attending a conference on new recording equipment and techniques. This conference has been convened by R. O. Strock, Westrex Corporation's commercial recording engineer. The program includes visits to studios in the New York area, and this week, all conferees will go to Hollywood to visit the important studios and to inspect Westrex Corporation's Hollywood division and laboratories.

Those in attendance at this technical conference include J. Y. Abe, director and assistant manager, and K. Kagara, recording engineer, Westrex Company, Orient, Tokyo; J. A. Todd, recording manager, Westrex Company, Ltd., London; W. E. Kollmyer, manager, Westrex Australia Ptl., Ltd., Sydney; R. Senechal, head of recording department, Westrex Company, France-Belgium, Paris; and R. W. Wight, manager, Westrex Corporation's Hollywood division.

Industry Stock Notes

WASHINGTON—The Securities and Exchange Commission reported last week that stock transactions by corporation officers and directors from Sept. 10 to Oct. 11 included Associated Motion Pictures, Inc., Douglas T. Yates acquired 149 shares; Columbia, A. Montague sold 200 shares; National Theatres, Peter Colefax disposed of 500 shares, and acquisitions included Alan May, 100; E. C. Rhoden holding companies, 1,000; Frank H. Rick- etson, Jr., 9,000; and Graham I. Sterling, 200.

Other acquisitions included RKO Theatres, E. W. Engstrom, 100 shares; Republic, Richard W. Altschuler, 500 shares; Stanley Warner, Nathan Lapkin, 11,241 shares; Warners, Albert Warner Trust, 4,500 shares, and Jack Warner trust, 5,000.

lantyne Company; John R. Miles, Projection Optics; F. C. Dickely, Altec Service Corporation; and Robert Gottschalk, Pan-avision. Alex Harrison, 20th-Fox western sales manager, served as forum moderator during the session.

Another form for operators of drive-ins came to the conclusion that screens provide the biggest drive-in problem raised by the new processes. It was conducted by Jack Braunagel and William T. Powell, co-chairmen, TOA drive-in committee. Most concern was over the correct size of outdoor screens for best results. Other problems as they relate to outdoor theatres which were discussed included proper screen curve and tilt; dust control; insect control; concessions; and playground and other equipment.

The convention also heard a plan calling on major studios to give "further cooperation" to show on TV half-hour films promoting motion picture product. The plan was proposed by Bruce Balaban, who ran off sample footage at a luncheon sponsored by Radiant Manufacturing Corporation, Nestle Company, Charles E. Hires Company, RCA, Motiograph, and National Theatre Supply. Balaban said the films would be distributed to local TV stations for the advertising of screen product and pointed out that sponsorship would eliminate cost to the industry.

U-I Shifts Executives As Operations Expand

NEW YORK—As a further step in integrating executive and creative functions, Edward Muhl, U-I vice-president in charge of production, last week announced a number of important promotions and the creation of a new studio executive committee to keep pace with expanding operations on the lot.

The new executive group, which will operate directly under Muhl, is composed of James Pratt, executive manager of the studio; Morris Davis, business manager; Robert Palmer, talent executive; Ray Crossett, scenario and story editor; Morris Weiner, in charge of industry relations; George Douglas manager of operations; and Ernest Nims, editorial executive.

The realignment, said Muhl, is designed to get the maximum production benefits from the creative, policy-making and management experience of executives.

In a realignment of executive duties, George Douglas, studio treasurer, is advanced to a newly-created post of manager of operations, and Charles Stineford, assistant business manager, takes over the position of studio treasurer. Morris Weiner moves up from his post as studio manager to that of head of industry relations.

At the same time, Muhl has also streamlined the studio operating committee to serve as an arm of the executive group on an operational level. As manager of operations, Douglas will now also serve

N. Y. Exhibs Appeal Decision In Tax Case

NEW YORK—Loew's Theatres attorney Thomas Bress announced last week that counsel for the city's exhibitors were scheduled to file briefs appealing the decision by Supreme Court Justice Percy D. Stoddart in the current suit against the city's five per cent amusement tax. The appeal, scheduled to be filed in the Appellate Division, Second Part, Brooklyn, contends that the tax is in excess of the five per cent ceiling imposed by the state enabling act and contradictory to a prior provision of the Administrative Code.

Justice Stoddart's decision upheld the motion for summary judgment of Stanley Buchsbaum, counsel for the city, but preserved a prior injunction order of Supreme Court Justice Nicholas M. Pette until final decision on the appeal.

as chairman of the operations committee. Others on this committee are Gilbert Kurland, production manager; Emmett Ward, plant manager; Percy Guth, post-production manager; Joseph Dubin, chief studio counsel; George Bole, commercial and short subjects manager; William Batliner, assistant to Douglas as operations manager; Charles Stineford, new studio treasurer; Ivan Betts, studio controller; Jack Bauer, casting director; Sam Israel, studio publicity director; and Clark Ramsay, executive assistant to David Lipton, vice-president.

Dyckman Fights Anti-Trust Decision

NEW YORK—William Gold, attorney for the New Dyckman Theatre Corporation, last week filed a writ of mandamus in the Circuit Court of Appeals, seeking to reverse the ruling of the Federal District Court in which Justice Dawson called upon the plaintiff to "particularize" his anti-trust complaints and set the "bounds of permissible discovery." The ruling was considered precedential.

The New Dyckman, in the appeal, asked the higher court to reinstate the complaint, which Justice Dawson declared to be largely irrelevant in its original form. The appeal contends that Justice Dawson limited the area of conspiracy that could be charged to the film companies, arguing that by doing this the court refused jurisdiction of the complaint. It is the plaintiff's position that the Paramount case conspiracy has continued despite the consent decree and that the plaintiff need not be limited to charges on or after October, 1953, when the New Dyckman opened.

Listed as defendants in the $324,000 suit were RKO, RKO Theatres, Warners, Stanley Warner, 20th-Fox, and U-I.

Goldwyn Studios To Be Sold

HOLLYWOOD—Counsel for both Samuel Goldwyn and Mary Pickford, who jointly own the Goldwyn studios, announced last week that agreements are being worked out which should bring about the sale of the studio some time this month.

Columbia Sets Fund For Inde Production

NEW YORK—Recognizing the need of exhibitors for a greater supply of top-bracket films, Columbia announced last week the allocation of $10,000,000 to be devoted exclusively to the financing of independent production in this country and elsewhere in the world.

"We are aware that the so-called product shortage has been and will continue to be the industry's prime problem," Harry Cohn, president, said. "I can think of no better way to alleviate the situation than to provide a large sum of money for the support of new film projects. Our own studio will continue to deliver its full program of company-made pictures. We are planning an even greater number of top-quality films than in the past. But we intend to supplement the studio's program with a lineup of the best independently-made films we can attract."

Announcement of the creation of the new $10,000,000 facility is expected by Columbia to prove a strong stimulus to independent producers here and abroad. Several important deals were said to be currently under discussion at Columbia.

Montague To Address Allied

CHICAGO—At a board meeting of Allied Theatres of Illinois last week, Jack Kirsch, president, announced that Abe Montague, general sales manager, Columbia, has accepted an invitation to address the membership on Nov. 17.

AB-PT's Hyman Asks Distribution To End Seasonal Release System

NEW YORK—Edward L. Hyman, vice-president, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, last week called on distributors to end their policy of making pictures available for holiday seasons and leaving "horrible gaps" as far as quality product is concerned at other times.

Hyman added that a study of films available between Thanksgiving and Christmas revealed "practically nothing of quality," but that there are so many quality productions available for Christmas dates that "there just is not enough room for all . . . with the result that some of them will just have to play at a later date."

The AB-PT executive has long been advising an even distribution of quality product without regard for the seasons. The current policy of distribution, he contended, caused patrons to become disillusioned with motion picture entertainment, a dangerous situation in the face of increased public interest in motion pictures brought about by recent technical advances and better product.

The solution to the problem, Hyman said, is cooperation between exhibitor and distributor. He opined that the distributor who first goes along with a proposal of even distribution throughout the year will "catch his competitors flat-footed since he will have practically no competition with his picture being the sole quality attraction being shown." A first-run showing at such a time, he added, would make a quality film available to sub-run houses at a time when it was needed, affording distributors "more than the usual film rental" on such a feature.

Hyman urged that "the experiment be made now, keeping in mind that the only way to conduct such an experiment is to use pictures that have the necessary 'legs'."

Cohn Signs New Pact

NEW YORK—Announcement was made at Columbia last week that the corporation had entered into a new five-year contract with Harry Cohn, president, for approval by stockholders.

"The new contract," Cohn stated, "should dispel any rumors that I am in a negotiation for the sale of my Columbia stock, nor have I presently any intention of entering into such a negotiation."

Pioneer Interest Spreads

NEW YORK—The national significance of the 16th Annual Showmanship Dinner of the Motion Picture Pioneers is becoming apparent in the increasing number of reservations coming in from the middle west, south, and west coast as well as from the east. All indications are that the dinner, which will honor Si Fabian as "Pioneer of the Year" on Nov. 17, will be an occasion of importance.

Industry Sets Plans For Ad Rate Fight

TORONTO—The newspaper industry is expected to be asked by the motion picture industry for more equitable treatment in respect to rates charged for amusement advertising. The action will probably follow the meeting later this month of the Canadian Motion Picture Industry Council.

Various exhibitor bodies in the country already have expressed discontent with the present rates, and Clare Appel, executive director, Canadian Motion Picture Distributors' Association, has gone on record that "strong protest" should be made. Another reason to expect such action is the resolution by the Maritime Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association protesting the treatment newspapers give TV over motion pictures.

The protest undoubtedly would be made by the Canadian Motion Picture Industry Council, representing all phases of the industry, but the actual pressure to see that action follows upon words would be lodged with a proposed Canadian Motion Picture Institute. This body, still in the talking stages, but loudly boosted by many industry leaders, could become an important clearing-house for the industry as well as a public relations organization.

Through the years, various tables of statistics have been prepared by exhibitor bodies, showing the inequities in amusement advertising as compared with other advertising rates. The latest slur to the industry was the raising by The Toronto Star of its rates, five cents a line. This is all the more important in the light of the fact that the Star is the latest daily newspaper in the country and other papers are likely to follow suit.

In urging industry-wide protest, Appel said that immediate beneficial results may not be obtained, but he suggests that encouragement be given those newspapers which have maintained their lineage rates.

A premium rate is exacted for the amusement pages in some newspapers, and these, said Appel, "are open to any advertiser who will pay the increased lineage rate." He said it was "an unfair practice when theatre ads are taken off the amusement page to make room for dance halls, restaurants, etc.

"If a newspaper discontinued all theatre advertising it would likely receive more protests from its readers than would occur from the deletion of any other section," said Appel.

Another industry figure has suggested that perhaps one day should be set aside by the whole industry when all theatre advertising be eliminated and "just see the public's reaction then."

Canadian Comment

New building is planned by both Famous Players and Odeon for Canada. Famous plans a 1,000-seater in Red Deer, Alta., with construction to get under way this fall, while Odeon plans a replacement for the Kent, Moncton, N.B., which was destroyed six years ago. Famous' house, to be built with the cooperation of Famous partners, Parnell and Sons, owners of the Capitol and Crescent, Red Deer, will have a frontage of 90 feet and a depth of 135 feet. In the same block as Odeon's new house is the new Franklin-Herschorn theatre, where work has been underway for some time.

A month before Samuel Goldwyn's "Hans Christian Andersen" opened at the Flora, Amsterdam, Holland, this display dominated the theatre's lobby and attracted attention to the RKO release.

Announcements from the Associated Screen News, Ltd., Montreal, operators of the largest laboratory in this country, point the future direction of the company. In its first announcement, ASN stated that it is closing its still photo departments, including branches in several areas of the country. This was followed with an announcement of the first motion picture and TV workshop to be held in Canada. This is planned for the benefit of companies interested in the production of films for these two fields, with staging at the Montreal studios of ASN on Dec. 6-8. Through the media of discussions, demonstrations, and exhibits, the extensive program of the workshop will be implemented. Among the key speakers are Dr. A. W. Trueman, the National Film Board commissioner, the first speaker; A. Davidson Dunton, chairman, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, representing the Canadian TV industry; and Eugene Fitzgibbons, Famous Players Canadian Corporation, who will speak on the operation of private TV stations.

The Heart Fund of Variety Club will benefit to the tune of $10,000 through cooperation of the Imperial Oil Company, Limited, and Famous Players Canadian Corporation. Famous has broken an iron-clad rule that no commercial advertising be shown on its screens to assist the Fund, which this year was faced with a desperate situation in the light of a union dispute which prevented a theatrical benefit. The exhibition company's executives said the showing of the single reel short subject sponsored by Imperial Oil does not open the door to further commercial film advertising. The short features the singers and dancers from Trinidad who danced and sang to the accompaniment of tuned drums made from empty Esso oil drums. The only advertising is the name Esso on the drums. Every cent in the Heart Fund of Variety is devoted to the operation and maintenance of Variety Village.

Arnold M. Picker, vice-president, United Artists, in charge of foreign distribution, announced the appointment of H. Alfredo Steinberg as assistant general manager here. Steinberg comes to UA with a broad background of experience in the territory. A native of Rio de Janeiro, he entered the industry in 1932 with Companhia Cine Brazil, an exhibitor organization. He held executive sales posts with Paramount, U-I, Monogram, and more recently with Columbia, where he also served as assistant general manager.

A familiar face will be seen around Famous Players' head office publicity department again with the appointment of A. E. "Bert" Brown to handle special exploitation for the company. In an announcement by James R. Nairn, director of public relations and advertising, it was stated that Brown would handle special "off-beat" feature films for the circuit. His particular job will be to follow through on these pictures by working out special exploitation and advertising campaigns, and in many cases personally visiting theatres in the field to help the managers sell these attractions. Brown has for many years been associated with the department, but had recently headed the Remington air-conditioning unit of General Theatre Supply Company, a subsidiary of Famous Players.

CINE CHATTER—The 1955 Variety Club Tent 28 crew elected at the annual meeting were Herb Allen, George Altman, Clare Appel, Louis Davidson, Jack Fitzgibbons, David Griesdorf, Monty Hall, Paul Johnston, Dan Krendel, Harry Mandell, and Ernest Rawley. Olive Henderson and Patricia Gaw, Scot lassies touring on behalf of MGM's CinemaScope production, "Brigadoon," visit Buffalo and give the heather treatment to Dewey Michael, independent exhibitor; Myran Grass, Cooperative Theatres; and Chris Pape, Schine Circuit. In the rear are Ed Susse, MGM Buffalo salesman, and Jack Mundstuck, branch manager, both beaming approval at the gay goings-on.

Another important part of the campaign is tieups with business establishments, and seen is the beautifully decorated "Brigadoon" window in Emily's, New York, featuring a poster and stills.

Also assisting in "Brigadoon" promotion was Commander Ian Murray, technical advisor. Seen here in one of Milwaukee's famous cheese establishments, the bearded commander receives a gift from Mrs. Marian Hvasta, manager, Tawne.

Scottish Magic

BROADWAY audiences delighted a while back in a Scottish fairy tale, "Brigadoon," and MGM, utilizing sparkling AnscoColor and CinemaScope, has made it possible for audiences all over the country to enjoy it.

Bringing the production to the public's attention afforded the company the opportunity to go all out in their campaign, and, utilizing a Scottish motif, MGM sent Commander Ian Murray, technical director, and two Scottish lassies, Olive Henderson and Patricia Gow, on extensive tours of various areas in advance of local openings.

Bekilted and distributing heather with a lavish hand, the touring trio garnered considerable newspaper space, radio and TV coverage. Another phase of the campaign was window displays as "Brigadoon" afforded countless tieup opportunities.

Important in the ballyhoo was the selection of the happiest village in the nation, and that honor went to Saratoga Village, Md., which forthwith was renamed "Brigadoon."

The gala Philadelphia opening at the Viking featured a parade dancé in the finest Scottish tradition, with MGM's two kilted good will messengers and Elaine Stewart, MGM starlet featured in the production, prominently displayed atop a proud coach and four. Combined with an extensive advertising and publicity effort, they made the city "Brigadoon" conscious.

Lou Allerhand, MGM New Ycrk branch manager, and his entire exchange staff welcome the pretty Scattish dua ta the branch during their stay in the b'g tcwn. The campaign in the metrapalitan area was extensive, with all phases of advertising media employed to create interest in the picture.

Cammander Murray discovered while he was acting as technical advisor during the filming of the Highland fairy tale that his work was just beginning. On his extensive tour for the film, he met Ralph W. Maw, left, MGM district manager in Minneapolis, and Burr Cline, State, Jamestown.

Saratoga Village, Md., judged the happiest village in the U. S., changed its name to "Brigadaan," and MGM's two Highlanders pin genuine Scattish heather on the lapel of Mayor John Derr, who visited from nearby Frederick, Md.

While the cammander was in Dallas, his activities brought him into contact with many representatives of exhibition, among them Dan Douglas, advertising manager, Rawley United Theatres. Also seen is an attractive film poster.

Konecoff (Continued from page 8) to the various distribution centers, show it to exhibitors and press and talk with anyone who will listen.

The film, in color and in CinemaScope stars John Wayne and cost $4,900,000 the last time Powell looked, but this is exclusive of prints and advertising, which could bring the budget up to the expected six millions. It is expected that it will have to gross 10 millions before a profit is shown. The feature will be released about March.

Powell always wanted to make a picture as he saw fit, and Howard Hughes, RKO production head, gave him the green light. He has no contract with Hughes, but is operating on a week-to-week basis and prefers it that way, working on merit. In answer to a question, he replied that he was offered the job of heading production at the studio the first day he started work there, but he turned it down claiming he didn't have enough experience.

Powell was unsure of his future plans. He thought that if the reception and reaction are good on "The Conqueror," he may produce some other films. Harry Cohn, Columbia prexy, has offered him the production reins for musical version of "It Happened One Night," which will star June Allyson, but he has made no decision as yet, he said. Then, too, he would like to produce "The Long Wire" for Howard Hughes, starring John Wayne, which was what he was supposed to make originally with Wayne until the latter got a look at the script of "The Conqueror" and liked it so much that he gave it preference.

Powell admits having some talks with Fred Schwartz, president, Distributors Corporation of America, and also that he would like to remain with Hughes.

"The Conqueror" runs a little over two hours at present, but Powell thinks that the final version will be a little shorter. It will probably be released in CinemaScope initially, to be followed by prints in Superscope, which will permit distribution on a wider scale. He liked working in CinemaScope.

Footnote: If "The Conqueror" is a smash success, then Powell will get out of TV, which he claimed is murderous as far as finding an adequate supply of good material is concerned, although he and several other Hollywood stars have found turning out filmed dramatic shows profitable.

PRODUCTION SCENE: There was a chill in the air as we hopped in a cab and headed for Psychiatric building at Bellevue Hospital. Actually, we were headed to watch Jose Ferrer direct a scene for "The Shrike," with himself and co-star June Allyson, for U-I release.

When we arrived, a crowd huddled at the outer gates while inside clumps of off-duty nurses and interns waited for something to happen. Ferrer came over to say "hello" while the lights were being arranged. We asked him why they had to come all the way from Hollywood just to shoot two scenes outside the hospital and one in Times Square, later, since all the rest of the film was being photographed in Hollywood. His answer was that the authenticity displayed in the sequences would serve to better the film.

Anti-Trust Plaintiffs To Lose Advantage

NEW YORK—It was confirmed last week that benefits to anti-trust plaintiffs from the fact that the statute of limitations was suspended while the government's anti-trust action was pending will expire shortly as far as RKO companies are concerned.

RKO Corporation was granted Federal Court approval of a consent judgment worked out with the Department of Justice on Nov. 9, 1948. Therefore, in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts, where the six-year statute of limitations applies, anti-trust plaintiffs will be limited to claims of damages going back six years, rather than six years plus the time during which the government case was hanging fire.

Miss Allyson arrived in time to watch two rehearsals and to take over after her stand-in had stood for the benefit of the cameraman. The scene showed an ambulance speeding through the outer gates and then pulling 'round to the receiving entrance. Allyson got out and watched Ferrer being unloaded on a stretcher by the ambulance attendants. He was then wheeled inside with Allyson at his side.

Something new must be happening on the production front because all they took was one long shot and one close-up.

At any rate, the theme of the yarn hasn't been changed, but rather the story has been broadened to take advantage of the latitude permissible under picture-making as compared with the restrictions found on the stage, where incidentally Ferrer produced, directed, and starred in the vehicle, which received the Pulitzer Prize in 1952.

FOUR CORNERED NOTE: Seven years ago, a bachelor in Brooklyn won a prize in a promotion stunt in connection with the U-I release, "Great Expectations," it being two weeks of free diaper service. In the normal course of events or maybe because of the prize, the gentleman took a wife and recently became the proud father of a baby girl. He tried to take advantage of the offer, but found the original diaper service had gone out of business and he threw the problem in the laps of U-I executives.

Presumably, there must have been a staff conference. The company, in its usual generous fashion, decided that the prize deserved fulfillment with interest, and arranged for four weeks of free diaper service with a going concern.

Talcum, anyone?

INVITE: The other morning we received an invite to have breakfast and to meet three beauties from abroad discovered during a talent search by U-I to play the part of Mary Magdalene in the forthcoming "The Galileans." We went post-haste to the Hotel Delmonico, where U-I's head of talent, Robert Palmer, and eastern studio representative Maurice Bergman were on hand to introduce entries from France, Belgium, and Italy.

U-I is paying just as much attention to the development of new talent today as in the past. The studio has some 40 players under contract for long terms.

RKO Theatres Income Shows Large Increase

NEW YORK—RKO Theatres reported last week that it had more than doubled the consolidated net income for the third quarter of 1954 before deductions for special items as compared to last year, with figures being $755,033.06 as against $370,728.83.

Losses from special items in the third quarter amounted to $41,048.22 from the disposal of a theatre property, bringing the net income of the corporation to $720,984.84. The loss resulted in a $7,000 reduction in federal income tax.

The consolidated net income before the deduction of special items for the first nine months of 1954 amounted to $1,710,150.85 as compared with $739,282.15 in the same period last year. Losses from disposal of theatre properties for the entire three quarters were $127,141.21, bringing the net income for the first nine months this year to $1,625,009.64, as opposed to a net income for the same 1953 period of $788,331.15.

Special items for the 1954 three quarters resulted in a federal income tax reduction of $42,000. In the same 1953 period, theatre property disposals resulted in a profit of $10,949 and a reduction of $38,100 in federal income taxes.

Republic Profit Drops

NEW YORK—For the 39 weeks ended on July 31, Republic Pictures Corporation and its subsidiaries reported a net profit of $11,617,971 before federal tax provision, estimated federal normal and surtaxes of $841,000, or a net after taxes of $776,971.

For the corresponding period last year, Republic and subsidiaries reported a net profit of $1,698,155 before federal tax provision, estimated federal normal and surtaxes of $875,000, or a net after taxes of $823,155.

with another 20 on individual picture contracts. The talent school which has been building and expanding for the past four or five years has cost about a million and has graduated such personalities as Piper Laurie, Shelley Winters, Tony Curtis, Jeff Chandler, Rock Hudson, and others.

Palmer thought that the annual show put on using studio talent was also of assistance in selecting proper players, with someone emerging each year as a rising personality. He expected that other studios would expand their talent programs after seeing how U-I has fared. He also didn't discount TV as a possible source of acting material, noting that George Nader was signed after appearing in that medium.

The search for an unknown actress to play Magdalene, conducted in Europe by Bergman and studio representative Jim Ryan, has served to create much interest in the film, and it will be continued on a nation-wide basis here as well. The three imported beauties are off for Hollywood for testing, as will be others selected in principal cities in this country.

If anyone wants our opinion, we cast our vote for the long-stemmed beauty from Italy, Giovanni Scala, but no one has asked for it.

About People

NEW YORK—The appointment of Jack Clink as chief engineer and recording supervisor of Perspecta Sound, Inc., and Fine Sound, Inc., was announced last week by Elmer O. Wilschke, operations vice-president. Clink has been with the companies for the past two months, supervising the installation of equipment in newly-opened studios for all types of motion picture recording and disc recording, including the laying in of Perspecta stereophonic sound tracks.

NEW YORK—Another in the series of promotions involving members of Altec's operating personnel was announced last week by C. S. Perkins, the organization's operating manager, with the appointment of Shell Trent as acting branch manager of Altec's northeastern division. Trent succeeds Ralph Kautzky, recently appointed acting division manager of Altec's northeastern division. Trent will head-quarter at Altec's northeastern division offices.

HOLLYWOOD—Gene Brooks was assigned last week as head of publicity for Hal Wallis Productions at Paramount. Brooks was film project officer for Hal Wallis' "Cease Fire" while on duty with the army in Korea, where the picture was filmed last year. Prior to his service in Korea, Brooks worked with Rossellini in Italy and in other motion picture and public relations fields in the East and in Hollywood.

NEW YORK—Sammy Lambert was named last week as executive assistant to Michael Todd on the newly organized Michael Todd Productions which will make two pictures each year in the Todd-AO wide-screen process. Lambert has been associated with Todd's Broadway ventures since 1936, and was most recently unit manager for Magna Productions.

NEW YORK—Ed R. Svigals, who has long specialized in the distribution of foreign films, has joined Harrison Pictures Company as sales manager. Svigals will set up first-run engagements in Los Angeles for the prize-winning Japanese film, "Ugetsu," which has just concluded a successful two-month run at the Plaza.

NEW YORK—Lyman E. G. Suiter was promoted last fortnight to the post of general plant manager of the Fairchild Recording Equipment Company.

CHICAGO—Danny Kaye was named last week as TOA's "Star of the Year," the first time that an exhibitor association has honored a performer in this way.

Distributors Sue Chicago Exhib

CHICAGO—Six distributor percentage actions were filed here last week in the United States District Court for Illinois. Loew's, Warners, Paramount, U-I, RKO, and United Artists each filed a separate action against Arthur Hennrich, Bernard Wright, and the Manor Theatre Corporation, operating the Manor.

Miles C. Seeley, Bryson P. Burnham, and Richard Hart of the Chicago law firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian, and Platt signed the complaints, with Sargoy and Stein noted as of counsel in each case.

Bob Hope, on the set of Paramount's "The Eddie Foy Story," recently greeted George Virand, Premiere Operating Company Circuit, Toronto, Canada, and his wife, actress Narda Onyx.

Paramount Earnings Up Over Last Year

NEW YORK—Paramount estimated last week that the earnings of the corporation and its consolidated domestic and Canadian subsidiaries for the third quarter ended Oct. 2, 1954, were $2,428,000 after provision for United States and Canadian income taxes. These earnings represent $1.10 per share on the 2,208,133 shares outstanding.

Consolidated earnings for the quarter ended on Oct. 3, 1953, were estimated at $2,005,000 and represented $.89 per share on the 2,256,158 shares then outstanding.

Consolidated earnings for the nine months after taxes are estimated at $6,390,000. These earnings include net profit on sale and adjustment of investments in subsidiary and affiliated companies of approximately $832,000, after deducting applicable income taxes. These earnings, including such net profit on sales of investments represent $2.89 per share and, excluding such net profit, $2.52 per share.

Consolidated earnings for the nine months of 1953 were estimated at $4,996,000 and represented $2.21 per share.

MITO Convention Draws Record Crowd

ST. LOUIS—A record exhibitor throng attended the Missouri-Illinois Theatre Owners annual meeting at the Hotel Chase early this week, with considerable interest stimulated by the contest for Miss Film Row, who was scheduled to be chosen at the convention's banquet.

Theatre owners and managers met in "speak-up sessions" designed to solve some of exhibition's current problems. Co-general chairmen John Meinardi, district manager, Fox-Midwest Theatres, Belleville, Ill., and St. Louis; L. J. "Bill" Williams, Union, Mo.; and Lou Ansell, St. Louis, were in charge of the convention agenda. Lester Kropp, co-general manager, Fred Wehrenberg Circuit, and president of the organization, led officers and directors in a meeting prior to the opening session.

Williams served as chairman of the first general session, and scheduled to speak were sergeant Hugh Nelson, air force; Tom Bailey, MGM St. Louis manager; Alex Harrison, 20th-Fox division manager; Herman M. Levy, TOA general counsel; and Albert Pickus, Stratford, Conn., TOA vice-president. An additional convention highlight was the trade show displaying various theatre equipment items.

The second general session featured the election of officers and was headed by William E. Waring, Jr., Cobden, Ill. Ansell reported on the TOA national convention held last week. Other speakers were George Kerasotes, TOA vice-president, and Mike Simons, MGM sales promotion manager.

The final general session was headed by co-chairmen W. T. Powell, district manager, Midwest Drive-In Theatres, and Paul Krueger, co-general manager, Fred Wehrenberg Circuit. Scheduled to speak were Kroger Babb, Hallmark Productions; Alfred Starr, TOA executive; and Levy.

Tom Edwards, past president, MITO, was toastmaster, and a number of Hollywood personalities were present.

Ritchey Lauds Results Of AA European Meet

NEW YORK—Norton V. Ritchey, president, Allied Artists International Corporation, returned last fortnight from a two-month stay in Europe and expressed satisfaction with the organization of the second joint AA-Associated British Pathe sales organization.

The entire British sales force of Pathe and several prominent European distributors attended the meeting at the Hotel Metropole, Monte Carlo, and representing AA, in addition to Ritchey, were Steve Broidy, president, and Harold J. Mirisch, vice-president.

Ritchey stressed that the function was a just reward for the efforts of Pathe salesmen resulting in record-breaking business over the past year. Only one day was devoted to planning sales policies on new product, Ritchey said, with the rest of the time "devoted to the equally serious business of beaches, bikinis, and sunshine." He added that the success of the first two meetings and the enthusiasm which resulted have convinced AA that the international meetings are of value to all, and the policy will be continued wherever the circumstances warrant it.

In London, Ritchey screened the AA CinemaScope production, "The Black Prince," which he called the biggest film yet made by the company, and also supervised final releasing arrangements for "Riot In Cell Block 11," presented at the Edinburgh Festival and set for release over the entire ABC Circuit.

In line with the announcement by Broidy that the company was considering the revamping of its European distribution program, it was understood that some new agreements had been entered into.

*Valuable Exploitation Keys

Loew's Golden Jubilee celebration in New York City was recently aided by the above mobile museum equipped by the George Eastman House of Photography, Rochester, N. Y. The giant trailer museum, containing early movie equipment and photographs from famous pictures as far back as 1904, is shown on the left; in the center, an early form of "motion pictures" is inspected by Virginia Emerson inside the trailer exhibit; while on the right, the same girl pushes a button activating an old-style movie camera, also inside the trailer. The mobile museum was sent on a tour of New York City Loew's neighborhood houses; and will also tour other cities in which there are Loew houses. It is bound to attract attention.

"Hansel And Gretel" Merchandising Set

NEW YORK—An unprecedented array of promotion tieups totaling more than $10,000,000 worth of national and local advertising has been set for "Hansel And Gretel," it was announced last fortnight by Walter Branson, RKO world-wide sales manager. Set to run in conjunction with local playdates, the tieups will also add an unusual amount of publicity breaks to the extensive nation-wide campaign being readied by RKO for the Michael Myerberg Technicolor production.

All tieups will be ready for local level promotions in time for the Christmas holiday release of the feature, with national advertising to pave the way.

The National Biscuit Company will distribute 90,000,000 packages of a new cookie called "Hansel And Gretel." The new product is being advertised on the packages of the National Biscuit Company's three leading products, Ritz Crackers, Grahams, and Saltines. The ad on the packages plugs the RKO release with credits and the line, "At Your Local Theatre." The company also is circulating two types of counter display posters to push the new cookies. Newspapers, radio, and TV will also be used in the campaign.

The Independent Grocers Alliance Distributing Company, through its 5,300 I. G. A. stores in all parts of the country, will run a coloring and jingle contest tied in with local playdates. I. G. A. will run full-page ads in 2,185 newspapers, with the name of the local theatre and the playdate, and will distribute 3,000,000

"Christmas" Fur Flies

NEW YORK—Forthcoming release nationally of Irving Berlin's "White Christmas" will be accompanied by a widely-publicized fur coat tieup between Paramount and the National Association of Fur Manufacturers, it was announced last week. Ten major metropolitan areas will be focal points in the tieup which involves the giving away of 10 white sheared beaver jackets. The cities where the tieup will operate are Albany, Boston, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Denver, Des Moines, Memphis, and San Francisco.

Leading department stores and specialty shops will participate in the promotion. Theatres together with the retail firms will initiate locally-sponsored contests restricted to the communities' male populations. The coats will be first prizes in 10 contests bringing the best answers to the question, "Why I would like to see her in a white fur coat for a 'White Christmas'."

The "White Christmas" fur coat promotion in each territory will be conducted on a broad ticket-selling scale.

A new comic book, "Hansel And Gretel," is being distributed to the nation's newsstands and magazine racks by Dell Publishing Company. Based on Myerberg's screen version of the Humpdinck opera, the comic book is being presented as the "right kind" of comic book for children.

In addition, an unprecedented number of merchandise tieups will be ready for the holiday promotion.

Eight Versions Aid "Desiree" Song Plugs

NEW YORK—A total of eight versions of "The Song From Desiree" are being rushed into national release by the leading recording companies in one of the largest advance music campaigns ever keyed to a motion picture, 20th Century-Fox announced last week.

Latest artists to record the new ballad, subtitled "We'll Meet Again," are Bing Crosby and Alfred Newman and his orchestra on Decca, and Johnnie Desmond for Coral Records. Other artists represented in the recording line-up are Jane Froman, Capitol; Anna Marie Alberghetti, Mercury; Paul Weston and his orchestra, Columbia; Frank Cerdell, RCA-Victor; Alan Dean with Joe Lipman and his orchestra, MGM; and Joe Leahy and the Majar Choir, Majar.

The theme melody from the upcoming CinemaScope release was written by Alfred Newman with lyrics by Ken Darby, and major promotional campaigns linked to the November release of the picture have been scheduled.

Letters and other promotional literature are being sent to thousands of record shops and department stores across the country alerting dealers of national advertising and publicity campaigns being arranged.

Lux Aids "Star"

NEW YORK—Judy Garland, with credits to her appearance in Warners' "A Star Is Born," is featured in a national Lux newspaper ad campaign coinciding with the picture's engagements across the country. The ad is scheduled to appear in 18 Sunday supplements including American Weekly, Family Weekly, Parade, and This Week.

The ad is also to appear in 51 newspapers across the country on Nov. 9. Climaxing the extensive newspaper campaign, Lux is taking a full page ad in the Nov. 22 issue of Life Magazine.

Skaggs was not much concerned about who won the football game at a recent high school game here in the Gator Bowl because he did his scoring during the half-time with a spectacle production dedicated to "Brigadoon," which opened the next day at his theatre. The show was put on by Andrew Jackson's band and 150 Jackson girls called the Pepperettes, a precision marching group. Preceding the band and Pepperettes in their movement about the football field in the 20-minute show were two boys dressed in Scottish kilts carrying a 20-foot "Brigadon" overhead banner. The band leader narrated the synopsis of "Brigadoon" over loud speakers, and the band played selections from the musical score. Skaggs' aides were busy during the game distributing 5,000 "Brigadoon" heralds to the crowd of 12,000 teen-agers and also placing 2,000 more heralds under auto windshield wipers outside the stadium. In return for the free favors, Skaggs invited the band and Pepperettes to a special screening of "Brigadoon."

Florida Miami

Joe Hegeman, Allied Artists' field representative, New Orleans, was in to handle exploitation on "The Naked Jungle." . . . William "Bill" Dock, past chief barker, Variety Club, and for 12 years associated with Paramount-Florida State Theatres, resigned as director of advertising, publicity, and public relations to handle public relations for an automobile sales agency. Harry Botwick, district supervisor, Florida State Theatres, named Howard Pettingill, formerly of FST's Jacksonville office, to assume Dock's duties. . . . For "Sabrina," Al Glick, FST publicist, had window displays in dress shops.

Harry Margolesky, manager, Gables, Coral Gables, Fla., is seen beside a sign welcoming buyers to the recent Miami Fashion Council's Market Week and acknowledging that it's a "Woman's World" from the 20th-Fox film of the same title.

For "Beau Brummell," FST had window displays in both men's and women's fashions in clothing stores. . . . Fifty members of Wometco's Old Guard organization had a luncheon meeting. . . . Wometco's sick list included Frank Miller, maintenance. . . . Vacationers included Dick Gersley, 27th Avenue Drive-In, and Dorothy Tierney, Carib, Miami Beach, Fla. . . . Hal Hornstein, Joe Hornstein, Inc., reported that the Miami office has completely equipped the new Starlight Open-Air, Key Largo, Fla. The latter is owned by Jeff Gautier. Hornstein has installed Strong Super 135 arc lamps in the Dixie Drive-In in preparation for wide-screen and CinemaScope there. Hornstein also installed the CinemaScope equipment for the Tropic-aire Drive-In.

Wometco officials attending the TOA convention in Chicago were Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Wolfson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schechter, Frank Myers, and Van Myers. . . . The Warner, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., now has a wide-screen. . . . Suzie Claughton, daughter of the circuit owners, pumped gas and wiped windshields at a Miami Avenue filling station as one of a number of volunteers who donned coveralls for the one day that the various service stations gave their day's profits to Variety Children's Hospital. The charity effort was a success.

Robert S. Benjamin, left, chairman of the board, United Artists, recently in New York accepted from Phil Wilcox, motion picture director, Parents' magazine, the publication's "award for extraordinary achievement in 1954" honoring "Romeo and Juliet," which UA will release later this year.

Harry Margolesky, Gables, Coral Gables, Fla., had a special 40 x 60 welcoming buyers to the Miami Fashion Council's Market Week and publicizing "Woman's World."

The Olympia, Miami's only vaudeville house, was scheduled to close. Some 60 employees received notice from Harry Botwick, Florida State Theatres manager, that their employment would end. Neither Botwick nor Leon Netter, Jacksonville, president of the operating company, an affiliate of the United-Paramount Theatres, would comment on the report that Cinerama would take over the showhouse at a later date. Botwick acknowledged that Cinerama representatives had been in Miami looking for a location, and that they had considered the Olympia along with others. But he added that no deal was made. "We're closing the Olympia," Botwick said, "because it is no longer economically feasible to operate it. It has become increasingly difficult to get the type of picture and stage shows Miami showgoers demand. So we're just shutting down."

Mississippi Jackson

The State Supreme Court held that the Adams County Chancery Court was correct in dismissing an injunction brought by district attorney L. L. Forman to stop the showing of "The Moon Is Blue" at the Ritz, Natchez, Miss. Forman had filed the complaint against the operators of the theatre in September, 1953, to halt the showing because it was "lewd and immoral." The theatre, however, proceeded to show the film and the district attorney sought to bring a contempt action. In the hearing on the injunction, the Chancery Court dismissed the entire action by holding that the district attorney was without authority to bring the suit in behalf of the state, and it was this decision that was upheld by the State Supreme Court.

Exhibitors Laud MGM Workshop

PITTSBURGH — Indicative of the immediate success of MGM's Ticket Selling Workshop is the series of telegrams, letters, and personal messages received by the company's home office and branch executives here following the initial forum at the William Penn Hotel.

Principal speakers were Mike Simons, MGM customer relations head; Emery Austin, exploitation head and representing Howard Dietz; "Erv" Clumb, manager, Riverside, Milwaukee; Herbert I. Brown, Victoria, Greenfield, Mass.; Edward M. Hyde, advertising manager, The Sharon (Pa.) Herald; and Max Reilly, advertising manager, WDTV.

Typical of the telegrams, letters and telephone messages received by MGM executives are the following:

Gerald Shea, Shea Enterprises, Inc. — "Metro's Ticket Selling Workshop most productive in opinion of 22 Shea company managers and home office personnel attending. Mike Simons' plain spoken, practical approach was particularly significant. Emery Austin was most impressive, particularly in driving home the need for steady interest in MGM's campaign by local theatre management. Meeting informative to Shea organization and we will implement prompt further cooperation and drive to nail down at the point of sale the objectives of your Ticket Selling Workshop ideas and material."

J. Crowley, Blatt Brothers Theatres, Somerset, Pa. — "The meeting indicates that MGM is interested in promoting a healthy condition in the movie business."

William J. Blatt, Jr., Arcadia, New Bethlehem, Pa. — "One of the most interesting and valuable meetings I have attended."

Anthony N. Askounes, Manos, Monessen, Pa. — "It was by far the best meeting and it was of good food for thought to be carried out in future use. It will be the best for selling tickets."

George W. Petroplus, Rex, Wheeling, W. Va. — "Most inspiring and invigorating."

Andy Biordi, Majestic, Ellwood City, Pa. — "It proves yet to me MGM still is the most friendly company."

James G. Bell, Guthrie and Lee, Grove City, Pa. — "The entire program was very inspiring."

Mel Katz, Fabian Theatres, Embassy, Johnstown, Pa. — "Surprised to learn how much I knew, and how much I forgot."

Gilbert Cooke, Jordan and Mercer Sq., Greenville, Pa. — "All film companies should benefit from the Ticket Selling Workshop. If you tell 'em, you can sell 'em."

Ralph M. Felton, Spotlight 88 Drive-In, Beaver Falls, Pa. — "Although I am closing for the season next week (for the seventh season), now my work really starts selling tickets for next season."

Charles R. Blatt, Blatt Brothers Theatres, Pittsburgh — "The good effect of this effort will remain with ourselves and managers, and is certain to send them home with a new interest in their jobs."

MGM's inaugural Ticket Selling Workshop was recently held at the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, and among those present were 22 members of Stanley Warner Theatres, shown above. They are, standing, Harry Rastetter, Warner, Erie, Pa.; Frank Harster, district manager, West Virginia and Southern Ohio; Harry Thomas, Schenly, Pittsburgh; Joseph Sabbio, Regent, Pittsburgh; Edward Johns, Arsenal, Pittsburgh; Lyle Harding, Sheridan Square, Pittsburgh; James A. Laux, Hollywood, Dormont, Pa.; Ray J. Laux, Whitehall, Brentwood, Pa.; Martin J. Shearn, Fairmont, Fairmont, W. Va.; Al Sateri, Strand, Pittsburgh; Andrew Garze, Ritz, Clarksburg, W. Va.; and Charles A. Passinger, Warner, Morgantown, W. Va. Seated, left to right, are Richard Klein, Liberty, New Kensington, Pa.; Robert A. Bowman, district manager, Erie, Pa., and western New York; B. W. Steerman, assistant zone manager, Erie, and western New York; M. A. Silver, zone manager, Pittsburgh; Sel Bragin, buyer-booker, Pittsburgh home office; Max Silverman, Manor, Pittsburgh; Al Skegin, Kenyon, Pittsburgh; Willard Johnson, Belmar, Pittsburgh; Louis Fordan, Memorial, McKeesport, Pa.; and Jack O. Kieffer, Enright, Pittsburgh.

Max Silverman, Manor, Pittsburgh — "This idea should do much to promote a better understanding of what is expected from each branch by the other."

Lou Fordan, Memorial, McKeesport, Pa. — "Very constructive."

Bob Leiber, Paramount, Braddock, Pa. — "Very educational, a good insight into the advertising and tie-in field."

Garland West, West Drive-In and Colonial, Buchanan, W. Va. — "Herbert I. Brown was very interesting and I enjoyed the whole program."

Marty Shearn, Fairmont, Fairmont, W. Va. — "Down to earth meeting, like looking into a mirror to try to find out what may be wrong with yourself. The answers were given to you at this meeting."

Saul Bragin, Stanley Warner, Pittsburgh — "MGM is to be congratulated for taking the time and effort in pointing up the various problems the exhibitor is faced with and assisting him in being a better showman."

Morris Finkel, Mount Oliver, Pittsburgh — "This type of meeting is a most important 'must'. The exchange of ideas is most instructive. It sure gives one the incentive and encouragement so much needed at this time."

Chester De Marsh, Larkfield Drive-In, Grove City, Pa. — "I wish to thank Metro for a very informative day. You are to be congratulated for providing a real service for small town theatres."

Edgar E. Shaffer, Roxy, Slippery Rock, Pa. — "These meetings bring out many facets of operations in our industry and I believe them to be most helpful. Certainly the day has been well and profitably (and pleasantly) spent."

Ray Smith, Shea Circuit, New York City — "Forums of this kind bring us face to face with the realization that we generally do not do all we could to sell our attractions. In other words, it gives us a new incentive."

Bart Dattola, Dattola, New Kensington, Pa. — "The time I spent was enjoyable and I hope in the future we have some more of these informal meetings."

Bennett Amdur, Garden, Pittsburgh — "Psychologically, these meetings are good for our business. Future meetings should stress greater advertising aid for the neighborhood theatres."

Russ Wehrle, Capitol, Braddock, Pa. — "It seems that only MGM gets away from the beaten path in trying to help the exhibitor."

William Finkel, Arcade, Pittsburgh — "Greatly impressed with the power and force, the intelligence and vast resources of MGM, placed behind each release and put over in such a friendly and warm manner. Thanks, Mike."

Joseph L. Fecheck, Fayette Amusement Company, Brownsville, Pa. — "Workshop meetings should be held more often."

Dale Tysinger, Shea's, Ashtabula, O. — "Good, more workshops."

Edward J. Fahey, State, Manchester, N. H. — "Probably the best and most instructive meeting of this type I have ever attended."

N. P. Giovan, Manos, Elkins, W. Va. — "You are to be commended for your workshop. Certainly it was worthwhile for any exhibitor to be exposed to the ideas heard here."

M. A. Silver, Stanley Warner, Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania and West Virginia — "This is a terrific achievement of which MGM can be very proud. It was the biggest thing that ever happened in the way of exhibitor meetings in Pittsburgh. You are doing a job that needed doing, we liked it."

The home office of New England Theatres, Inc., reports that the managers' "Profit and Prestige Drive" is gaining momentum, with the October contest completed. The majority of managers in the circuit had special Hallowe'en kiddies shows, midnight horror shows for the teen-agers and adults, and Saturday morning shows for the kiddies. Other managers put on merchant participation programs, tying in locally, radio broadcasts from lobbies, football nights, street interviewing broadcasts over local stations, and other activities. R. A. Bergeron, manager, Haynes, Waterville, Me., staged a series of high school victory rallies, where films taken of the local football game were shown, showing the highlights of the contests. Marvin Huban, Strand, Dorchester, Mass., held a special radio broadcast from the lobby. Arthur Morton, Paramount, set up a street interview radio broadcast over WVDA asking patrons how they liked the film they had just seen at his theatre. Max Naylor, Metropolitan, put up a special booth in the inner lobby selling Columbia recordings of the music from "A Star Is Born," with attractive models making the sales. The following managers held morning kiddie shows for Hallowe'en and later Hallowe'en horror shows for the older children—Arthur Allaire, Opera House, Bangor, Me.; Alex Castoldi, Paramount, Newton, Mass.; John Fagan, Central, Biddeford, Me.; Ben Greenberg, Stadium, Woonsocket, R. I.; Marvin Huban, Strand, Dorchester; Frank Kelly, Colonial, Haverhill, Mass.; and Lou Kenny, Capitol, Allston, Mass. With the October managers' committee made up of James Davis, Leo Lajoie and Max Naylor, doing such a fine job, the November committee, comprising Larry Burke, Mel Morrison, and Huban, is shooting for even better results.

Three state managers in the Stanley Warner Theatres "Fabian Fabulous Forty Contest" drive tied for second place for September. Under the district managership of Joe Liss, the following managers tied—Steve Barbett, Warner, Lawrence, Mass.; Guido Luminello, Palace; and Bob Howell, Port, Newburyport, Mass.

Morris Sims, manager, Olympia, New Bedford, Mass., who was the 1954 chairman of the "Jimmy Fund" drive, deserves special commendation for the results of the drive in his city. With the hard-working committee, Sims's district raised the magnificent sum of $6,800, which was turned over to the "Jimmy Fund" headquarters, a record amount. Some of the extra-curricular activities which brought in the total were fashion shows, tag days, radio and press tie-ins, merchant participations, and many other activities. The total amount also includes the theatre audience collections.

Bill Canning, a veteran industryite who is head of public relations for the Yamins Circuit, Fall River, Mass., delivered an entertaining and amusing address before the Lowell, Mass., Kiwanis Club monthly dinner. His subject was "Motion Pictures From The Start." He outlined the progress of the film industry from the old days of the single-reelers up to the present day of CinemaScope productions. His address was informal and amusing as well as factual and interesting and delighted the 65 members present. Norman Glassman, Strand, Haverhill, Mass., and the Rialto, Lowell, who is a past president, Lowell Kiwanis Club, introduced Canning to the group.

Sympathy goes to Edward Renick, former salesman for Metro in this area, in the death of his wife who had been ill for several months.

Gertrude Rittenberg, office manager, E. M. Loew's Theatres, will marry Max Finn, general manager, on Dec. 1 in this city.

John McGrail, U-I publicist, returned from his vacation to the West Indies with his wife, Helen. . . . David W. Higgins, owner, Brookside, formerly the Mayfair, Bridgton, Me., closed the doors for the season.

The Park, Jaffrey, N. H., has been sold by the estate of the late Romolo Vani to Mario Dedo, Peterboro, N. H., who will operate. Herbert Higgins will continue to do the buying and booking under the new ownership.

Paramount has taken full page newspaper ads in the local papers for the first time in many years, plugging "White Christmas," with each paper running the ad on the day before or the day of the opening date. The picture is playing the Paramount and Fenway, day-and-date.

The Nyer Theatre Company, Bangor, Me., Samuel Nyer, president, has taken over the Community, Guilford, Me.,

adding it to the Playhouse, Newport; Opera House, Stonington; drive-in, West Enfield; and drive-in, Trenton, all in Maine. The Community was operated for five years by Joseph Cronan, former film salesman, who gave it up last spring to return to Boston where he is now a manager for E. M. Loew. Cronan turned the lease over to Mrs. Elaine Elliot, widow of Richard Elliot, who ran it until the recent transfer to the Nyer group.

Rene Garneau, owner, Midway Drive-In, Ascutney, Vt., was running for state representative from his district on the Democratic ticket.

Film District

In introducing his new release, "Gang Busters," Terry Turner, who has assembled three episodes of TV's popular program which have never been shown on TV, has formed a new method of re-selling the film to circuit and independent buyers and bookers. He has prepared several TV trailers and theatre teaser trailers of the 78-minute feature on 16mm. prints and has taken the equipment into the offices of the buyers of the larger circuits, setting up the projectors in the offices and showing the prospective buyers first-hand exactly what the public will view on TV and at the theatres. Joseph E. Levine will handle the film in the New England territory, backed by a $50,000 TV, radio and newspaper campaign. "Gang Busters" was assembled by Visual Dramas, an affiliate of General Tele-radio, Inc., in association with Turner. The kickoff will be launched in New England with a possibility of 300 saturation bookings in January. After the larger circuits had viewed the trailers, Levine and Turner invited a group of independent film buyers and bookers to the offices of Embassy to see the same setup. Turner stated that he selected New England for the world premiere kickoff because the area is highly concentrated for TV and radio promotion. Through WNAC-TV and its affiliates, he can hit 200 situations and 60 first-runs, thus making the trailers on TV more effective. Other films which have been promoted in this manner have been highly successful, he claims. "Gang Busters" will also be backed by a managers' contest, now being planned, with six winning managers being given a two-week trip overseas. Definite plans for this contest will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rifkin flew to the west coast to attend the annual directors' meeting of Allied Artists. They were taking their granddaughter, Barbara Roberts, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts, for a three-week trip.

Joe Levine, Embassy, and Jack H. Harris, EPI, inked a deal appointing Levine as EPI representative in New England. Embassy will distribute "Jamboree." This picture will be backed thoroughly with an exploitation campaign by the New England councils of the Boy Scouts of America. Embassy is also set to handle "Laurel and Hardy In Utopia."

Jim McCarthy, Connecticut district manager, Stanley Warner, entered Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, for further surgery.

South Windsor

Joe Bronstein and Isadore Bregman, East Hartford Family Drive-In Theatre Corporation, returned from an inspection tour of Miami, Fla., area drive-in projects. The Bronstein interests expect to start construction of the 2,010-car capacity Meadows Drive-In on Jan. 1. Other 1955 outdoor projects for Connecticut include — Bridgeport, 750-car capacity unit, backed by Seymour Levine, Bowl Drive-In, West Haven; Meriden, 1-000-car capacity, backed by Nick J. Kounaris and Paul Tolis, Kounaris-Tolis Theatres; and Middletown, 1,000-car capacity, backed by Sal Adorno, Jr., formerly assistant general manager, M and D Theatres, Middletown. M and D, it is understood, will have no connection with the Adorno drive-in.

Massachusetts Fall River

One of the most elaborate and colorful opening nights ever staged here was put on by the Empire, a Yamins Circuit house, for the premiere of "A Star Is Born." Bill Canning, head of public relations for the circuit, and John J. McAvoy, manager, worked out a stunning campaign. The lobby, decorated by a florist with flowers and ferns, contained huge cutouts of Judy Garland and James Mason, and a 60-piece band played outside the theatre under huge floodlights. The lady patrons received vials of perfume and baby orchids. Attractive models distributed an eight-piece souvenir booklet containing stills of the two stars, scenes from the film, and a history of the making of the picture. This program booklet was tied in with Radio Land, local sponsor of Columbia records and a radio and TV sales and service store. There was a live broadcast over WSAR, emceed by Joe Welch, which went on in the lobby of the Empire as the patrons were entering the theatre. After the performance, WALE made tape recordings of the reactions from the patrons. This program was played back the following day and evening. For a month before the film opened, the two stations played the music from the album of "A Star Is Born." The marquee of the near-by Center, now closed, was relighted to carry the announcement of the opening of the film. There were merchants tieins and displays in store windows. Among those present at the opening night were the city's mayor, John Kane, Speaker of the House Joseph Martin, Nathan Yamins, and other city officials. More than 200 seats were roped off to accommodate the dignitaries and their families.

New Hampshire Newington

The Newington Outdoor closed for the season.

Rhode Island Providence

Willard Mathews, Majestic manager, staged an auspicious motion picture premiere for "A Star Is Born." Setting up two distinct openings, one at the six p.m. performance, and the other at the nine p.m. showing, Mathews distributed 300 orchids to the first 300 feminine patrons. Sending out beautifully-designed invitations to state and city officials, the press, radio and television representatives, the Majestic manager welcomed the invited guests and paying patrons with a display of lighting arrangements and decorations. The entire front of the Washington Street house was bathed in floodlights. Pulling out all the stops in his exploitation campaign, Mathews received excellent support from several stores that featured records and record albums containing songs. Downtown store windows carried heralds, window cards, and stills featuring the attraction.

Despite offers of management to meet and discuss ways and means of settling the strike of projectionists, the Strand, Pawtucket, R. I., was going into a fourth week of inactivity. Harold Lancaster, genial manager, reported that no signs of an early settlement were in view.

Dave Levin staged his usual popular Hallowe'en midnight show. . . . Torrential fall rainstorms caused almost a complete blackout of all nearby drive-ins recently. Anticipating good pre-Hallowe'en business, the open-airers suffered a disappointing setback. . . . The Castle, Lockwood and Gordon, installed a wide-screen.

Vermont Burlington

Maine and New Hampshire Theatres, Inc., closed the Majestic after 42 years of operation. Raymond J. Burns, manager, indicated there was some hope the building might remain open if it could be rented to a local little theatre group.

Loew's Golden Jubilee celebration has been aided considerably by a mobile museum equipped by the George Eastman House of Photography, Rochester. The touring exhibit, housed in a gigantic trailer, contains early cameras, projection equipment, antique posters, and an interesting collection of still photographs from some of the first commercial movies. According to Ernest Emerling, Loew's ad head, the Golden Jubilee Celebration will be extended to Loew's out-of-town situations as fast as suitable bookings are lined up for individual theatres. As soon as the George Eastman House trailer exhibit has finished its tour of New York Loew's neighborhood houses it will be routed to Loew's out-of-town theatres.

For UA's "Suddenly," a king sized blow-up of Frank Sinatra levelling a gun at Syracuse bus riders realistically helped in the promotion triggering the opening at Loew's State. The touring cutout was engineered by enterprising manager Sam Gilman.

EYEING THE Exchanges

NEW YORK — Paramount is in the process of having its face lifted via a bit of exterior decoration. The building front has already been steam cleaned, but some touch-up painting on the edifice is yet to be done.

WARNERS — Emanuel Gross, booker, had been on the sick list. . . . The new face in the cashier's department belongs to Anna Michelloti. . . . New air foam cushion chairs with wheels are now being enjoyed by the ladies of the inspection department. . . . Head shipper Ben Block marked off 20 years of wedded life with wife Evelyn.

REPUBLIC — The two new additions to the office staff are Mildred Ferraro, contract clerk, and Clair Levine, biller. . . . Biller Maria Arroyo was feted in a going away luncheon and was presented with a gift. She's expecting the stork in January.

UNITED ARTISTS — Newlyweds June Rogers and husband were treated to dinner by the owner of the club where their wedding reception was held. . . . Booker Sophie Bochilo sprained her wrist.

BONDED — Inspectress Selma Stammer returned by plane from Detroit, where she went to see her new grandchild. . . . Head shipper Joe Marsicovitera was saddened by the death of his mother. . . . Bookkeeper Grace Baum underwent an appendectomy.

U-I — Inspectress Florence Knight had a visit from her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Iselhar. They arrived from California for the wedding of Mrs. Knight's other daughter, Dorothy, a former employee of NSS. . . . Night examiner Morris Harrison was recovering at home.

MGM — Booking machaine operator Mary Mayham and husband enjoyed themselves at the annual Policemen's Ball. . . . A quintette of birthday wishes go to exchange publicist Charles Felleman, on Nov. 11; boxoffice clerk Theresa Muraco, on Nov. 11; clerk Joyce Taylor, on Nov. 12; booker William Kiernan, on Nov. 14; and salesman Howard Levy, on Nov. 15. . . . Print booker Herman Garriss was ill.

PARAMOUNT — Fred Braun, film room, is recovering from an operation after his exit from the hospital. . . . Employees were invited to a sneak preview at Loew's State of "The Bridges of Toko-Ri." . . . Booker Eugene Newman is the New York representative for the new company house organ, "The Paramounteer," published monthly. . . . George Casiano, print booker, returned from his honeymoon. . . . Her William is serving in Germany with the army. . . . Boxoffice clerk Tim Sullivan received a mysterious secret letter.

RAMBLIN' 'ROUND — 20th-Foxites had a farewell luncheon for Ann Buchdahl, who resigned to join Buena Vista. —J. A. D.

Harold Cory, Oneonta, Oneonta, recently tied up with the WACS on U-I's "Francis Joins The WACS."

The Albany County Restaurant and Liquor Dealers Association is cooperating, as it has for the last five years, but that group will later launch a solo effort to raise $25,000 for a badly needed recreation hall at the Helderberg camp.

Leo Greenfield, who recently left U-I, caught on with Buena Vista as representative in Cleveland, Cincinnati, and Detroit.

The Variety Club honored Harry Alexander at a dinner in Keeler's Restaurant. One-time 20th-Fox manager and later a U-I salesman, he retired to take over the Middletown Drive-In, in the lower Catskills, from Harry Lamont.

Clayton Pantages, 20th-Fox salesman, passed a weekend in Connecticut.

"All prospects are for a 'Big Brother' and 'Denial Week' campaign which will be more successful than any that the club has experienced in recent years." This was the encouraging message forwarded to fellow barkers by the new Variety Club property master, Lewis A. Sumberg, in a report-letter. Sumberg urged attendance at the first meeting held under direction of the new officers, with Chief Barker George H. Schenck in the chair.

The Variety Club, which sponsored regional AAU boxing championship matches for two nights at Odd Fellows Hall, will make another tieup with Ben Becker, AAU chairman, on behalf of its camp for underprivileged boys. This is expected to take the form of a card in the AAU series being nationally televised from the Mid-City Arena, Albany-Troy Road. A souvenir booklet, containing advertisements from business establishments, friends of the AAU sports supporters and Variety members, will again be promoted. The second annual affair is set for Nov. 27, and will be telecast over the American Broadcasting Company network. A committee comprising Chief Barker George H. Schenck, former Chief Barkers Charles A. Smakwitz and Harry Lamont, Irwin Ullman, Mohawk Drive-In manager and Fabian Theatres promotionist, and William Wennar are on the arrangements committee; and have made a tiein with Phillies Cigars. Tickets are being sold at $1.25 and $2.

Amsterdam

Winners of the special film company exploitation awards in the Neighborhood Theatre, Inc., "Sam Bendheim, Jr. Drive" were announced. The drive lasted from July 4 through Labor Day, with awards made on the basis of originality, potential effectiveness, size of situation, and the possibilities at hand for each engagement involved, from scrapbooks submitted. Results showed Celia McCoy, Beacon, Hopewell, Va., coming off a four-time winner. She received a $200 bond from 20th-Fox for "River Of No Return," a $100 bond from MGM for "Men Of The Fighting Lady," a $100 bond from Warners for "Lucky Me," and the Walt Disney bronze trophy for "Pinocchio." Other winners were James Meyers, Bluebird, Petersburg, Va., UA's "Apache," $100 cash; Tom Connell, Westhampton, here, U-I's "Francis Joins The WACS," $100 bond; and Fred Culler, Cameo, Bristol, Va., RKO's "Susan Slept Here," $50 bond.

Morton Thalhimer, head, Neighborhood Theatre, Inc., became a grandfather for the first time when his son, Morton, became the proud father of his first heir, Morton, III, born at Medical College Hospital on Oct. 25 and weighing seven pounds, two ounces. The parents issued cute birth announcements in the form of theatre tickets.

"Hansel and Gretel" broke every attendance record at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y., grossing $40,287 in six days!

...and Xmas will come early (and stay late) when you play
"Hansel and Gretel", this year's great holiday show!

"Hansel and Gretel" is the miracle that happens only once to the very young...at heart.

And all the New York critics and the long lines at the box office must be young at heart, because they agree that "Hansel and Gretel" is great entertainment for everybody.

"A fine film for children . . . should delight fanciful grown-ups, too! Mr. Myerberg's daring has admirably paid off . . . a charming entertainment in both the musical and the novelty line. This picture has the quality of a truly visualized fairy tale."

—Bosley Crowther, New York Times

"It calls for cheers. The Kinemins walk, talk, sing and dance as though they were really alive. Displays an imaginative eye for the picturesque."

—Kate Cameron, Daily News

"Hansel and Gretel" certainly solves the problem of where to take the young ones on a holiday or birthday outing. The elusive spirit of fantasy has been caught with sprightly delicacy that is likely to spread its enchantment over Broadway for many a month."

—Alton Cook, New York World-Telegram

"The picture can be summed up as a very remarkable achievement."

—Archer Winsten, New York Post

"A charming musical fantasy."

—Rose Pelwick, New York Journal-American

"Rises into great and exalted beauty . . . literally sings its way into your heart."

—Jesse Zunser, Cue Magazine

"Amazingly Real. Myerberg has created a wonderful fairy tale that will be loved by all children and many adults. 'Hansel and Gretel' is a masterpiece of mechanical creation that evolves with delightful charm and whimsy."

—Frank Quinn, Daily Mirror

THESE CHANGING TIMES

THE development in St. Louis where, under an agreement between exhibitors and the local IATSE unit, many theatres are now converting to one man in the booth is evidence of progressive action on the part of the organization headed by Richard F. Walsh.

President Walsh's local, in brief, took a realistic attitude that times were changing.

It might be pointed out that under the agreement, the single man in the booth will receive a healthy boost in wages, and the exhibitors made a contribution to the union's retirement fund, but it was to be expected that the theatremen had to be as cooperative as the union.

In many cities, there are still local ordinances providing for two men in a booth, but these are currently being repealed with the union's blessing. Where the union does so, it will benefit from new agreements in the long run.

Since the industry has converted to non-inflammable film, and it won't be long before it will no longer be necessary for exchanges to pay terrific rentals for vault space as presently constituted, it stands to reason that the same changes in the safety factor must affect the booth situation.

With the IATSE operating under a system of local autonomy, progress along the lines indicated in St. Louis may be slow, but it cannot be denied that what has happened in one of the country's larger cities and more important exhibition centers is being eyed with interest by unions and theatremen throughout the country.

COMBINED EXHIBITOR CONVENTIONS

THERE is considerable merit to the thought that has been advanced, that in the future, five organizations could schedule their annual conventions in a one-week period to allow exhibitors and others to make the most of what these meetings have to offer.

Under this plan, the two national exhibitor bodies, Allied and the TOA would meet in the same hotel in the same city during a six-day period, splitting the week. At the same time TESMA, TEDA, and the IPA would hold their exhibits and sessions in the same hotel for a complete one-week showing.

This would allow the entire industry to devote the period to the business at hand as well as being able to learn of the latest developments and the equipment in allied fields.

The thought is there, and it deserves the most serious consideration from the five bodies affected.

PRAISE FOR BENNIE BERGER

THE NAME of Benjamin Berger has long been identified with the more militant exhibitor leaders of the country, so it might be possible that many industryites are not acquainted with the fact that he has been active in the Crusade For Freedom, a project of the American Heritage Foundation, particularly in promoting Radio Free Europe.

The Minneapolis exhibitor, in his capacity as Minnesota's co-chairman for the Crusade For Freedom, recently joined other national leaders in inspecting Radio Free Europe's extensive overseas installations.

Industry cooperation has been forthcoming for the Crusade, but we doubt whether many in the trade has been as active as Berger.

This is a concrete evidence of a specific accomplishment which can only result in future good will for the industry.

SALUTE SUCCESSFUL SOLONS

FROM more than one source has come a suggestion to exhibitors to get in touch with their Congressman and Senators who were successful in the recent elections.

Inasmuch as there will be changes in the House and Senate committee lineup, it becomes important for exhibitors to stick as closely as possible to their legislators. It has also been suggested that a letter of congratulations be sent to them.

It has also been pointed out that the same thing might be done on the state level, to visit Representatives and the Senators and congratulate them on their victories.

With the need for revenues ever constant, one never knows what turn the legislative mind might take, so the above suggestion seems entirely in order.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

It seems that history is repeating itself. The alarming language used by a motion picture distributor in the Sept. 29 issue of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR resembles very much the warning of the late Sidney Kent, 20th-Fox executive, gave to the nation's theatre owners in a circular letter quite a number of years ago, that we will rue the day when the Neely Bill becomes a law, but when he was confronted with replies and facts from various exhibitors, including the writer of this article, he changed his mind, and to avoid passage of the bill, he headed a committee to remedy the evils arbitrarily. He accomplished many good things, God bless his soul, but he died, and what he did and preached was forgotten. The results we all remember, Congressional appropriations, F.B.I. investigations, confiscation of records, indictments, convictions, consent decrees, and false promises, and the only good thing that came out after the long years of dedications is the sliding scale, which is the only fair method to merchandise moving pictures. But it is not generally adopted and not fairly used.

So now we have a slavery instead of freedom on enterprise in this industry, with theatres closing and litigation galore, with many joining associations and many more throwing themselves at the mercy of the combines for help.

Mr. Distributor speaks about the approach to socialism and puts pictures in the same classification with other merchandise, such as groceries, shoes, hardware, and the like. Yet it is generally known that those merchants have hundreds of sources to buy every piece of merchandise they dispense to the public outright, to be sold today, tomorrow, or any day with values and prices on them visible, from men who produced them with their own money, and the public can buy them from stores in every other block.

The picture which the producer makes with his own money, and is publicized in the nation's towns and communities as a must, is only one and it is rented by the day to be used on that day, and that day alone, and it has no visible value and price until it is used.

And the theatre which is also built with money and pays taxes, hires help, consumes fuel, light, and supplies and so on, is also one and has a visible standard, rentals and obligations.

And when the picture is offered at the set must terms, it has but one alternative, to either rob the public from seeing it and damn the theatre owner, or rob and close the theatre. So this analysis shows that merchandising motion pictures is not shoes, clothing, potatoes or cabbages, but is not much different from water, light, gas, electricity, the various types of transportation and so forth, which are also produced by men's money; and government regulations had to step in, as it will eventually step in in this business, if sanity is not restored and the picture recognizes the theatres rental by the adoption of the sliding scale fairly practiced, and also clear the clearances by using the first-run as the base, and not as it is now, theatre after theatre.

This same distributor also seems to be quite angry at the men of constant cries who are hollering "copper," who became wealthy in this business after starting from nothing. He cites the early days as evidence, yet it is well-established that the cries and the complaints started when unfairness commenced, clearances violated, no protection, "must this-must that," "give me Saturday-give me Sunday," "this rental and that rental," "how you are going to get it is not my problem."

Adjustments? We'll take you for $40 and we'll return you $10 in about two, three, or four months if you don't stop hollering. Yet the sliding scale which is the effective remedy is not used except by 20th-Fox and Metro.

As to "became wealthy from nothing," it sounds quite unreasonable and can be applied to him as well. For certainly no man in his right mind goes into business, any business, to become poor. But with this exception, in the theatre business it takes only two items to increase the wealth for both the picture owner and the theatre owner. And if the one disregards the rights of the other as it is happening, both are losing, and also are not contributing to the progress of the entire industry.

And here is further proof. The writer of this article saw his first moving picture at the beginning of the century in an eating house in Coney Island for a five cent glass of soda, because there were no theatres then to show them. Then theatres or nickelodeons were built and admissions were charged. The question is of who started this wealth first. Who made who wealthy? Who was the largest investor, the picture producer or the theatre owner? Who of the two deserves the most credit? It is reasonable to believe that both deserve equal credit, also for starting the present film industry by their mutual cooperation and understanding. Those obligations and responsibilities are still with use, but by his mastery and superiority Mr. Producer and/or Distributor is destroying what was created by the reverse methods they were created, with ample proof that cannot be hidden. And government regulations seem to be the only answer and means for survival.

Dear Sirs:

I am new at this business and am relying constantly on the reviews and opinion in the MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, which I find of immense value.

WILLIAM I. DUMES

Dear Sir:

A month ago we received a check list of feature motion pictures in TV channels, and found it extremely helpful in a way that you have perhaps not foreseen. We have found in our theatre that pictures which have played on television do just as well as those which have not. Therefore, we scanned your list very attentively to find films that were still available to us. I just thought I might suggest to you that a good number of other theatres in this country find themselves in the same situation. If you were to draw up a list of reissues and older foreign pictures still in distribution, I am very certain that theatres such as mine would find it very helpful in booking their films.

Dear Sir:

Please send us one Service-Kit Ring Binder to keep MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR Servisections on file. I certainly think this is the best reviewing service. We refer to it every day for one type or film information or the other. It is the most complete guide offered to the exhibitors. Thanks for supplying us with this section of your magazine.

NEW YORK By Mel Konecuff

JULIAN BLAUSTEIN, executive producer, 20th-Fox, arrived in town recently to promote two of his latest films, "The Racers" and "Desiree," with particular concentration on the latter.

Said Blaustein, subscription TV has enormous possibilities if the mechanics can be ironed out, and grosses on individual films should be very big, somewhere in the neighborhood of 40 millions or more, but even if it brought in only about 10 or 12 millions it would be wonderful. At least 85 per cent of the membership of the Screen Producers Guild favors it.

He has given no thought to going into TV especially since his contract at Fox has a year to go as yet. He is happy with the treatment accorded his pix by exhibitors showmanshipwise and from an advertising viewpoint, and he felt that if a picture doesn't have a proper entertainment base a vigorous campaign isn't going to help very much. He thought TV could help in the promoting of films more than heretofore.

Casting problems are enormous with producers trying to satisfy a desire for new faces as well as for established stars, and in order to insure the right people for the right parts, talent must be lined up well in advance. There always has been a shortage of good stories and good players but they manage to keep coming along.

Audiences have always been literate. It's just that the industry hasn't been offering them what they want until recently, and high grosses show their appreciation.

CinemaScope hasn't been used effectively in every film to date but strides have been made in the right direction with new lenses, new lab techniques, better color, etc. VistaVision is a good process.

AA Leaves IMPPA

Due To Expansion

HOLLYWOOD—Following an expression of regret, members of the Independent Motion Picture Producers Association in a special meeting accepted the resignation of Allied Artists.

Edward Finney, secretary, read a letter from Steve Broidy, AA president, explaining that his company since it has embarked on an expanded production program has found it advisable to apply for membership with the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc.

Finney was named to succeed Broidy as president. Other officers elected were Lindsley Parsons, John Champion, and Jack Broder, vice-presidents; William F. Broidy, treasurer; John Burrows, assistant treasurer, and Vincent M. Fennelly, secretary.

Members of the IMPPA also named staffs of four committees. They include labor relations, Parsons, chairman; Broder, and B. B. Ray; MPIC, Spenser Lees, chairman; Parsons, Broidy, and Finney; health and welfare, David Garber, chairman.

Irving Rogosin was named as group legal counsel and executive representative.

Revised Censor Law

Sought In Maryland

BALTIMORE—The motion picture censorship in Maryland should be continued but on a restricted basis, according to a report brought out last week by a State Legislative Council subcommittee.

Under the proposed changes in censor laws, the first important ones since 1922, authorities could delete or ban films that are obscene, intended to debase or corrupt morals, or tend to incite to riot.

The proposed statute, in line with recent Supreme Court decisions against broad censorship powers, would remove the words "sacrilegious, indecent, inhuman and immoral" as grounds for banning pictures.

While the recommended law would limit grounds for censorship, it would give censors a much stronger position in cases that are taken to court.

Under present laws, an exhibitor can appeal a decision of the Maryland Board of Motion Picture Censors to the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City. If the exhibitor wins, the censor board has no right of appeal.

Under the proposed legislation, the board could take an adverse decision to the Maryland Court of Appeals, and on up to the U. S. Supreme Court, if necessary.

Senator Layman J. Redden, chairman of the special censorship committee, said this provision eventually would allow the Nation's highest court to rule on the constitutionality of Maryland censorship laws. Senator Redden also emphasized that the proposed legislation will contain precise definitions of what is obscene, or tending to incite crime or debase morals to allow no misunderstanding.

MITO Told Of 125 CinemaScope Pix In '55

TOA Officers Ask Aid In Production Finance; Martin, Starr Deplore Current Seller's Market

ST. LOUIS—Alex Harrison, 20th-Fox assistant general sales manager, addressing the opening session last week of the Missouri-Illinois Theatre Owners annual convention, stated that 125 new CinemaScope features will be forthcoming in 1955, with his company providing between 20 and 24.

Harrison added that 20th-Fox was pursuing a policy of making CinemaScope pictures available to exhibitors at a price they can afford to pay. He also expressed regret that in some cases optical prints of CinemaScope features were made available before full stereophonic prints were delivered by laboratories. He estimated that by next year 10,000 theatres will be ready for CinemaScope. Presently, there are 4,900 equipped for optical sound versions and about 3,500 ready for full stereophonic sound.

Herman Levy, general counsel, TOA, declaring that there isn't anything wrong "with this industry that a steady flow of reasonably good pictures made available at reasonable rentals can't cure," made a strong appeal for participation in the proposed new financing company that is to be formed to encourage production by independents. Each exhibitor was asked to invest one week's film rentals in the new company. Levy deplored that in some way a seller's market has developed in the film industry with a shortage of product, a shortage of prints, and film rentals reaching a point impossible for most exhibitors to meet and make a profit.

E. D. Martin, new TOA president, also stressed the importance of TOA's financing plan, calling its success vital to the health of exhibition and asking the support of all exhibitors, whether TOA members or not.

Albert M. Pickus, TOA vice-president, told delegates that there is no need to change from a small screen to a larger picture ratio provided that 2-D prints are made available of CinemaScope pictures and those made in other processes. He added that while this was fine for exhibitors willing to wait for that day, other theatremen should install a large screen after careful study so as to obtain the best possible reflective light setup.

Alfred Starr, TOA executive committee chairman, gave a four-point program for breaking the present seller's market. His advice to theatremen was to "begin to say no to deals from distributors that you know are unprofitable to you; eliminate cutthroat competition in exhibition; ask the Justice Department to review facts of the Paramount case and consent decrees to see if producer-distributors have not benefitted at the expense of exhibition; and encourage independent production.

Also addressing the convention were George Kerasotes, TOA vice-president, who offered to help the MITO set up

President Eisenhower Signs World Copyright Measure

WASHINGTON—At a White House ceremony last week President Eisenhower signed the instrument by which the U.S. ratifies the new Universal Copyright Convention. Forty other countries signed the treaty for the Convention at Geneva on Sept. 6, 1952. The Senate gave its consent to the treaty, and both houses passed the necessary domestic implementing legislation. Three months after the 12th country's ratification is deposited at UNESCO headquarters in Paris, the UCC will be in effect.

Industryites attending the ceremony were Austin C. Keough, vice-president and general counsel, Paramount, and chairman, Motion Picture Association's Law Committee; and Edward A. Sargoy, of the New York firm of Sargoy and Stein, who heads the copyright section of the American Bar Association, and was a technical consultant to the U.S. delegation at the 1952 conference in Geneva.

regional auxiliary groups; Mike Simons, MGM sales promotion manager; and various unit officers.

Lester R. Kropp, co-general manager, Fred Wehrenberg Theatres, was reelected as MITO president, and other officers include Tom Bloomer, past president and chairman of the board; Thomas James, vice-president; Joseph C. Ansell, treasurer; L. K. Williams, secretary; Paul Krueger, D. Medley, and Eddie Clark, regional vice-presidents; John Meinardi, sergeant-at-arms; and Philip Manos, general counsel.

Holdovers Continue Steady On Broadway

NEW YORK—Holdovers continue to dominate the Broadway first-run houses, with only two new entries breaking into the lineup, as business held steady.

According to the usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"A STAR IS BORN" (Warners). Paramount was heading toward $53,000 for the fifth, and last, week.

"A STAR IS BORN" (Warners). Victoria, playing day-and-date with the Paramount, reported $30,000 for the fifth week.

"BLACK WIDOW" (20th-Fox). Roxy claimed $25,592 for Wednesday through Sunday, with third week down to $31,000.

"WHITE CHRISTMAS" (Paramount). Radio City Music Hall, with stage show, checked in with $112,000 for Thursday through Sunday, with the fifth week expected to be a robust $160,000.

"SABRINA" (Paramount) Criterion, in the fifth week, was down to $21,000.

"CARMEN JONES" (20th-Fox). Rivoli was headed for $40,000 on the third week.

"A BULLET IS WAITING" (Columbia). Globe, with one of the two new entries, estimated $10,000 for the first week.

"SUDDENLY" (UA). Mayfair, in the sixth week was down to $11,500.

"ON THE WATERFRONT" (Columbia). Astor, on the 16th week was heading toward $20,000.

"BAREFOOT CONTESSA" (UA). Capitol reported $21,000 for Thursday through Sunday, and was heading for $28,000 on the seventh week.

"PHFFFT" (Columbia). Loew's State, with the other new offering, was expected to hit $40,000 for the first week.

Committee Seeks Audience

NEW YORK—Ways and means of expanding the movie audience were explored last week at an informal meeting of company sales and advertising-publicity heads with a group of TOA representatives.

The discussion covered a wide range of subjects, including audience research, market surveys, media advertising, and special projects to attract and hold new audiences.

Al Lichtman, 20th-Fox sales chief, and distribution representative on COMPO, planned to convey the highlights of the suggestions to the meeting of the industry organization early this week.

Morey Goldstein, Allied Artists sales head and chairman of the MPAA sales managers' committee, said, "The meeting was sound, constructive and harmonious. In a fair and friendly fashion we discussed ways and means to increase the audience for motion pictures. I think we have made a good start. With all segments of our industry participating, we can accomplish our goal of bringing even greater numbers of people back to the theatres of our nation."

Headed by E. D. Martin, new president, the TOA delegation also included Walter Reade, Jr., and Leonard Goldenson.

The meeting devoted considerable discussion to methods of interesting the nation's youth in motion pictures.

Visiting Japanese Industryites Seek Larger Market For Product

NEW YORK—Tadayoshi Asao and Motumo Ohno, Japanese film executives, arrived here last week as part of a world tour in which they are surveying the American and European market. It is their expressed hope to make films aimed at these markets.

Asao and Ohno, members of the board of directors of the Shochiku Company, Ltd., the biggest production, distribution, and exhibition organization in Japan, met the trade press in the United Artists home office. Also present was Arthur Krim, UA president, who revealed that his company is negotiating with Shochiku on a co-production deal. Shochiku currently handles United Artists distribution in Japan.

The Japanese industry leaders said that their main purpose in visiting the United States was to observe the changes in entertainment directions and to learn more about the industry's business point of view. They plan to utilize their observations by producing films with a calculated appeal to both the American and European markets.

Last year the company entered two features in Eastman Color at the Venice and Cannes festivals in an attempt to make an impact on the European market. In this country, it was pointed out, one of the company's productions, "The Imposter," will be released shortly before Christmas by Brandon Films. Unlike "Ugetsu" and "Rashomon," "The Imposter" is a commercial film rather than an exclusively art motion picture.

Outlining the Japanese film industry, Ohno and Asao said that there are six major producing companies in their country that produce about 52 pictures a year, aside from five or six independents producing a few more films. As a result, there is no product shortage with about 300 pictures produced each year. The Shochiku Company, the executives said, made 70 pictures last year. The average cost of a film in Japan is $50,000, with special films costing up to $500,000.

Columbia Forms Music Company

NEW YORK—Columbia last week entered into a partnership with Shapiro-Bernstein, one of the oldest music publishing companies, to publish and exploit all music from forthcoming Columbia films in all media, sheet music, radio, television, records, etc. The new company will be known as Columbia Pictures Music Corporation, and was set up last week by Jonie Taps, producer and music exploitation chief at Columbia studio, who was associated with Shapiro-Bernstein for 15 years before joining Columbia.

Activities of the new firm will start immediately and will include exploitation of the numbers in Taps' own production, the CinemaScope Technicolor musical, "Three For The Show," starring Betty Grable, Marge and Gower Champion, and Jack Lemmon.

Columbia expects that the new company will afford an excellent opportunity for increased picture promotion with both exhibitors and the public.

Tadayoshi Asao, left, and Motumo Ohno, executives of the Shochiku Company, Ltd., Japan's leading production-distribution-exhibition organization, and Arthur B. Krim, right, president, United Artists, met the trade press recently at UA's New York home office. The Japanese film leaders, on a world tour to survey the international market for native product, conferred with Krim on UA's line-up for 1955. UA distributes its product in Japan through Shochiku. In the rear is Louis Lober, general manager, UA's foreign department. Co-production was discussed.

Asao expressed concern about the television situation in Japan. Although TV sets are very expensive and mountainous landscapes prevent long distance telecasting, Asao felt that the industry is beginning to grow. Tokyo has two TV stations and Osaka has one, it was said.

Ohno said that only about seven pictures out of the 300 produced annually are made by Communists, and these, he added, must offer some entertainment values. Attempts to make pure propaganda films, he said, were a failure at the boxoffice.

The Japanese industry heads were accompanied by T. Koide, the company's U.S. representative. The trio plans to visit several important cities in the United States as part of their world tour which already has taken them to Italy, Switzerland, Germany, France, Belgium, and Great Britain.

High Court Hears Cases

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court last week received two cases, each having an indirect bearing on the motion picture industry, and it was expected that rulings would be forthcoming this month. The cases involved the government's Schubert anti-trust suit and the similar action against professional boxing. Arguing both actions for the Attorney General was Philip Elman, anti-trust division, Department of Justice.

To be decided in the former case is the question of whether or not performances by live actors are subject to the anti-trust statutes. The lower court, citing the ruling given in favor of baseball as precedence, refused the government's suit.

Elman argued that if the government wins its suit against professional boxing, competition in that industry will be restored. Involved are the sizable returns from the production and distribution of motion picture films of championship fights.

AA Declares First Common Dividend

HOLLYWOOD—At the annual stockholders' meeting of Allied Artists at the studio, presided over by Steve Broidy, president, the present board was reelected. The members are G. Ralph Branton, Broidy, Arthur C. Bromberg, George D. Burrows, W. Ray Johnston, Harold J. Mirisch, Edward Morey, Herman Rifkin, Norton V. Ritchey, and Howard Stubbins.

Broidy announced that operations of the company and its wholly owned subsidiaries for the first quarter of the present fiscal year, ended on Oct. 2, resulted in a profit before federal income taxes of $200,697. This amount compares with $224,990 for the quarter ended on Sept. 26, 1953. Net profit after taxes amounted to $92,697 for this quarter as compared to $98,990 for the same period in the previous year.

Following the meeting, the board reelected all of the present officers. The quarterly dividend of 13¾ cents per share on the company's 5½ per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock was voted for payment on Dec. 15 to stockholders of record Dec. 3.

Broidy stated that he was pleased to announce that payment of the first common stock cash dividend in the company's history had been approved. This cash dividend of 10 cents per share will be payable on Jan. 3 to stockholders of record on Dec. 10.

The AA president also announced that the company would continue the dividend policy at such times when earnings and the financial position of Allied Artists warranted such a move.

W. Va. Drive-In Sues For All

FAIRMONT, W. VA.—Laskey Brothers' West Virginia, Inc., operator, Starlite Drive-In, last week filed an anti-trust action in U. S. District Court on behalf of itself and all other drive-ins in the country in similar positions.

Warners, Stanley Warner, RKO Pictures, 20th-Fox, National Theatres, U-I, Loew's, Inc., Loew's Theatres, Paramount, AB-PT, UA, Columbia, Allied Artists, Republic, Allied Artists Theatres, Skouras Theatres, Metropolitan Playhouses, Comerford, Randforce, Brandt Theatres, Fabian Theatres, Schine Circuit, William Bernstein Theatres, Kallett Theatres, Shea Theatres, the MPAA, and others are among the defendants named.

The suit seeks trebled damages of $450,000 and claims the Starlite has been discriminated against by the distributor and exhibitor defendants, including companies dissolved in the Government suit, and their successors. The action claims a national conspiracy against drive-ins involving runs, clearances, prices, and playdates.

The action was instituted by the law firm of Malkan and Ellner, which last week filed anti-trust suits on behalf of drive-ins in the Federal District Court, Pittsburgh.

The law firm also has filed a "class" action for $1,040,000 damages in behalf of the Austin Theatre, Inc., operator, Austin, Queens, N. Y., and others similarly situated, naming the same defendants.

"Cinerama" Showing Planned Overseas

WASHINGTON—Samuel Rosen, executive vice-president, Stanley Warner Corporation, revealed last week that the State Department wants to display "This Is Cinerama" in Bangkok as part of the U. S. Government's efforts to sell America in crucial overseas areas.

Rosen made his disclosure at a Washington Advertising Club luncheon honoring the first anniversary of the Washington showing of "This Is Cinerama," which is the first film to run a year in the nation's capitol.

Noting the success of "This Is Cinerama" in long runs around the United States, and also the recent Damascus International Fair, where it was displayed by the State Department with enthusiastic native reaction, Rosen said, "The State Department wants to show Cinerama in Siam, feeling it will accomplish the same results there for the free world as it did in Damascus."

Rosen said Cinerama would open in Montreal, Buffalo, and Miami shortly after Christmas.

Lowell Thomas, president, Cinerama Production Corporation, discussed briefly plans for the third Cinerama production, "Seven Wonders Of The World."

Seated at the head table at the ad club luncheon were diplomatic representatives of India, Pakistan, Thailand, Burma, and Indonesia.

The District of Columbia Commissioners proclaimed the day "Cinerama Day" in Washington and special citations were presented the film at the luncheon from the Legion of Decency, the district department of the American Legion, and the Washington Board of Trade. The citations were accepted by W. Stewart McDonald, vice-president and treasurer, Stanley Warner; Lester B. Isaac, national director of exhibition, Cinerama; and Rosen.

TOA Plan Advances

NEW YORK—E. D. Martin, president, Theatre Owners of America, last week advised J. R. Grainger, president, RKO Radio Pictures that the TOA is definitely interested in stimulating independent production of quality pictures through the formation of a newly created finance company.

Martin added that the board of trustees, chaired by Sam Pinanski, will soon hold an organizational meeting, and when the plan is off the ground a committee will be pleased to meet with Grainger and C. J. Tevlin on the question of financing production.

At the same time, Walter Reade, Jr., chairman, TOA board, advised Ben Marcus, Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, that the TOA is "sympathetic" toward Allied's emergency defense committee. If Berger sets a time and a place for a small committee of Allied to meet with a small committee of TOA, Martin will be glad to appoint the committee to meet with him, Reade said.

Reade added that he looks forward "to exploring a solution to our mutual problems, in the spirit of friendship and understanding."

Branson Says RKO Profit Is Up; Reports On Superscope Showings

Mayer Sees Scarcity Of Good Foreign Films

NEW YORK—Arthur L. Mayer, independent foreign picture distributor, stated last week that at present there is a scarcity of good foreign films. He added that foreign product which has been well produced, with quality, flavor an appeal, has been given to the big distribution organizations leaving the small distributor with films that, in many cases, are not commercially sound.

Mayer continued that producers of foreign films, in order to have some sort of an export market, must incorporate all the local color possible, and then a film may have a chance in the U.S. "Imitating American production methods does not help them," he said.

Mayer plans to address the Independent Motion Picture Distributors' Association of Ontario and the Canadian Picture Pioneers in Toronto on Nov. 25 at the King Edward Hotel.

Whitney Enters Production

HOLLYWOOD—Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney last week announced the formation of a new motion picture company to be known as C. V. Whitney Pictures. He also revealed that Merian C. Cooper, president of Argosy Pictures with John Ford as chairman, has been appointed as vice-president in charge of production.

Whitney has bought "The Searcher," a recent best-seller by Alan Lema, which will be made next year as a large budget western, the first film on the shooting schedule of the new company. As yet, no release has been announced for the new company's films.

Cooper was co-producer and co-director of "This Is Cinerama," which led to the projection innovations which have changed the face of the industry, and Whitney also is no stranger to movie-making as he and his cousin, John Hay Whitney, were primary backers of "Gone With The Wind."

Louis Lober, general manager, United Artists' foreign department, recently celebrated his 25th year in the film industry. He began his career in 1929 with MGM and has since served with Warner Brothers International. He came to UA in 1951 as Continental manager in Paris and assumed his present post in New York in 1953.

NEW YORK—European exhibitors responded enthusiastically to demonstrations of Superscope in the major capitals, said Walter E. Branson, worldwide salesman for RKO, who returned last fortnight after a five-week tour of Europe and reported that his company's worldwide profits were up five per cent over last year.

Attending Superscope showings in London, Paris, and Rome, Branson found great interest on the part of exhibitors in the Tushinsky process as displayed in the high attendance. Exhibitors from all over England saw the showing at London's Odeon, 2,000 attended the showing at Paris' Rex, and the demonstration drew 1,900 exhibitors in Rome.

While in Europe, Branson held sales meetings with RKO branch managers and salesmen in London, Amsterdam, Brussels, Paris, and Rome. He also went through France's sub branches of Marseilles and Lyon.

A wider world market here and abroad, said Branson, would result from RKO's new policy of printing all its major releases in the future anamorphically so that they would be compatible with CinemaScope equipment already installed. Branson explained that this will be the first time that pictures not shot in CinemaScope can be played through the CinemaScope lens in theatres. RKO's first picture to be distributed in the new printing process will be "Underwater!", which will also have optical sound.

Branson also claimed that RKO's foreign profits were up slightly from last year despite fewer productions. This he attributed to a better job of selling and distribution by foreign personnel; generally healthy business conditions in Europe and the near east; a substantial reissue program; the improving German market; and the fact that pictures not shown before in Europe because of quota restrictions are now being picked up to fill the allotment. Everywhere, Branson added, RKO is filling its quota on the import of films.

On the question of film festivals, Branson asserted that they had become very commercial and has lost the purpose for which they were created. He suggested that they be regulated so that they can again be restricted purely to appraising product.

Branson explained that RKO is handling only the physical distribution of the Tushinsky lens on the foreign market.

Studios Mull TV Show

HOLLYWOOD—It was disclosed last week that Robert J. O'Donnell, Interstate Circuit head, was invited to join a meeting composed of motion picture studio representatives including Y. Frank Freeman, Dore Schary, E. J. Mannix, Max Youngstein, Dave Lipton, and others who discussed the possibility of presenting a show on Jan. 2, 1955, called "Salute To Motion Pictures," over NBC-TV.

The industryites met behind closed doors with John K. West and Fred Wile, Jr., both of NBC.

Amusement Tax Stifles Small Exhibs

TORONTO—Exhibitors across the country continue to feel the pressure of the amusement tax. Decisive action was taken by exhibitors in Manitoba, when, led by Ben Sommers, an anti-tax rally was held in Winnipeg, following which a meeting was held with government officials. In Ontario, too, exhibitors have a committee, representing all degrees of exhibitor-size, which is planning an onslaught on the amusement tax issue against the Provincial Government after the New Year. The subject will also be a key point in the convention discussions of the Motion Picture Exhibitors Association of Canada later this month.

The Ontario Exhibitors Committee for Admission Tax Relief has been meeting since its organization in June. Plans call for the submission of a brief at the time the Legislature meets. The brief would be presented to Premier Leslie Frost, who, as Provincial Treasurer, administers the amusement tax.

Arguments presented by exhibitors are that the small theatres are giving in tax what would be their profit, and because of the level of their operations, they can't raise admission prices or they would price themselves right out. Not only would tax reduction give the exhibitor an opportunity of price reduction, it would give him an opportunity of retaining some of his money.

The exhibitor faces TV, high prices, and unemployment. One or a combination of all these factors works in various places. Common suggestion is to remove the import on all tickets below 50 cents with a reduction on all over that price. Business is downhill, say exhibitors, and relief is needed now.

Canadian Comment

An unusual but most effective editorial was carried by a small weekly paper which sought to arouse townspeople to attend the local community theatre. Support was asked by the Watford Guide-Advocate for the six days per week Reo, Watford, owned by Rex McLeod. The town numbers 1,200 persons, but there is a threat that the theatre, opened in 1946, will be closed. The editorial was headed, "Would You Close Reo Theatre?" The Reo has 412 seats, but the newspaper points out how essential the theatre is to the social and business life of any community that those seats be filled more often. The editorial, on the front-page, pointed out that the theatre was the envy of even much larger towns. It asks pointedly, "How frequently have you or your family attended the various film presentations?" The theatre has carried the better film programs, films to suit every taste. It ranks among "our most important business services from the manner in which it has been operated." The paper recalls the days when in gasoline rationing and the hungry '30's the townspeople had to make their way to larger nearby towns to see films and remember "how grateful we were with the opening of our fine new theatre." The paper suggests all should attend more regularly. This sort of action by the small weekly suggests the basis of many such editorials in towns across the country where attendance has been shooed away by other forms of entertainment. This column makes the suggestion that a copy of the editorial be obtained from The Watford Guide-Advocate, Watford, Ont.

New theatres in the future include two for Moncton, New Brunswick. Work has begun for one owned by Franklin and Herschorn, while Odeon Theatres (Canada) Ltd. has awarded a contract for erection of a building to replace the old Kent. Moncton has two Odeon houses and two Famous Players units. At present there are 20 standard houses under construction and 27 planned, while the number of drive-ins in work is 25, with nine planned. So far this year, 66 new theatres have opened in Canada, 24 standard houses and 42 drive-ins. Opened recently was the Cinema Joliette, M. Gerard Venne's 600-seat house in Joliette, Que. The 16,064-population city has three theatres now, with Venne operating two of them.

South Africa

At a recent hearing conducted by the South African import controller's office the recently formed Independent Exhibitors' Association opposed applications by MGM, 20th-Fox, and the Schlesinger organization for permission to import CinemaScope and other new wide screen equipment which have so far been barred. The organization's opposition was based on the contention that the new medium is expensive and impractical for their needs. They maintain that standard 2-D prints of CinemaScope productions are sufficient for current purposes. It is believed that the hearing will have bearing, also, on VistaVision in the market, owing to Schlesinger's association with Paramount here.

Studio overhead has come down in recent months with the result that more money appears visible on the screen. For instance 48 days were spent in the making of "Desiree" and some $2,700,000, whereas about two years ago, the same film would have cost the company a million-and-a-half more.

"The Racers," which will probably be released in February or March, is practically completed except for some editing and scoring, and this cost in the vicinity of $2,600,000 with much of it shot abroad. The CinemaScope lenses really add much to the film, which is expected to gross quite heavily abroad where the subject is a hot one.

He is presently preparing for filming "A Many Splendored Thing," "Good Morning, Miss Dove," and "The View From Pompey's Head," a novel just purchased for $75,000.

CONFERENCE CONFERENCE: Representatives from all branches of the industry gathered at luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria to witness the windup of last year's Brotherhood Campaign of the National Conference and to welcome the new chairman for 1955, John H. Harris, Harris Amusement Company, Pittsburgh.

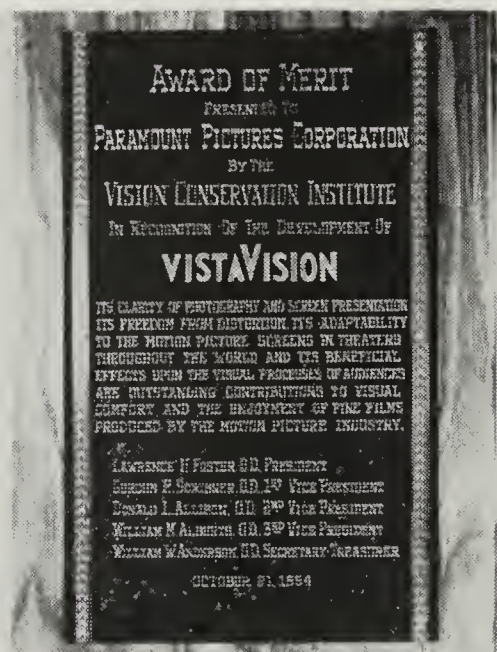

Harris, being one of the founders of the Variety Clubs, has revealed that the organization's officers, past and present, have offered to assist him in putting the drive over, and he noted that the Variety Clubs themselves have shown the kind of job that can be done without heed to race or creed. Jokingly, he thought that if all present were to donate a thousand dollars then the campaign would be over the top. Gerald Shea, president, Shea Theatres, took him up on it and made a $1,000 donation, surprising Harris.

Sol Schwartz, RKO Theatres president and former campaign manager presented a plaque to last year's chairman, Emanuel Frisch, after paying tribute to him. Frisch praised the trade press for lavish and record coverage of the campaign, as well as Max Youngstein, who headed the publicity committee, and Harry Brandt, Eugene Picker, Sol Schwartz, J. Robert Rubin, Mort Sunshine, and others who assisted. Special mention was made of the cooperation by National Screen Service in getting out the various needed material to the field. Frisch also presented Harris with some constructive advice for this year's campaign.

Dr. Miller Ritchie, president, Hartwick College, discussed brotherhood and education and saluted the industry and its executives. J. Robert Rubin, Loew's, and permanent amusements division chairman, presided.

research for a vacuum cleaner manufacturer, that the moviegoer found time to watch TV through labor-saving electrical appliances.

For instance, a vacuum cleaner saves four hours a week; an automatic washer, six hours; a refrigerator, two hours; a dishwasher, six hours; a freezer, three hours, etc., etc.

Thus, says Miss Lewyt, theatres never did lose business because of TV. If a TV show was a top attraction, then it did draw an audience of course, but still the viewer managed to visit the local theatre if the picture was good enough.

Industry Equipment Exports Increase

WASHINGTON—Nathan D. Golden, director, scientific, motion picture, and photographic products division, Bureau of the Census, announced last week that preliminary statistics reveal that exports of motion picture films and equipment during the first half of 1954 amounted to $18,457,874, almost 30 per cent higher than the $14,297,432 figure reported for the comparable period last year. The increase was due largely to higher foreign shipments of 8mm. equipment and theatre equipment, but the value of film exports also increased.

Prominent in the increased equipment exports were large foreign shipments of sound reproducing equipment, motion picture screens, and theatre projection equipment. There were also sizable jumps in the export of 8mm. cameras and projectors and 16mm. sound projectors.

Even here, however, the product shortage was felt as exports of exposed feature films, both 35mm. and 16mm. positive and negative, in the first half of this year totaled 145,305,741 linear feet valued at $5,237,380, compared to 158,089,070 linear feet valued at $5,305,560 in January-June last year.

Despite a decline in export of 35mm. positive raw stock for the six month period, there were substantial increases in exports of all other unexposed stock.

Goldenson, AB-PT president, announced a dividend of 25 cents per share on the outstanding common and preferred stock, payable on Dec. 20 to holders of record on Nov. 26. . . . Dorothy Dandridge, starring in 20th-Fox's "Carmen Jones," embarked on a publicity tour of Boston, Chicago, and Cleveland. . . . Walter Branson, RKO world-wide sales manager, announced that more than 50 theatres have booked "Cattle Queen Of Montana" for Thanksgiving Day. . . . It was revealed that the city selling the most Christmas Seals in relation to population will receive the world premiere of Warners' "The Silver Chalice" as a holiday gift.

The world premiere of Walt Disney's "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea" was set for the Astor, New York, on Dec. 23, with openings at the Fox-Wilshire, Los Angeles, and State Lake, Chicago, on Christmas Day. . . . IFE's "Theodora, Slave Empress," was booked into 20 Texas cities beginning on Dec. 2. . . . Allied Artists' "Tonight's The Night" was set for pre-release in Charleston, Houston, Tex., Minneapolis, and St. Paul, Minn. . . . UA's "Twist Of Fate" had its gala American premiere at the Monroe, Chicago, with stars Ginger Rogers and her husband, Jacques Bergerac, in attendance. . . . Oscar A. Morgan, Paramount short subjects sales manager, announced a VistaVision production program to yield between six and eight shorts per year. . . . Arthur B. Krim, UA president announced that Anatole Litvak will produce and direct three independent films for the company.

UA Names Winners In Benjamin Drive

NEW YORK—United Artists' New York, Cleveland, and Milwaukee branches have captured the three first-place prizes for the first lap of the "Robert S. Benjamin Drive," it was announced last week by B. G. Kranze, general sales manager and co-captain of the push saluting the company's board chairman.

The New York branch is managed by Joseph Sugar, the Cleveland exchange is bossed by Dave Rosenthal, and Joe Imhof heads the Milwaukee branch.

The Benjamin drive, supporting the "blockbuster-a-month" releasing program recently unveiled by president Arthur B. Krim, will award a grand total of $50,000 in prizes to winners among United Artists' 32 U. S. and Canadian branches, which are competing in three groups of equal grossing potential.

Runner-up to New York in the first group is Sidney Cooper's Washington exchange, while Mort Magill's Philadelphia branch took third place. In the second group, second-prize money went to the Kansas City exchange headed by R. Amacher, with H. Keeter's Charlotte branch earning third position. The Calgary branch led by Robert Radis finished second in the third group, with the number three spot won by the Pittsburgh branch under James Hendel.

Boston "New Faces" Honored

BOSTON—Three hundred industryites attended a testimonial luncheon for "new faces in new positions" last week at the Hotel Bradford. Honored were exchange personnel who have been promoted or transferred during the past year. Benn Rosenwald, MGM manager, was general chairman, who introduced toastmaster Arthur Lockwood.

Honored were John Moore and Jack Brown, Paramount; James Connolly and John Felony, 20th-Fox; Judson Parker, Republic; Herbert Schaefer, Buena Vista; Francis Dervin, RKO; Joseph Gins, U-I; Ralph Iannuzzi, Warners; and Bill Madden, MGM. Each was presented with appropriate gifts.

At the head table were Kenneth Douglass and James Marshall, Variety Club of New England, sponsors of the affair; and Theodore Fleisher, chairman, 1954 Jimmy Fund; Martin J. Mullin; and Samuel Pinanski.

New C'Scope Manual Available

NEW YORK—Publication of a third edition of a 76-page, illustrated CinemaScope technical book containing information for the theatre on all phases of installation and recommended operating procedures with the new entertainment medium was announced last week by 20th-Fox.

Prepared by the film company's technical organization under the direction of Earl I. Sponable, research director, the work is designed "to provide the distributor, exhibitor and operating personnel with some basic understanding of CinemaScope, to indicate equipment changes, to describe installation procedures, apparatus adjustment, differences in handling practice, and precautions which should be observed, as well as certain operating procedures."

Copies of the handbook are being sent to all theatres equipped for CinemaScope and theatre equipment suppliers with distribution to be made through the company's domestic and foreign offices. One section of the comprehensive book is devoted specifically to drive-ins.

SCTOA Charges Monopoly Practices By Distributors

HOLLYWOOD—The Southern California Theatre Owners Association last week sent to Senator Andrew F. Schoepel, chairman, subcommittee on monopoly of the Senate Select Committee on Small Business, a list of grievances citing alleged "monopoly" practices by the major film producers and distributors.

The association claims that the consent decree, which established competitive bidding for product, has resulted in giving the distributors new price control powers which, it is said, are being used to the detriment of the "individual or small circuit theatre owner."

According to SCTOA the position of the small theatre operator has been aggravated by the production cut-back in Hollywood studios and an alleged reduction in the number of prints available to theatres.

The association urged the Senate committee to act to bring about reforms to help the small theatre owner to "obtain sufficient purchasing power so that he can expect a reasonable profit on his investment."

Hyman Announces Film Acquisition

NEW YORK—Eliot Hyman, president, Associated Artists Productions, Inc., announced last week the acquisition of 24 new films for theatrical release. The recently organized firm will handle films for both theatre and TV distribution.

Most of the films for theatrical use are English-made, and the first is "Heart Of The Matter," opening at the Trans-Lux Normandie this week. All of the product will be released to TV following approximately two years of theatrical distribution.

The company has also acquired a number of films not shown before on television for theatrical re-release and a package of silent features known as "The Hall Of Fame Classics" for repertory booking on the art circuits.

For television release, the company has lined up 335 foreign and independently produced domestic features. The company also owns 16mm. rights to this list of product.

Hyman said main offices have been established here and regional offices will be open before the end of the year in Chicago, Dallas, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Detroit, Pittsburgh, and Charlotte, completing the exchange setup.

Hyman thought that subscription television should prove successful if and when it goes through providing the right product is available, but he thought that picture business in theatres won't suffer because the public is still interested in getting out for some portion of its entertainment.

Disney Schedule Set

NEW YORK—Charles Levy, advertising and publicity director, Buena Vista, the Walt Disney releasing organization, announced last week releasing plans for the next year and a half.

In addition to the current release, "Vanishing Prairie," the release of "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea" will take place at Christmas time; "Lady And The Tramp," CinemaScope feature cartoon, will go out in late spring; and "Littlest Outlaw" will go out late in the summer. In addition, "African Lion," a True-Life Adventure, and "Siam," first in the Peoples and Places series, will be released during this period.

Rackmil Gains Control Of Decca Records

NEW YORK—Milton R. Rackmil last week became the controlling factor in Decca Records, which he heads, and through Decca, its subsidiary, Universal Pictures, which he also serves as president. With his associates, Rackmil has now obtained control of over 500,000 shares of Decca common. A block of 103,000 shares was acquired recently from Lansall Corporation, investment company. Another sizable block of 75,000 shares passed to Rackmil as voting trustee.

Consolidated net earnings of Decca Records for the nine months ended on Sept. 30, including the company's share of undistributed earnings of the subsidiary, Universal Pictures, amounted to $2,272,602, equal to $1.42 per share on 1,602,501 outstanding shares of capital stock.

In the corresponding period of 1953 Decca reported earnings of $471,593, equal to 35 cents per share on 1,354,158 shares of capital stock outstanding on Sept. 30, 1953. The 1953 earnings did not include Decca's then proportional share of Universal's undistributed earnings.

Stars To Salute Fabian

NEW YORK—A star-studded cast of stage, screen, and TV personalities will be presented at the 16th Annual Showmanship Dinner of the Motion Picture Pioneers, honoring Si Fabian as "Pioneer of the Year," tonight (Nov. 17) at the Hotel Sheraton Astor, it was announced by Morton Sunshine, entertainment chairman.

Among the celebrities announced as taking part in the "Si Fabian Story," a cavalcade of the industry from the nickelodeon era to Cinerama, are film stars George Murphy and Van Johnson; Lucia Albanese, Metropolitan opera star; Lowell Thomas, famed commentator; John Daly, newscaster; Sherry Britton, dancing star; Dorothy Sarnoff, of "King And I" fame; The Deep River Boys, recording stars; Dore Brooks, society's chanteuse; and Bill Hayes, star of "Me And Juliet." Assisting Sunshine on staging and lighting is Dave Bines, who stages the Palace shows.

N. J. Theatre Asks $1,050,000

UNION CITY, N. J.—Marlies Theatre Corporation's Park last fortnight filed in U. S. District Court a $1,050,000 anti-trust suit against the eight major film companies, Republic, Skouras Theatres, subsidiaries of Loew's, Stanley Warner, and RKO Theatres.

The suit claims that the Park was deprived of first and subsequent run product because of an alleged conspiracy among the defendants.

Damage Rule Stymies Arbitration

NEW YORK—Al Lichtman, chairman, distributors' arbitration committee, divulged last week to Herman Levy, Theatre Owners of America general counsel, and Adolph Schimel, counsel for the distributors' arbitration committee, that rules for determining the extent of damages is the one point dividing exhibition and distribution from reaching agreement on an arbitration draft at this time.

MPAA's Cahill Asks End To Censorship

BALTIMORE—At a hearing on Maryland's censorship statute by a sub-committee of the State Legislative Council last week, Gerard M. Cahill, Motion Picture Association of America legal department, termed it "a part of the nibbling at our fundamental freedoms that is all too prevalent today—an insult to the intelligence of the movie-goer."

Arguing that Maryland's people are hobbled by an archaic system of previous restraint under the present law, Cahill said, "The effectiveness of the assignment that the motion picture has taken on to win friends for America abroad and to influence people for democracy all around the world is imperiled by the sniper's fire of censorship at home. Freedom of information is not selective; we cannot grant it to one medium and exclude another. How can we convince people in other countries of the world of our belief in freedom of expression—in all areas—when we fall short in practicing what we preach? The way to stop it is to root out censorship in free America."

Cahill cited U. S. Supreme Court rulings in film censorship cases, as well as decisions of other courts in Baltimore and Philadelphia. He also called attention to the fact that the Production Code protected the public from indecent or obscene films.

Paramount Bookers, Salesmen To Honor District Managers

NEW YORK—Paramount's division managers next month will be honored by the company's bookers and salesmen in the final sales drive of the calendar year, "Booker-Salesmen's Month." A. W. Schwalberg, president, Paramount Film Distributing Corporation, announced that the bookers and salesmen themselves elected to dedicate their "month" to the division managers.

To be honored in the December drive are Howard G. Minsky, mid-east; Bryan D. Stoner, central; A. M. Kane, south central; George A. Smith, western; and assistant division managers Gordon Bradley, southern; John G. Moore, eastern; and H. Neal East, western.

Columbia Toppers Hold Sales Meeting

CHICAGO—One of the most important sales conventions in Columbia history began at the Blackstone Hotel this week, it was announced by general sales manager A. Montague. The meetings are to run for five days.

Eighteen key sales and promotion executives from the home office were scheduled to meet with 38 domestic division and branch managers and the top seven sales executives from the Canadian organization. This is the first time that all the Canadian field sales executives are convening with their United States counterparts.

High on the agenda for the meetings are sales and distribution plans for the many outstanding features on the upcoming Columbia schedule, including the company's first five CinemaScope productions, the Technicolor films "Three For The Show," "My Sister Eileen," "The Violent Men," "The Long Gray Line," and "The Man From Laramie." Also to be discussed are sales and promotion plans for the remainder of the program and the product to be forthcoming from the studio and independent producers in the coming year.

In addition, the sales executives will concern themselves with the continuing liquidation of some of the Columbia successes of the past year, including "The Caine Mutiny" and "On The Waterfront."

TOA Board To Meet

CHICAGO—The directors of Theatre Owners of America decided last week that the mid-winter board meeting of the association will be held in Washington early in February. No selection has been made of a convention city for 1955, although Los Angeles seems favored, since this would bring the group close to production, which is in line with TOA's more product issue.

SW, Fabian To Move

NEW YORK—It was learned last week that Stanley Warner Corporation and Fabian Theatres, now occupying separate quarters, the former at 321 West 44th Street, and the latter in the Paramount Building, will move their respective home offices to the Stand Theatre Building, 1535 Broadway, early in 1955.

TNT Opera Debut Is Success

NEW YORK—Nathan L. Halpern, president, Theatre Network Television, claimed that the closed circuit telecast of the opening of the Metropolitan Opera in New York City in 32 theatres throughout the country was "very good."

Ticket prices in these houses ranged from $2 to a high of $5, with many houses having sell outs.

Except for a few moments, it was reported that the program came in excellently with only occasional fuzziness

A record crowd is expected at the Hotel Astor tonight to honor Si Fabian as "Pioneer of the Year" as the Motion Picture Pioneers hold their 16th

Annual Showmanship Dinner. Seen above is Barney Balaban, Paramount president, addressing last year's affair at which he was given this honor.

Ernest E. Blake, Kodak, Ltd., board chairman, London, pays tribute to Balaban at last year's dinner. Also seen are Jack Cohn, Pioneers president, and Henry Fard, II, who also attended.

Balaban accepts his plaque designating him "Pioneer of the Year" for 1953 from Eric A. Johnston, MPAA president, with Cohn. Fabian is celebrating his 40th year in the industry.

MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR?

FEATURE

A Salute To Si

A GROUP of industryites will meet at the Hotel Astor tonight, and for a change, it will make no difference whether they represent production, distribution, or exhibition. What these men have in common is service to their industry, service which in each case has encompassed at least 25 years.

The occasion is the 16th Annual Showmanship Dinner of the Motion Picture Pioneers, a group founded in 1938 through the efforts of Jack Cohn, executive vice-president, Columbia. All persons employed in the motion picture industry for 25 years or longer are eligible for membership.

The organization inaugurated in 1947 the policy of naming and honoring a Pioneer of the Year. Adolph Zukor, Paramount board chairman, who began in show business more than 50 years ago, was the first chosen for this honor, followed by Gus Eysell, president, Rockefeller Center, Inc., and board chairman, Radio City Music Hall, 1948; Cecil B. DeMille, Paramount producer, 1949; Spyros P. Skouras, 20th-Fox president, 1950; the Warner Brothers, Albert, Harry, and Jack, 1951; N. J. Blumberg, U-I executive, 1952; Barney Balaban, Paramount president, 1953; and this year Si Fabian, president, Stanley Warner.

Fabian is the first Pioneer of the Year whose service has been wholly in the field of exhibition and is also celebrating his 40th year in the industry this year. The dinner, which has been designated by Herman Robbins, chairman, as a no speech affair, will be highlighted by a pageant describing Fabian's career, which parallels the industry's rise from the Nickelodeon through the new techniques.

About People

HOLLYWOOD—It was announced last week by Elmer C. Rhoden, new head, National Theatres, that Frank H. Ricketson, Jr., president, Fox InterMountain Theatres, will take on direction of NT's eastern houses, including the Roxy, New York City. His headquarters will be in Denver. Rhoden will retain his title of president, Fox Midwest Theatres, and divide his time between Kansas City and Los Angeles.

NEW YORK—Veteran publicist Samuel J. Friedman has been retained by United Artists to handle advance promotion for "The Beachcomber," Technicolor romantic drama starring Robert Newton and Glynis Johns, it was announced last week by Francis M. Winikus, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation for UA.

HOLLYWOOD—Sol Lesser and Jack Douglas Productions merged last week to form Television Adventure Films Corporation, and will begin immediate production of a color TV film of real live action series, "I Search For Adventure," which will be syndicated nationally.

HOLLYWOOD—Samuel Goldwyn last week signed Oliver Smith as production designer for his forthcoming "Guys And Dolls."

AA Signs Producer Code

HOLLYWOOD—It was learned last week that Allied Artists had become the latest production company to become a signatory to Screen Producers Guild code of practices, which is designed to establish equitable producer's credit procedure, and establishes machinery to conciliate and arbitrate individual producer's problems with executive management.

This voluntary code of practices, two years in negotiation, was adopted by all major producing companies last August, and provides for a permanent committee of representatives of SPG and AMPP to meet on industry matters.

The Allied Artists move was hailed as yet another step in the establishment of the company in the major class. The company in many other ways recently has endeavored to cast off its "little fellow" classification.

The Tip-Off On Business

(The Tip-Off On Business is a record of how pictures are grossing in various parts of the country. The rating given the pictures (see key) is a cross section of reports received from the field, and presents a summary of various types of runs. Inasmuch as the rating given cannot constitute the business of each individual engagement, an attempt is made to present a general average. By studying the ratings, which are constantly kept up-to-date, exhibitors may guide themselves in their buying and booking.—Editor)

KEY TO "THE LITTLE MEN" RATINGS: (NOVEMBER 17, 1954)

Registering grosses in the highest brackets.

Just fair, nothing out of the ordinary, average.

Good, although not breaking down the walls.

Disappointing, below what was expected.

"This Is Your Army" Prints Set For Joint Distribution

NEW YORK—Distribution to exchanges of prints for "This Is Your Army," 55-minute Technicolor picture produced for the Department of Defense, will begin on Nov. 27, it was announced last week by Robert W. Coyne, COMPO special counsel. Release date of the picture is Dec. 13.

Nine major companies are cooperating with COMPO in distribution of the picture, the general sales managers having divided the country into areas with certain exchange territories allotted to each company.

Distribution of press books, prepared by the 20th-Fox publicity department, will begin shortly by National Screen Service, which also will distribute the trailer.

Cal. House Files Suit

HOLLYWOOD—An anti-trust action was filed in U. S. District Court, Los Angeles, last week by Burton Jones, Capri, San Diego, seeking $60,000 and injunctive relief to restrain six distributors, Fox West Coast, and other theatre operators from alleged unlawful practices and conduct. Defendant distributors include MGM, U-I, Columbia, 20th-Fox, Warners, and Buena Vista.

McNerney Is Mourned

SAN FRANCISCO—Dennis J. McNerney, veteran partner of Joseph A. and A. Blumenfeld, owners, Blumenfeld Theatres, a circuit operating 38 houses in this area, died at his home last week.

In addition to his widow, he leaves two sons and two daughters.

Lapkin Buys SW Common

WASHINGTON—The Security and Exchange Commission reported last fortnight that Nathaniel Lipkin, vice-president, Stanley Warner Corporation, had purchased 11,241 shares of common stock in the corporation.

Three Campaigns Set For UA's "Mistress"

NEW YORK—Three important national co-op promotions comprising national advertising and local retail support have been set in behalf of United Artists' "The Golden Mistress," it was announced last week by Francis M. Winikus, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation.

Purified Down Products, manufacturers of cushions and pillows, will boom the action thriller with big-space ads featuring Rosemarie Bowe in Good Housekeeping and The New York Times Magazine. Special counter cards and window streamers will hypo dealer assistance in department stores, furniture stores, decorating and home furnishing shops throughout the country.

The Berkray Coat Company will back "The Golden Mistress" with a big-space insertion in Look magazine featuring John Agar. Penetration on the local level will come from newspaper co-op ads timed to break with local engagements.

Fordham Shirts is spotting a heavy-lineage display in The New York Times Magazine featuring Agar. Department stores and haberdashery shops carrying the Fordham line in every exchange area of the United States and Canada will provide window displays combining scene stills and prominent playdate announcements.

Tabloids Herald "Brummell"

NEW YORK—MGM announced last week that tabloid heralds of above average quality are now available on "Beau Brummell" through Cato Show Printing Company, Inc., Cato, N. Y. The heralds contain extensive art from the film and stories purporting to be on-the-spot accounts of the activities of the personages in the historical film.

Starring in this production are Stewart Granger, Elizabeth Taylor, and Peter Ustinov.

BETTER MANAGEMENT

The recent gala midwest premiere of UA's "The Barefoot Contessa" drew a sparkling array of international celebrities and members of the diplomatic corps. Shown at the United Artists Theatre on opening night, left, are, left to right, Belgian Consul General D'eeckhoutte and his wife; Dr. L. Garan and Contessa Guilie Belebnessi; Count Rivieri de Calboli, Italian Consul; and Contessa de Calboli; Count and Contessa Daniel de Lattra; Mr. and Mrs. John Hughes; and Baron and Baroness Von Suerstenberg.

Eager Hoosiers Spark MGM's "Paris" Bow

INDIANAPOLIS—One of the most important world premieres this city has had in years created quite a stir among Hoosiers last week as MGM unveiled "The Last Time I Saw Paris" at Loew's.

To signalize the event, MGM developed the biggest advertising and promotion campaign ever projected for a picture in this city. The high spot was the personal visit of Van Johnson, one of the stars in the film, for interviews, TV and radio appearances. A parade of 25 French sport cars greeted him at the airport. Delegations of teen-agers from Butler College and high schools were on the reception committee and served as hostesses at the premiere performance. The Indianapolis Star played up a contest to select "Indiana's Good Will Ambassadors To Paris," a couple picked for a Parisian vacation via Scandinavian Air Lines. Johnson made the award from the stage on opening night.

Telephone interviews with Elizabeth Taylor and Helen Rose, costume designer, garnered important space in The Times and The Star. A special column on the business pages of the newspapers told of the commercial aspects of a world premiere, how it brings to the city money as well as excitement. A tieup with the merchants' Downtown Indianapolis Days, a retailing merchandising promotion, lent added prestige to the world premiere, and nearly all of the radio and TV stations had special features.

Exhibitors Get "Hansel" Notes

NEW YORK—More than 1,000 leading exhibitors and theatre circuit officials have received a letter from Herbert H. Greenblatt, RKO domestic sales manager, explaining the unprecedented number of promotion tie-ups for Michael Myerberg's "Hansel And Gretel."

Enclosed with the letter are a broadside of outstanding reviews from New York newspapers, where the Technicolor feature is running at the Broadway, national magazines, and trade papers, and a color souvenir book which details the 15 years of research behind the development of Kinemins, electronically-controlled dolls which perform in the screen version of the Humperdinck opera.

Radio Plugs "She-Wolf"

NEW YORK—Pre-release engagements of the Republic presentation, "The She-Wolf," are being backed by heavy radio campaigns in Buffalo, for the engagement at the Lafayette, and in Chicago, where the Jules Levey picture opened at the Loop.

Lou Weisberg, Character Merchandising, Inc., is seen with some of the more than 150 items his company has tied-in with Michael Myerberg's "Hansel and Gretel," a current RKO release. Local licensees across the country will promote their individual products in conjunction with local theatres playing the Myerberg feature.

DCA's "Long John" Sets Treasure Hunt

NEW YORK—An unusual cooperative merchandising promotion has been arranged on behalf of the forthcoming CinemaScope Technicolor film, "Long John Silver," between Albert Margolies and Company and Macy's. The deal was handled by Edith Prigozy of the Margolies organization and Joseph Liebman of Macy's.

Involving more than 500 motion picture theatres and 5,000,000 people in the Greater New York area, the promotion will be initiated after the Christmas and New Year holidays, and will extend for a two-week period.

Hewing closely to the story line of "Long John Silver," which was produced by Joseph Kaufman and will be released by Distributors Corporation of America, the theme of the promotion will follow a treasure hunt pattern. It will be publicized and advertised as the "Long John Silver" Treasure Hunt.

The treasure hunt will involve two basic steps for all entrants, a visit to a theatre in the New York area and a visit to three specially designated merchandise areas in Macy's New York store.

Grand prizes, as well as secondary ones, will be offered to achieve peak interest in all population categories. All age groups will be eligible as participants.

Skin Divers Aid "Underwater!"

NEW YORK—The country's skin diving clubs, whose members swim and fish underwater with the help of aqualungs, goggles, and rubber frog's feet, will participate on a national and local level in the promotion of RKO's "Underwater!" The clubs have offered their full cooperation, and plans are being worked out for the world premiere of the film, the first to be released in Superscope, which will be held on Dec. 21 at the Fox, St. Louis.

CANDYDLY SPEAKING

IF AN EXHIBITOR REMAINS who has any doubts that concession operation plays an increasingly important role in the theatre business, the activity in the exhibition hall of Chicago's Conrad Hilton Hotel during the recent TESMA-TEDA-TOA-IPA trade show and conventions would have dispelled them.

For the first time, the International Popcorn Association participated in the event, and lively exhibitor interest in the new products and techniques designed for more efficient off-the-screen selling gave eloquent testimony that IPA booths and forums were among the more informative aspects of the huge exhibitor conclave.

An interesting sidelight to the discussions on extra profits items was an account of the surprising success with the sale of hot dogs in indoor theatres in certain areas. Drive-ins have long recognized the value of merchandising this item and the discussion indicated that certain indoor houses as well might find the popular frankfurter an important part of their extra profits operation.

The question was raised whether theatres were overpricing concession items through the handling of more expensive merchandise. Examples offered indicated, however, that the public was highly susceptible to effective merchandising, and, if properly packaged and presented, the introduction of certain higher priced extra profits items could very well increase concession income all the way down the line.

TOA delegates attending the comprehensive concessions forum also learned much from experts on various phases of concession sales. New vending machines, on display at the trade show, were discussed in detail, and the forum also served as a sounding board where small theatremen could reap the benefits of merchandising and research conducted by the large circuits.

IPA's convention debut was indeed auspicious, and congratulations are in order for outgoing president John J. Fitzgibbons, Jr., his successor, Bert Nathan, and all connected with the trade show and forum.

EXTRA PROFITS

turn a few square feet into a nice
round profit!

When you install vending equipment for Coca-Cola in a few square feet of lobby space, a nice round profit starts to show in your ledger. That's because theater patrons from coast to coast have become accustomed to enjoying refreshment with their entertainment. Ice-cold Coke, of course, is real refreshment. It's a real profit-maker, too. For the details on a wide variety of vending equipment, get in touch with The Coca-Cola Company, P. O. Box 1734, Atlanta, Georgia.

Seen at the booth of the Automatic Products Company, New York, are Chuck Glass, Sam Rosenblum, and Mel Rapp. Crowds flocked here.

Seen at the booth of the Berlo Vending Corporation, Philadelphia, are Henry Rolnick, Martin Greer, and Ralph Pries, all quite interested.

The Star Manufacturing Company booth drew Fred W. Young, Bob Neann, G. T. Tookey, Sam Rosenblum, and Bill Moran, interested in popcorn.

Concessions Show Sparks Convention

There can be little doubt that one of the most important and informative sessions conducted at the recent IPA-TOA-TESMA-TEDA convention and trade show held in Chicago's Conrad Hilton Hotel, was the Concessions Forum. Those fortunate enough to attend could not help but benefit from the wealth of concession data that was discussed.

Under the capable direction of Van Myers, of Wometco Theatres, a panel of experts gave a short address on their specialty and then answered questions from the floor.

Popcorn

The first subject to be discussed was popcorn, and in his talk Carl Siegel, Stanley Warner Management Corporation, advised that the type of theatre and where it is located was one of the determining factors in deciding whether to use pre-popped corn or to pop it on location. It was readily agreed that one of the key selling lures was the animation of the corn as it starts to pop. However, it was also pointed out that in many cases the attendant is not capable of making the popcorn properly, either by using too much seasoning, burning the corn, etc. One of the prime advantages of purchasing pre-popped corn, it was said, was that it insured uniform quality and eliminated the danger of the concession stand attendant making any errors.

One point which was heavily stressed by every member of the panel was that the use of buttered popcorn greatly increased sales and concession stand revenue, and it was strongly recommended that every theatre add this to their other extra profits items.

Soft Drinks

The tremendous improvements made in automatic drink machines in the past few years was pointed out by Harold Newman, of Century Theatre Circuit. Based on his experiences Newman said that profits were greater with multiple drink machines, and he pointed out that the trend is toward six, eight, and 10 drink machines, with some dispensers making use of two cup stations.

One of the important recent trends in automatic beverage dispensers is the combining of carbonated and non-carbonated drinks in the same machine. The introduction of hot drinks such as coffee, was also noted with favor.

In a discussion of the merchandising of drink machines Newman stressed the value of dressing up the dispenser with lights, and various forms of animation. It was suggested that even the cleaning and filling of the dispensers can aid sales as people are usually curious to see the inner workings of the machine. When doing this, however, make sure that the machine is spotless both outside and inside, Newman explained.

Kendall Way, of Interstate Theatres, continued the beverage discussion by suggesting the value of using nationally advertised syrups, the reasoning being that these items are easiest to sell. Another advantage is the many point of purchase advertising items which are supplied by these large manufacturers.

The size of the cold drink market was illustrated by Way when he said that one out of every four persons will purchase a cold beverage, thus offering a huge potential to theater concession sales. It was suggested that a theatre dispenser should have a minimum of four selections, including one non-carbonated drink. The vital necessity of maintaining the proper temperature for the drinks was underlined by Way.

The question of selling beer at drive-ins was brought up, and both the panel and the overwhelming majority of those attending the meeting agreed that such a practice could do nothing but harm the reputation of the entire industry, and possibly lead to adverse legislation.

Ice Cream

The role of ice cream in the concession picture was discussed by Lee Kogan, of RKO Theatres. He briefly reviewed the history of ice cream merchandising from the days when the bulky unsightly fixtures were usually hidden under the counter, to the modern transparent displays which are given prominence in the concession layout. As an indication of the growth of ice cream's appeal, Kogan said that in his circuit ice cream product sales jumped 350 per cent in the period between 1949 and 1953. Kogan also said that in the past year they have been converting to a self-service type of ice cream operation, and reported that one theatre in the mid-west showed an increase of 119 per cent after changing to open display units.

In addition to counter display cases, Siegel suggested the additional use of ice cream vending machines, stating that 90 per cent of the Stanley Warner theatres use such equipment. A discussion of the type of products to stock brought the comment from Van Myers that the Wometco theatres had its greatest success in selling novelty ice cream items which are not normally found in neighborhood stores. The question of price was brought up but open discussion quickly indicated that this was a local problem that differed in each section.

Hot Dogs

The subject of hot dogs, which have only recently been introduced in indoor theatres, was discussed by Sam Ruben, of ABC Vending. It was Ruben's opinion that this item would sell best in neighborhood houses, and in areas where the patrons were mainly from the lower income bracket. It was explained that the attempt to sell hot dogs in center city first run situations had not proven successful. One of the reasons given was that this type of audience usually has eaten before coming to the theatre, or plans to do so immediately afterwards.

The booth devoted to Dad's Root Beer attracted John L. Friedlund, J. M. Longston, Ed Bright, and Mrs. J. M. Longston. Exhibits were jammed.

Cleanliness and the proper training of the attendant were named as the two most important elements in successful selling of hot dogs in a theatre. A suggested method of handling was to have the attendant pick out the roll with a napkin, place the hot dog in the roll with stainless steel tongs, and then hand it to the patron. In this manner the hot dog is delivered with the attendant never having actually touched the item.

Candy

Dropping his role of moderator temporarily, Myers gave a short address on candy as a concession stand item. He pointed out that the merchandising must be geared for impulse buying, and therefore how the candy is displayed is of vital importance. Myers said that the best results may be achieved by using open mass displays. Although a customer may be willing to wait until the attendant can take his money after selecting an item, he often will not wait the same length of time to have the attendant wait on him. Myers said that experience proves that there is a minimum of theft with open displays, and that if there are heavy losses it usually indicates a careless or dishonest sales force.

According to Myers another method of increasing candy sales is to use active selling techniques.

Drive-Ins

Certainly one branch of exhibition that realizes the importance of concession stand operations is the drive-in. The final segment of the Forum was devoted exclusively to the outdoor theatre.

Philip L. Lowe, of Theatre Candy Co., Inc., made the statement that the national average as regards drive-in concession sales is more than 20 cents per adult admission. This helped to underscore the part that extra profit operations play in the drive-in.

The final address was made by Spiro J. Papas, of Alliance Theatre Corporation. His main topic was that of cost controls. He explained how his circuit increased the sale of concession items in their drive-ins by insisting that each theatre bring in at least 30 cents in sales per adult admission. This was further broken down into averages for specific items. They were eight cents for popcorn, nine cents for cold drinks, five cents for sandwiches and hot dogs, four cents for ice cream, two cents for candy and two cents for miscellaneous items. These amounts were based on food costs with stress placed on those products with the lowest per item cost. The third part of the program was to insist on certain yields from each item. As as example there should be 10 hot dogs to the pound, at least 12 boxes of popcorn per pound, etc.

By careful attention to product control, food costs and yields Papas said that it was possible to conduct a concession stand that will show greatly increased net sales and net profit. Papas said that the average net profit should be 50 per cent. It was pointed out that in some cases by proper controls and merchandising concession grosses have been larger than the box-office take.

The session ended with the showing of drive-in intermission trailers being offered by Pepsi-Cola, Coca-Cola, Armour, and a special UPA color cartoon, "The History of Popcorn."

A Look Inside

Helmco's New Home

Seen is a view of the new $500,000 plant in Chicago of Helmco, Inc., where new production facilities provide a continuous flow production line which enables material received to move smoothly through the plant until it arrives in the shipping department as a finished product. New products are expected.

Enjoying the hospitality of the president's new office at Helmco's open house celebration for 600 customers, dealers, and friends are, left to right, Judge John J. Kelly; Mrs. George Nikopoulos; Colonel Herman E. Lacy, Helmco president; George Nikopoulos; and Matthew J. Fitzgerald, chairman, Michigan Avenue National Bank. Colonel Lacy said that new facilities will speed up the production and delivery of the 50 products presently made and provide increased opportunities for development of other items.

FLUORESCENT PLASTIC CHANGEABLE COPY LETTERS

—an entirely different type of letter, exclusive with Wagner and adaptable with economical modifications to all existing Wagner frames.

Formed in clear plastic and processed with a newly developed and patented process fluorescent material, each of these letters, by the use of "black light" becomes a separate, actual light source not dependent on transmitted visible light or the translucence of the sign face. They Create Colored Light Rather Than Lighted Co'or.

UNBELIEVABLE BRILLIANCE AND DISTANT READABILITY WITHOUT GLARE

The extreme brightness and strikingly DIFFERENT colors, impossible with other letters, make them especially ideal for installations which are "hedged in" by an abundance of competing light. They are also unusually effective by natural daylight.

THE ONLY THIRD-DIMENSIONAL ILLUMINATED LETTERS EVER MADE!

The black light affords a uniformity of illumination of every letter virtually impossible with previous types of lighting.

GUARANTEED LONG LIFE

Not to be confused with signs which employed front illuminated fluorescent materials, these new letters are processed on the back and will not pass the ultra-violet rays of the sun. They are accordingly extremely fade-resistant.

BIGGER BOXOFFICE—GREATER PROFITS

Attracting the attention of more people always means better business, for people go to the theatre more often when they know what is playing. That's only natural. Theatres with obsolete displays will not be able to compete with those equipped with this powerful new type of advertising.

GET BUSINESS YOU NEVER GOT BEFORE

You can now do something about the matter of whether they patronize you or the theatre down the street. Wagner Nevivol letters impart a new look to any theatre front. Leading theatremen at the recent TESMA-TEDA-TOA-IPA equipment show in Chicago were quick to see the advantage of Wagner Nevivol letters and have already ordered them installed.

NICE THEATRE—GOOD PICTURE—NO AUDIENCE?

Don't let an old-fashioned display board steal your profits. Wagner Nevivol letters are not expensive, but failing to use them can be costly.

LAYING IT

On The Line

The Class of '54

Although each Trade Show is a separate and complete operation, it is difficult not to compare the one recently held with the TOA-TESMA-TEDA Trade Show conducted last year.

Anyone who had been present for both events could immediately notice a change, both in the attitude of the theatremen, and the manufacturers and dealers. Last year, there was an almost hysterical desire on the part of theatre operators, to get on the Trade Show floor and see for the first time the new lenses, sound equipment, screens, etc., that they suddenly needed if their theatres were to keep up with the technical advances. Throughout the entire Show, each display booth was crowded with people asking for definitions, explanations, information, and advice. The mood was not unlike that of college students cramming for a sudden examination for which they were wholly unprepared.

Manufacturers and their dealers found themselves in the role of instructors, and this educational program continued long after the Show closed.

This year, many of the same exhibitors returned, but it was quickly evident that most of the class had graduated. Interest was still high, and the Trade Show was given careful scrutiny by all those attending. However, there was not the mood of confusion that was so prevalent at the previous Show that it was almost possible to physically touch it. At this Show, the theatremen could walk through the exhibition hall and fully appreciate the literally thousands of items all designed to aid him in operating a better theatre.

The problem of education is a difficult one in the motion picture industry, and this department believes that the equipment manufacturers and dealers deserve recognition for the fine job that they have performed in their, usually unwilling, role of teacher.

As for the Trade Show itself, the TESMA-TEDA organizations can once again take a deep bow for a splendid effort. Evidence of the careful planning and hard work, which of necessity must be used in generous portions if such an operation is to succeed, was to be found in every corner of the giant exhibition hall. The trend toward bigger and better trade shows is continuing, and the one held this month gives the planners of next year's event quite a record to beat.

PROJECTION ARC LAMP

Be sure to get the lamp that is readily adaptable to all types of modern screen presentation.

National's Reflect-O-Heat unit permits the great increase in volume of light at the mammoth new screens, without a corresponding increase in heat at the aperture.

The Automatic Crater Positioning Control System insures that both carbons are so fed as to maintain a correct arc gap length and to keep the position of the positive crater at the exact focal point of the reflector. Thus, throughout the presentation, the screen light is always of the same color, without variations from white to either blue or brown. The projectionist is accordingly freed from the necessity of constantly supervising the arc so that he can devote himself to the care of other technical features of projection which are not on an automatic basis and which require continual attention.

The arc is stabilized by a stream of air which maintains a prescribed system of ventilation of the area surrounding the arc. This air jet prevents the hot tail flame of the arc from reaching the reflector, supplies enough oxygen so that no black soot is produced, and keeps white soot from collecting on the reflector in such quantity as to absorb heat which would cause breakage.

Unit construction permits easy removal of the elements for inspection in servicing.

A Report On The Theatre Equipment Forums

"WE will never again stand still technically."

This remark made by Earl Sponable, research head for 20th Century-Fox, appears to be an accurate description of the general impression that was given at the New Processes and Equipment Forum conducted by TOA, TESMA, and TEDA at their recent convention and Trade Show in Chicago's Conrad Hilton Hotel.

The hundreds of theatre operators, equipment manufacturers and dealers who crowded the auditorium quickly made it evident that they were abreast of the many technical advances made in recent months. The experts who addressed the assembly found interested but well informed listeners; contrasting the confusion which characterized last year's session.

VistaVision Explained

The opening address was made by Loren Ryder, director of research for Paramount Studios, who discussed wide screen systems, with the emphasis on VistaVision.

After offering a brief explanation of how the process was developed and what it was designed to accomplish, Ryder revealed that all VistaVision films from Paramount would be released in three forms. There would be the standard 2-D prints, which could be shown in any ratio from 1.33:1 to 1.85:1, and would not require any special equipment or changes in booth procedures. An anamorphic print that could be shown in a 2-1 ratio would also be made available, and the third form would be the double-frame horizontal print for use with the recently introduced horizontal projectors. Ryder pointed out that Paramount did not advise using the double-frame prints on screens under 50 feet in width, and suggested this form of print would probably be restricted to use in the very large indoor houses, and the larger drive-in theatres.

PHYSICAL THEATRE

Vol. 9, No. 12 November 17, 1954

Going into more detail about the use of the double-frame negative, Ryder said that it was decided to use the double 35mm. frame rather than a larger size of film because Paramount's tests indicated that the double 35mm. negative gave the best results. Ryder also stated that by staying with the standard 35mm. film size it was possible to get the greatest degree of quality for the largest number of theatres, which is in keeping with Paramount's announced intention to bring the best possible projection to all theatres in the world with a minimum amount of equipment changes.

Seen above is a view of the experts who conducted the forum held on equipment and the new systems, and some interested viewers.

The "greatest bottleneck" of quality film presentation, according to Ryder, is projection, regardless of the system employed. One of the chief problems was said to be buckling or pin cushioning of the film in the gate. A device to combat this pitfall has been developed by Paramount, Ryder indicated. To raise the general level of theatre projection Ryder advised that projection equipment with better movements should be developed; efforts should be made to reduce film flicker, wiggle, and weave; there should be a greater use of water cooling and air jets, and the development of devices to improve focusing.

Ryder said that he saw no real light problem for VistaVision projection in any but the very large indoor and outdoor theatres. In his closing remarks Ryder said that it was his belief that the industry should stop thinking in terms of specific and fixed aspect ratios, but see to it that the picture fills the entire proscenium.

CinemaScope Discussed

The next speaker was Sponable who, after giving a brief summary of the growth and development of CinemaScope, said that "startling" new improvements could be expected in the future.

Discussing the current version of CinemaScope, Sponable said that in many theatres the system has not, and is not being shown correctly because of changes made by the exhibitors, and that in many

Record Number of Booths And Attendance Made For A Trade Show Triumph

EQUIPMENTWISE the theatreman of today knows what its all about.

This seemed to be the most outstanding impression received on the floor of the largest combined Trade Show in the history of the industry. Everyone seemed to agree that the pent-up and almost desperate desire for fundamental information, that ran like a bright thread through the show last year, was not to be found this time. Of course this situation is easily explained by the fact that by now most of the theatre operators attending had installed all or some of the recently introduced projection and sound systems.

One equipment manufacturer who has had an exhibit at all the previous Trade Shows, jokingly summed up this new attitude of the theatremen by saying, "Last year they were asking us about the systems and the equipment—this year they are telling us."

Despite this lack of surface enthusiasm there is no doubt that the Trade Show was given close scrutiny by those exhibitors attending. As for the attendance, it was reported that close to 4000 persons spent time examining the 196 booths that covered every conceivable facet of the physical end of indoor and outdoor theatre operation.

Visually Impressive

Visually there can be little argument that the 1954 TOA-TESMA-TEDA-IPA Trade Show was the most impressive ever organized. The booths and equipment displays all reflected the great amount of time and effort that must have gone into their design. It was quite apparent that the equipment manufacturers had sensed that the theatre operators would take a bit more coaxing to get them into their booths, and they responded by applying a generous dose of showmanship to their technical skills.

Although there were no startling products introduced at the Show almost every manufacturer had new or improved equipment to show. One of the items to receive a good deal of attention was the Neviol fluorescent plastic changeable copy letters introduced by Wagner Sign Service. Another piece of equipment seen generally for the first time was the Perspecta Sound integrator unit designed and built by Stelma, Inc. The fl.7 projection lenses recently introduced by Kollmorgen also was the object of much interest. At the Walter Futter booth the Vidioscope anamorphic lens was highlighted. However, Futter also had an fl.5 lens on view, although he was not too anxious to discuss it thoroughly. If this lens is optically correct it is the fastest projection lens presently available anywhere.

Seen at the Kollmorgen booth are W. H. Ingram, J. A. Fetherston, Kurt Pannasch, Harry Burke, and D. C. Milne. The optical concern featured its very fast f 1.7 lens, recently introduced.

Why Strong Rectifiers are Always Preferred...

STRONG HEAVY-DUTY SELENIUM PLATE RECTIFIERS

Designed especially for continuous operation with CinemaScope, VistaVision, 3-D, and all Drive-In presentation.

Requires no attention or maintenance.
Dependable operation even in damp climates.

90-135 Ampere High Power Rectifier for use with 11mm regular carbons or 10mm "Hitex" carbons.

80-110 Ampere for use with 10mm carbons.

70-90 Ampere for use with 9mm carbons.

60-75 Ampere for use with Suprex type carbons.

All models may be used with angular or coaxial trim lamps.

Efficient operation of each type and rating of projection arc necessitates a rectifier specifically engineered to its particular requirements.

That is why Strong manufactures a complete line of rectifiers, which includes one for every type of lamp. Strong rectifiers are the only rectifiers on the market which are especially designed, manufactured and tested in one plant, together with and for use with motion picture projection arc lamps.

Every Strong rectifier assures smooth output current, long life, low operating temperature, and flexibility in control. Transformer taps provide adjustment to compensate for supply voltage variations through a range of 10% above or 10% below the rated A.C. input voltage throughout the output rating range. Fine taps on the primary are connected to an 8-point external manually controlled switch which permits output adjustment while the arc is burning and without the necessity of reconnecting wires.

The General Register booth is seen with Rudy Boston and Hilding Karlson. Many theatremen and dealers made it their business to see what this veteran firm had on exhibition at the show.

The attractive display of the Wollensak Optical Company is seen with Eugene Turula, Norman Kuegler, M. E. Frosh, and Miss Dixie Blake. As would be expected, the lenses evoked interest.

Seen at the Miracle Whirl Booth is F. H. Kershaw and L. W. Phelps. This large display area featured the company's line of attractive and well-built playground equipment for drive-ins.

The Adler Silhouette Letter Company display is seen with Dick Strauss, Alice Davis, Nathan Golden and Ben H. Adler. This colorful display attracted the attention of many theatre operators.

The J. E. Robin booth is seen with Gio Gagliardi, Albert Kern, Ed Comi and Emil Kern. With the interest in projection equipment still running high, this display did not lack for attendance.

The size of this group at the Radiant display offers graphic proof of the attending theatremen's desire to see and learn more about the Super Panatar variable anamorphic proj. lens.

The Strong Electric exhibit is seen with L. M. Wutke, Walter J. Frick, Arthur Hatch, Lew Walters, and Cliff Callander. As always, this was a place to see fine equipment and get information.

The Wenzel Projector Company had this fine booth. Seen examining some of the equipment are Jack Bennis, H. H. Buchanan, Charles Williams, Edwin K. Hosnier, and Fred J. Wenzel.

Seen at the Ashcraft booth are Harold Abbott, Howard Blockwood, Mary Ashcraft, S. Chauikhas, Erwin Peterson, and Clarence Ashcraft. This display housed many items of interest and value.

As always, the National Theatre display was given the close scrutiny of exhibitors who found the modern equipment necessary for proper indoor and outdoor theatre operation, exhibited.

One of the displays which received a good bit of attention of those who visited the trade show was Bell and Howell's, seen with Somer James, Murray Swigman and J. T. Debish.

A Simple, Inexpensive Way To Save Floor Coverings With

Furniture Rests

THE pesky problem of indentation of resilient flooring, the scratching and marking of hardwood floors, and the matting of carpet fabrics by the legs of furniture can be solved so easily and inexpensively that it is surprising that it remains a problem at all. The answer is the use of furniture rests.

Specially Designed

Furniture rests available today have been specially designed to prevent indentation and scratching of almost any flooring material by even the heaviest pieces of theatre furniture. The rests are made for almost all types and sizes of furniture, and are generally so designed that they are unobtrusive, sometimes an even attractive addition to the legs of the furniture.

The principle of furniture rests is simple. They merely distribute the weight of the furniture over a wider area, allowing more of the floor to share in the weight supporting chore. The rests also provide a smooth, easy sliding surface to the points of furniture so that the floor finish is not scratched or marred by the movement of the furniture.

Resilient floors, like asphalt tile, linoleum, rubber tile, cork tile, and the new family of plastic materials are softer and quieter underfoot than other type floors. Because of these same resilient qualities, however, concentrated weight—weight which remains in one spot over a period of time—may result in depressed spots under the legs of the furniture. The same weight mars the carpet fabric also.

Safe Floor Loads

Resilient floors will stand loads up to a point without showing ill effects, the same as non-resilient floors. For example, linoleum, one of the most popular types of resilient floors, can withstand a limit of 75 pounds per square inch without denting. With asphalt tile, the limit is 25 pounds; cork tile, 40 pounds. Rubber tile will take as much as 200 pounds to the square inch without indentation.

Often, however, the weight demands are greater than the safe limit. Then furniture rests or cups are needed.

Various Sizes and Shapes

Furniture rests and cups come in various sizes and shapes. Basically, four types of rests are recommended: Nail type, cotter pin type, rests for metal tubular furniture, all with ball and socket construction, and cup types—both round and square.

The type of furniture leg largely determines the type that should be used. Where the leg is solid wood, either the nail type or cotter pin type can be inserted after a hole is bored in the leg.

There are many types of furniture rests (above) which may be used to help preserve the floors in a theatre. The chart (below) indicates the pressure that may be applied to various types of flooring.

SMPTE Pays A Tribute To Technical Brains Of Industry At 76th Semi-Annual Meeting

LOS ANGELES—The engineering "miracles" wrought by the technical "brains" of the motion picture industry were credited as the major contributor to the revitalizing of the motion picture business during the past year.

Speaking at a luncheon of the 76th semi-annual convention of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers, Herbert Barnett, president of the society, declared that technical achievements made possible new techniques for the production and presentation of entertainment films which brought the American public flocking back to the boxoffice.

Moreover, he stated, the technical revolution which started with the success of wide-screen pictures is still underway, and further developments now in progress hold the promise of providing even greater artistic freedom in film production with resulting theatre presentations attractive beyond those available today.

For five days the nation's top motion picture and television engineers exchanged technical information in 16 sessions at which almost 60 papers were delivered.

Highlight of the get-together luncheon, which was held at the Ambassador Hotel, was the presentation by the SMPTE of annual awards for significant technical accomplishments in the fields of motion picture and television engineering.

Annual awards:

Lorin D. Grignon, 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation, was presented the Samuel L. Warner Memorial Award for his engineering work in stereophonic sound now widely used in wide-screen film presentations.

For the first time in the history of the SMPTE, a Special Achievement Award was presented to Earl I. Sponable and Herbert E. Bragg, also of 20th Century-Fox, in recognition of their personal contributions to the development of anamorphic motion picture photography and projection resulting in the commercial success of CinemaScope. This development exerted an influence of major importance on the motion picture industry, the citation stated.

Ray D. Kell, research scientist of the RCA Laboratories Division of Radio Corporation of America, was the recipient of SMPTE'S David Sarnoff Gold Medal Award for outstanding achievements in the development of television and important contributions to the development of color television.

The SMPTE Journal Award, for the most outstanding technical paper originally published in the Society's Journal during 1953, was presented to Armin J. Hill, Motion Picture Research Council. His paper is titled "A Mathematical and Experimental Foundation for Stereoscopic Photography."

Honorable mentions were given to A. V. Loughren, F. Dana Miller, Otto H. Schade, Edward Schmidt and Ernest W. Franck, and William B. Snow. A special mention was given John A. Norling.

A special award was also presented to Arthur C. Downes for exceptional service to the SMPTE as chairman of the society's board of editors.

Following the luncheon, the first of three color television technical sessions was held with Axel G. Jensen, television research director of Bell Telephone Laboratories, as chairman. Papers delivered at this session included "Colorimetric Aspects of Television Color Film Pickup" by Skipwith W. Athey of General Precision Laboratory; "Multi-Channel Television Relay Station" by George R. Sutherland, U. S. Naval Ordnance Test Station, China Lake, Cal.; and "Test Instruments for Color Television Broadcasting" by John W. Million and Robert K. Hunsicker, Wickes Engineering and Construction Company.

Also on the program was a viewing of NBC's first Monday evening color television spectacular. The 90-minute program was viewed on a battery of nine color TV receivers.

SMPTE Honors 16 With Awards Of Fellowship

LOS ANGELES—Awards of Fellowship in the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers were presented to 16 members at the society's semi-annual banquet.

The new Fellows are: Philip G. Caldwell, John R. Clark, Jr., Albert A. Duryea, Ralph H. Heacock, Armin J. Hill, Lester Isaac, U. B. Iwerks, and George Lewin.

Also, Everett Miller, Harry F. Olson, Richard H. Ranger, Reid H. Ray, Hazard E. Reeves, Ralph A. Teare, R. Edward Warn, and James L. Wassell.

C. M. Rigsbee and C. R. Odden Promoted To New RCA Positions

CAMDEN, N. J.—Clifford M. Rigsbee has been named Administrator, Consumer Products Analysis, Product Planning, of the Radio Corporation of America, it was announced by Barton Kreuzer, RCA's Director of Product Planning.

Prior to his new assignment, Rigsbee had been manager of Commercial Service for the RCA Service Company. He joined RCA in 1950 after nearly 25 years in the retail merchandising field.

Conrad R. Odden will succeed Rigsbee in the RCA Service Company position.

Furniture Rests

The ball and socket feature allows tilting of the furniture without having the rest leave the flatness of the floor. The larger square and round cups are for use on furniture with legs of wide diameter.

Until recently, suitable rests for furniture with round, hollow, metal legs were hard to find. Since then, a new kind of rest specifically designed to "cure" this condition has been introduced to the market. When this rest is inserted into the hollow leg, a serrated, parachute-type washer expands preventing the rest from disengaging.

The recommended size of the rest or cup is controlled by the weight of the particular furniture. Charts which list the sizes of rests in relation to the weight are compiled on the basis of the weight received by one leg. The charts are used as a guide to the size of the furniture rest required. For example, on an 800-pound piano the floor surface under each leg would receive 200 pounds of possible indentation weight. The rest used would be the one shown on the chart for 200-pound weights. In the case of linoleum, a rest two and seven sixty-fourths inches wide would be needed for each leg. One two inches wide would be required for asphalt tile, since the type of floor makes a difference, too.

Rests should not be limited to furniture used on resilient flooring and carpeting. The same rests will protect wood floors as well, and on concrete floors the rests will prevent the legs from cracking and chipping.

Furniture rests are so economically priced and so quickly and easily installed that there's little reason why they are not universally used to prevent indentation and damage to fine flooring surfaces.

cases a true CinemaScope picture has never been shown. He made a plea for correct installations.

In a discussion of magnetic sound heads used in stereophonic sound systems, Sponable said that a head should give 600 to 800 hours of use under proper conditions. He also reported that work was progressing on the use of a recently developed substance called Alfenol which should greatly reduce the problem of magnetic sound head replacement. The new material was said to give much better quality in addition to its longer life, and a model has already been tested for 900 hours with no sign of deterioration.

As regards the problem of stereophonic sound equipment demagnetization, Sponable and Loren Grignon, also of the 20th-Fox research staff, reported that they knew of no instance where the magnetic track was lost as a result of demagnetization. They also stated that, in most cases, it was not necessary to degause or demagnetize the projector frequently.

Lenses

The problem of lenses was introduced by a short address from A. E. Neumer, of the Bausch and Lomb Optical Company. Neumer made the point that depth of focus is dependent upon two factors; speed and magnification. He said that the faster the lens and the greater the magnification, the poorer will be the depth of focus. Since in most wide screen presentations it is necessary to use a faster lens and a much higher degree of magnification in order to fill the screen, Neumer said, it is very important that the proper lens be used.

Manufacturers' Role Explained

J. F. O'Brien, of RCA, gave the Forum a brief recounting of the equipment changes made in the past five years, and pointed out that although manufacturers of theatre equipment have benefited from recent events, that many of the same firms have taken heavy losses by researching, producing, and stocking such things as theatre television systems, and 3-D equipment. O'Brien stated his company's view that four-track magnetic sound was best and should be installed in most theatres. The subjects of screens and screen brightness were placed in the capable hands of A. J. Hatch, of Strong Electric Corporation, and Leonard Satz, of the Raytone Screen Company. The fact was brought out that the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers advises a screen brightness of nine to 14 foot lamperts. The question of metallic versus white screens was raised with Satz taking the position that the metallic surface would give a much brighter picture than a white surface using the same light source.

Question And Answer Period

After the formal speeches were completed the meeting was opened to questions and opinions from the floor. An important matter which was brought out during this period was that the cylindrical anamorphic lenses, with their fixed aspect ratios, could not be used with the Vista-Vision anamorphic prints which will be offered in a 2:1 ratio as opposed to the 2.55:1 ratio for which they are now set in order to project CinemaScope. In the course of the discussion Neumer revealed that Bausch and Lomb is developing an adapter which may be placed on cylindrical fixed lenses to enable them to show VistaVision prints. Continuing along this vein, Irving Tushinsky, one of the developers of the Superscope variable anamorphic process, announced that RKO films made in Superscope will be compatible with all CinemaScope lenses.

TESMA Observations

THE theatre owners who attended the 1954 TESMA Trade Show were in a much more optimistic frame of mind than those who attended our 1953 show.

Exhibitors now realize that the movie industry is very much alive as they know that most theatres have not only regained their lost patrons but have also gained thousands upon thousands of new ones.

There isn't an exhibitor anywhere who hasn't said hundreds of times, "Give me good pictures and I'll do a good business." No one will deny that good pictures do help boxoffice receipts, but good pictures have not alone created the improvement in boxoffice receipts. Let us not forget we had some good pictures available when theatres were closing in droves.

The comeback of the movies can, to a large extent, be attributed to the bigness and grandeur of modern motion picture presentation.

The manufacturers and dealers in equipment for the theatre are to a great extent responsible for the success of modern screen presentation. The manufacturers designed, engineered and made the necessary new equipment. The dealer successfully introduced it to exhibitors who often did not wish to spend a dime on new equipment.

Great Financial Risk

Manufacturers took a great financial risk in making this new equipment available for they had to make a large cash investment in labor and materials with absolutely no certainty that the resulting new equipment would be bought. Most manufacturers and many dealers also took the risk of financing purchases of many theatre owners who wished to buy needed equipment on a deferred payment basis.

At some meetings of theatre owners the thought was expressed that the equipment manufacturers and dealers made phenomenal and uncalled for profits on equipment. The officials of one association of theatre owners seemed so certain of this that they proposed the entrance of their association into the manufacture and distribution of projection and sound equipment.

It is true that when a new item of equipment is introduced the price is higher than that which invariably prevails at a later time. This high price, however, does not make for an extraordinary profit to the manufacturer, rather it only partially covers the high cost of research, development, engineering and tooling needed to make the equipment.

Today there is plenty of competition for the theatre men's equipment business whether it be for projectors, sound equipment, arc lamps, rectifiers, generators, screens or lenses. As a consequent result, the theatre owner can buy equipment at a price that produces but a minimum profit for both manufacturer and dealer.

Carry On Research

The individual companies that make up the membership of TESMA have done their part in helping to bring about the resurgence of good times in the motion picture exhibition and they can be counted upon to continue to carry on research and development programs that will keep the motion picture industry predominant in the entertainment field.

The extent of the manufacturers' efforts to produce new and better equipment is not generally appreciated by the exhibitors. They should realize that the largest number of members of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers are executives and employees of the manufacturers who make equipment for the theatre. The SMPTE numbers among its sustaining members, virtually every manufacturer of theatre equipment. If the exhibitor doesn't know, he should realize that members of the SMPTE usually bring forth in their meetings the results of research and development programs that ultimately result in better equipment for the motion picture theatre.

Trade Show

The Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers' Association Trade Show that has been conducted annually for the past 10 years, brings under one roof virtually every make and model of theatre equipment that is used in the motion picture theatre. This showing gives the exhibitor the opportunity of leisurely examining every item of equipment that he might conceivably use in his theatre.

Resins Help In The Applying of Floor Tiles

NEW YORK—Floor tiles that are applied without adhesive to floors of wood, concrete or other floor coverings are molded of Bakelite vinyl resins with a waffle-shaped underside.

Made by Robbins Floor Products, Inc., the tiles are held in place by lateral compression produced by squeezing them tightly together as they are laid and by the vacuum-cup effect created by small air pockets in the underside. Easily lifted, the tiles can be moved from one location to another, or replaced should a tile become damaged. The resistance of Bakelite vinyl resins to alkaline ground moisture, and the absence of any adhesive to be attacked permits use of these tiles to cover concrete floors on or below grade. It can also be laid over radiant-heated concrete floors. Bakelite vinyl resins, of which the tiles are molded, also are said to resist wear, moisture, oil, greases, foods and most chemicals.

Homogeneous from surface to back, the tiles have a terrazzo pattern that camouflages scuffs and soilage (top left photo). In addition to helping hold these Robbins floor tiles in place, pockets in the underside absorb sound, provide insulation, and confine moisture which may arise through a subfloor. They also make these tiles much more resilient than conventional tiles. A small wood floor is usually tiled from a corner outward (top right photo), with the accurately molded, finely tongue-and-grooved edges of the nine or 12-inch square tiles pressed firmly together as they are laid. On large wood or concrete floors, tiles are laid to the corners. Center lines of tiles are held by double-faced adhesive tape (bottom left photo). Extra compression is achieved with a hammer and block of wood before the last tiles are inserted, closing all joints so they feel smooth (bottom right photo). Cove base or quarter round strips cover the one-quarter-inch space left around the edges.

Offers Valuable Advice

Some exhibitors have the impression that the theatre equipment dealer is nothing more than a merchant who buys things at one price and sells them at a higher one. The majority of theatre equipment dealers on the contrary, are specialists in theatre equipment and supplies. They can and do give advice that enables the theatre owner to secure the equipment best suited for his particular needs. Their recommendations save exhibitors thousands of dollars annually and also enables theatre owners to offer their patrons the ultimate in good picture presentation. Their advice has also improved the beauty and comfort of many theatres which in turn has helped to create profits for those theatres. The Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers' Association has always met with the Theatre Equipment Dealers' Association in joint convention because the members of TEDA have consistently aided our ultimate customers—the theatre owners.

For the past three years TESMA has invited one of the two leading exhibitor associations to meet in joint convention. TESMA has in each of these years contributed sufficient funds to the exhibitors' association to cover its convention costs and a portion of its annual operating expenses. Most of the social events of these conventions are sponsored and paid for by individual members of TESMA which assures the exhibitors a pleasant time after the convention business sessions.

Yes, TESMA and its individual members have done much to foster the rebirth of profits for motion picture exhibitors. In the future, TESMA and its members will continue to extend their utmost efforts to maintain the entire motion picture industry at peak levels.

Campaign For Modernization

TESMA and TEDA and its individual members are going to campaign quite seriously this coming year for the modernization of motion picture theatres. The advent of wide screen and stereophonic sound has brought exhibition back to a more profitable level but it is felt by TESMA that the course to better and continuing profits is to improve the beauty and comfort of theatres.

The 1954 TESMA Trade Show was as usual conducted at the same time and place as the TEDA Convention. This year Theatre Owners of America also simultaneously conducted its convention and International Popcorn Association also joined with TESMA in showing the products manufactured and sold by its members. The result was the greatest Trade Show of all time.

Next Year

The time and place of the 1955 TESMA Trade Show has not been set. Though TESMA and IPA members had 200 exhibits of equipment having a value in the neighborhood of $500,000, we are expectant that the 1955 Trade Show will be even bigger and better than the 1954 Show.

TESMA is not wedded to a meeting with any particular exhibitor organization. TESMA met with Allied States Association of Theatre Owners in 1952 and with Theatre Owners of America in 1953 and 1954. It is the present intention of the TESMA Board of Directors to issue an invitation to TOA, ALLIED, IPA, and TEDA to meet jointly in an industry wide convention in 1955.

We hope that ALLIED and TOA can resolve such differences as they may now have and join with TESMA, TEDA, and IPA in an all industry Trade Show in 1955.

Theatre Equipment Forums

DRIVE-IN FORUM

Prior to the Forum the TOA Drive-In committee held an open session at which technical problems peculiar to the drive-in were considered. A large number of drive-in theatre equipment manufacturers attended this meeting which was conducted by Jack D. Braunagel and William T. Powell, co-chairmen of the committee.

Drive-In Screens

One subject which is of great concern to outdoor theatre operators is that of screens for the wide screen presentations. It was natural, therefore, that this subject be given the greatest amount of attention at the meeting. A number of drive-in screen and screen surface manufacturers each gave a short talk about their particular product.

Ben Pobolocki described his Permalum screen and stated that tests indicate this screen is three times brighter than a newly painted screen surface, and that there was only a seven per cent dropoff of light at the edges of a 120-foot screen. Poblocki said that although accelerated tests have shown that this screen can give at least 15 years of service—if washed one to three times a year—there are still a few improvements to be made before the Permalum screen will be offered to drive-ins.

J. B. Schuyler offered the group information about his aluminum Manco Vision screen which he said was designed and based upon studies made by the Motion Picture Research Council, of Hollywood.

An explanation of a new vinyl plastic screen coating called Cinemaplastic and manufactured by Protective Coatings, Inc., was given by J. C. Morse. It was brought out that this white vinyl plastic would cost about 35 cents per square feet, and that two coats would usually be necessary for a drive-in screen. It was stressed that vinyl plastic could not be handled and applied like paint, and that it required the services of one familiar with the product for proper application.

The case for pressed wood facings was voiced by Francis W. Keilhack, of Drive-In Theatre Manufacturing Company, who said that 85 per cent of his customers purchased this type of facing. He stressed that proper application and priming was very important, and that the surface must be painted every year in order to give the best results. Keilhack said that he found, either with a steel or wood surface, that the problem of light reflection was "lessened considerably" by using a vertical tower. A final point made by Keilhack was that his experience seems to indicate that it was not advisable to use a screen much larger than 104 feet in width.

Taking a directly opposite approach was Dave Siegel, of Signs, Inc., who described his firm's steel screen tower design which is curved and tilted. Siegel's main point was that tilt and curve are of extreme importance with the wide screen systems in order to get the best picture for all ramps, including the extreme end ones. He stated that if the screen is curved to the projector a picture of good definition will be obtained at the end ramps.

Indoor-Outdoor Operations

A subject which created a good deal of interest was that of the indoor-outdoor operation. One exhibitor stated that he was sorry he had put in a closed seating section while another, Ed Clark, of Metropolis, Ill., reported that after three years of experience with a 500-seat enclosure, that "it was the best thing that ever happened to us."

One point regarding the indoor-outdoor operation that did seem to receive some agreement was that, although these buildings were usually air-conditioned the public did not make much use of them in the summer. The general conclusion seemed to be that in many areas the indoor operation might be the answer to a 12-month operation schedule.

A New Ceiling Material Improves Lighting

CHICAGO—Over-all interior illumination that is efficient, glareless, decorative and economical is based on a new type ceiling made of translucent Bakelite vinyl rigid sheet. Light in weight, resistant to moisture and high in dimensional stability, Bakelite vinyl rigid sheet is easy to install and maintain in public buildings, such as theatres, and homes.

Corrugated for rigidity and light diffusion, long strips about a yard wide are simply laid on I-shaped metal tracks running from wall to wall about one and one-half feet below fluorescent lighting strips attached to a white-painted ceiling. A ceiling of this type banishes glare and shadow, is highly decorative in itself and provides strong and even lighting for colorful surroundings.

Acoustical fins suspended from the I-tracks at relatively low additional cost serve to reduce noise levels. Space between the corrugated Bakelite vinyl rigid sheet sub-ceiling and the actual ceiling can be used as a duct for both air-conditioning and heating purposes. With lighting fixtures arranged to prevent shadows, pipes, ducts and sprinklers are concealed by the sub-ceiling, yet readily accessible by merely rolling up the proper ceiling strip. Corrugated strips of Bakelite vinyl rigid sheet will soften and drop out at temperatures below those required to operate sprinklers.

The lighted ceiling can be installed in a variety of designs to provide uniform illumination throughout irregularly shaped areas, and separate circuits permit lighting of partial sections. The resistance of vinyl rigid sheet to moisture and warping enables the corrugated strips to be easily rolled up, cleaned by dipping or wiping with a damp cloth, and rehung to dry. Elimination of glare and shadow, reduction of excessive noise and economy of installation and maintenance make the new type ceiling particularly useful in theatres.

General Discussion

After the formal part of the meeting was concluded there was a general discussion which covered many subjects of interest and importance to the drive-in operator. The following is a brief summary of some of the points discussed:

Dust Control: It seemed to be agreed that the most economical method of dust control was the use of oil. Braunagel explained that he makes arrangements with local service stations to remove the waste crankcase oil from their tanks. He said that in this way he gets thousands of gallons of waste oil for a very low cost. Dr. Frank Tiller, dean of the Engineering School at LaMar College, Beaumont, Texas, who has been doing drive-in theatre research, suggested that the large chemical companies be contacted to check on any new dust control products which they have developed.

Concession Breaks: It was agreed that there is a danger in having too long a concession break, and that something should be done to entertain those patrons who do not go to the snack bar. It was suggested that if the manager has any stage presence he might use the public address system to discuss future programs amusing local events, etc. The use of taped programs was also suggested.

Screen Sizes: Braunagel pointed out that a survey made by the committee indicated that it was impossible to determine what the best size for a drive-in screen should be, as it varied in each part of the country, and in most cases is an individual problem.

Playgrounds: The group agreed that by putting too much emphasis on rides that have a charge, it might hurt business, and that if possible the free playground facilities should be kept separate from the ones that charge. Another point that was stressed was the importance of proper supervision and using people who have a genuine liking for children.

There can be little doubt that those theatremen who attended the two sessions benefited greatly. The opportunity to discuss problems with the men who make and sell equipment, as well as fellow exhibitors, plus the added advantage of attending the trade show exhibits, was a combination which could not help but make for a better-informed, and therefore, a more efficient theatre operator.

A quote from the TOA Drive-In Committee report seems to be a fitting note upon which to end this story.

"In conclusion, we feel that in 1955 more than ever, more efficient methods of operation will be necessary... theatres must analyze their customers, and direct their advertising and bookings toward those customers."

Trade Show Triumph

The Motiograph exhibit was interesting since it featured a display of projectors going back to early days of motion pictures, as well as the latest equipment produced by this veteran firm. A new line of deluxe in-car speakers for drive-ins drew a good deal of comment.

The piece of equipment that received the most attention at the C. S. Ashcraft Manufacturing Company display was its new Cinex-170 arc lamp. This new lamp, which can operate from 15 to 170 amperes was designed primarily for use in drive-ins and large indoor houses that have a light problem with the showing of the wide screen processes.

IPA Trade Show

Meeting for the first time with TOA, TESMA, and TEDA, the International Popcorn Association conducted its own trade show in the south hall of the Conrad Hilton Hotel. Since this was the organization's trade show it is naturally impossible to compare it with ones held in the past. However, it was heartily agreed by everyone that both in quality and quantity the IPA members have set a high standard for the future.

Theatremen, with their ever-increasing realization of the importance of concession operation, gave the exhibits a good deal of attention and time. The exhibition area offered them the sights and smells that add up to increased revenue for conventional and drive-in theatres from their concession activities.

Some Comments

Perhaps there is no better barometer of the success or failure of a trade show than the reactions of the men who had exhibits. The following are direct quotes from some of these people:

Leonard Satz, Raytone Screen, Brooklyn, N. Y.: "Wonderful turnout of exhibitors and, of course, that's the reason for being here . . . Seems to be a lot of action and a lot of interest in all our products."

A. A. Simms, Heywood-Wakefield Company, Menominee, Mich.: "Think the Show good—in fact as far as we are concerned, it has been better than anything in a long, long time. People are actually interested."

Ray Colvin, Executive Secretary, TEDA: "I think it is by far the most wonderful Show that TESMA has ever held. Seems to me there is an atmosphere of contentment by all who are exhibiting."

Harold E. Brown, Strong Electric Corporation, Toledo, O.: "I think it was a very good Show. At first I had the impression the number of people would not equal last year, but I have had my mind changed on that. It's the contacts you have and meet once a year that really count."

W. C. Bailey, Knoxville Scenic Studios, Knoxville, Tenn.: "I personally think it is a wonderful Show. In fact, better than before. There seems to be more time to talk to more people, and there is more interest in really finding out more about everything new. More interest in buying."

Roy Boomer Retires

CHICAGO—One sad note in the hectic activity that surrounded the TESMA Trade Show was the announcement that Roy Boomer, a veteran in the theatrical industry for the past 49 years, had retired as secretary-treasurer of TESMA. Ill health was given as the reason for his retirement. Boomer has held his post in the manufacturers' association ever since TESMA was reorganized nine years ago.

Despite the fact that Boomer lost his eyesight in 1946, he did not let this handicap his efforts to build and strengthen the organization, or dampen his love for show business, which has been his entire life.

Boomer, and his lovely and devoted wife, Charlotte, have become an important part of TESMA, and they will be sorely missed.

It is hoped that perhaps after a long needed rest in their Hollywood home, the Boomers will again become active in some phase of the industry.

TESMA Elects New Bd. Members

CHICAGO—Two new members, Fred Wenzel, of Wenzel Projector Corporation, and M. H. Stevens, of Bausch and Lomb, were elected to the board of directors of the Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers Association.

Last year there was so much new in the theatre field they did not take time to really examine them and talk about them."

Colvin To Continue As TEDA Exec. Director

CHICAGO—At its recent convention the Theatre Equipment Dealers Association again named Ray Colvin as executive director of the organization. Colvin stated that he would do all in his power to implement TEDA's aim to improve operating conditions of the average theatre, and to aid in motion picture industry public relations.

In addition to naming Colvin, Henry Sorensen, of Modern Theatre Supply, Dallas and Kenneth R. Douglas, Jr., of Capitol Theatre Supply, Boston, were elected to the TEDA board of governors, replacing Homer Tegtmeier and S. E. Burns.

Compatible Photographic Stereophonic Sound Proposed

LOS ANGELES—Theatres equipped with standard single track equipment will be able to provide stereophonic sound with a minimum of additional equipment cost as result of development by Westrex Corporation of a compatible photographic stereophonic sound system, it was reported to the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers.

Wide Spread Use Of Wide Screens For Drive-Ins

LOS ANGELES—Widespread use of CinemaScope or other wide-screen, multi-channel sound systems for drive-ins was foreseen by Ralph N. Heacock of RCA.

Perhaps that's why Raytone has made so many friends and kept them for over thirty years. Because Raytone dedicates its entire facilities to producing quality products at reasonable prices.

Take, for instance, the Raytone Hilux Screen . . . a superb, all-system screen noted for uniformity of surface, high reflectance, even distribution of light . . . and an absolute guarantee to meet every claim or the buyer pays nothing! We think that's the way to make and keep friends. Don't you?

Stelma Making Perspecta Sound Integrators

By J. Gallatin
Engineering Sales Manager

LAST AUGUST STELMA, INC., a major producer of military and commercial communications equipment received a letter from C. Robert Fine, inventor of the Perspecta Sound Integrator, indicating his approval of the new Stelma Perspecta Sound Integrator. Manufactured under license from Perspecta Sound, Inc., the Stelma Integrator and switching equipment incorporate many design and construction improvements.

In order to provide the exhibitor with a complete all-inclusive unit, Stelma engineers developed one standardized Integrator which contains all of the following features in addition to the basic Integrator:

Input transformer

Pre-amplifier

Bass and treble equalizers—to compensate for acoustical variation in theatre

Output level equalizers—to adjust the input into each power amplifier individually

Higher P.E. cell voltages.

In addition, the Stelma Integrator includes a unique filter design that has made it possible to lower the cost of the equipment, yet improve the operation and dependability of its performance.

In order to cut exhibitors' maintenance and installation costs, the Stelma Integrator has been built with a vertical type mounting construction. The removal of four screws allows the front panel to be taken out leaving the complete wiring layout of the Integrator easily accessible to the serviceman. There is no awkward pulling out of heavy chassis, no groping for terminal points. Moreover, the vertical-type mounting makes the removal and checking of tubes a simple procedure.

Perhaps the most important contribution of Stelma engineering to Perspecta Sound equipment was to make available for the first time, at economical prices, a complete assembly in one space-saving unit. This complete package includes the Integrator and power supply, sound track selector switches, and master volume control all mounted and pre-wired with interconnecting cables in a standard open rack 25 inches high.

Installation time and installation costs are thus cut to a minimum.

A discussion of the Stelma master volume control will provide our final example of Stelma's unique engineering contributions to the Perspecta Sound system.

The usual method of controlling the volume of multi-channel sound in a theatre is to use a multiple-gang volume control (fader). Stelma engineers, however, have made available in the Stelma Integrator rack a single master volume control (fader).

The single fader is designed to save the exhibitor needless expense. It replaces the previous method of volume control (the multiple-gang fader) with a money-saving single fader that controls the volume of all channels through a single internal connection point in the Integrator. Results are the same, but equipment cost is slashed by two-thirds.

Exhibitor installation costs are also cut since the single master volume control is completely pre-wired in the Stelma Integrator rack.

RCA Adds Griggs Chairs To Theatre Equipment Line

CAMDEN, N. J.—The Griggs line of theatre chairs, including the Kroehler-developed "push-back" type which moves out of the way of patrons passing through the aisles, has been added to the line of theatre products distributed by the theatre equipment section, Engineering Products Division, Radio Corporation of America, it was announced.

The Griggs line includes five basic chair types, each with numerous style variations, to meet the budget, design, and climate requirements of all types of indoor movie houses and drive-ins, according to J. F. O'Brien, RCA theatre equipment sales manager. The chair types range from the fully upholstered "push-back" to an all-veneer hardwood seat designed for use in warm, damp climates. Installation will be handled by Griggs personnel acquainted with the installation requirements of the various chair types.

Research Center Announces Results of First Studies Designed To Improve the Drive-In

By Dr. Frank Tiller
Dean of Engineering, LaMar University

BEAUMONT, TEX.—In November, 1953, Julius Gordon of the Jefferson Amusement Company contacted the LaMar Research Center, and a contract followed in which the Research Center agreed to investigate problems affecting the motion picture industry. Among the topics which have come into the investigation are:

1. Excessive heating of film in the projector
2. Heating and air-conditioning of cars in drive-in theatres
3. Mosquito control
4. Improvement of outdoor screens
5. Development of new parking arrangements for drive-in theatres.

Other topics have been considered but as yet have not undergone extensive investigation.

A study of the light problem and film heating brought out certain salient points needing investigation. The first study centered around the arc with later work being done on the absorption of energy

Chicago Site Of SMPTE's Next Convention

LOS ANGELES—The spring, 1955, convention of SMPTE will be held April 17 to 22 at the Drake Hotel, Chicago, it was announced. An equipment exhibit is also being planned for this convention.

within the film and reflection characteristics of screens. It was discovered that although the arc was a good producer of visible light that the design of the lamphouse was such that only 10 per cent of the input energy left the lamphouse in the form of radiation. Discounting the unavoidable loss occurred in cooling the carbons, there still remained 80 per cent of the radiation which was simply wasted. A careful study of radiation within the lamphouse is now being started. Calculations indicate that if only two per cent more radiation can be utilized, then electrical and carbon costs can be reduced by 25 per cent.

Radiation

Of the radiation coming from the arc, approximately 65 per cent is in the infrared and ultraviolet regions and serves only to heat the film unnecessarily. After considering the use of available filters to eliminate a portion of the undesirable radiation, work was started on a new unit. A filter involving passing the light through water was successfully developed. It was possible to increase the current from 100 amperes to 160 amperes without producing anymore heating of the film. Intensity on the screen was increased by about 50 per cent. Unfortunately, the lamphouse could not withstand the high energy input for a sufficiently long time, and it has become necessary to focus attention on their redesign. The water filter is quite simple and can be used in connection with the water for carbon cooling. With work which is now in progress, it appears that it will be possible to triple the amount of light without further heating of the film.

Screens

Large losses in light occur from the typical outdoor screens of the white matte type. In many cases lines which appear are highly objectionable. A new type screen is being developed with which it is hoped that it will be possible to eliminate the lines and also to control the directions in which the light is reflected. By controlling the direction of the reflected light, increased intensity will result in the desired viewing range. A great deal more effort will have to be expended before a practical screen is developed that will meet requirements necessary for ideal drive-in viewing.

Air Condition Car

The presence of mosquitos has been a serious obstacle to overcome in some outdoor theatres. Numerous proposals were studied and investigated for controlling mosquitos. The most practical method developed so far has revolved around the complete air-conditioning of the car in which static pressure within the automobile is built up to a value sufficient to prevent the entrance of mosquitos. At the same time, the movement of air results in added comfort to the patrons. The system can also be adapted for improved heating during the winter. The occupants of both the front and back seats enjoy equal comfort. At the same time, it is possible to prevent moisture from condensing on the windows and causing a nuisance that could possibly cost a drive-in some patrons.

Conventional ramp and concession arrangements within drive-in theatres have come under close scrutiny of the Research Center. A modified parking arrangement has been proposed in which cars are parked on spirals instead of the conventional circular arrangement. The proposed parking system permits cars to pull in at a 45 degree angle, and thereby avoid the difficult 90 degrees parking of the present drive-in theatres that gives some drivers quite a bit of trouble.

CURVED and tilted, or straight and vertical—which is the better combination? If one is better, how much better?

Our company had an opportunity to compete for a contract to install 15 new CinemaScope screen towers for a large drive-in theatre circuit. Our main competition came from those concerns whose product was a system of adding wings to existing towers. Since their method of installation was approximately one-third in size and cost, it became a real challenge to overcome so large an obstacle.

Models And Tests Used

The approach we took was to make a series of miniature models and tests. We took our customer into a dark room, directed a flashlight on the wall at the same level of the flashlight and obtained a round circular light. The flashlight was then directed to the top of the wall and an oval light was obtained.

With this test it was possible to appreciate the advantages accruing from a screen that was tilted to right angles of the sight-line of the projector.

Our next approach was to make a scale drawing showing our customer's projection booth and screen tower. The distance between the center of his tower and booth was 300 feet. The distance from the ends of the tower to the booth was 318 feet. A compass was used to make a 300 foot radius. This demonstrated the value of having equal light on every portion of the screen.

On the basis of these and other tests it was decided to actually install two screens, one directly over the other and each screen being one-half of 48 feet in height, and 110 feet in width. The lower section was flat and vertical and the upper section was curved at the radius of the projector and tilted to right angle of the sight-line.

The results were definitely in favor of curved and tilted screens, and the next day we were in possession of a contract to install the screens for the 15 theatres.

Comparisons

The following are some of the comparisons which our firm have made regarding curved and tilted drive-in screen towers and flat and vertical towers:

The curved and tilted screen gave equal light throughout the entire surface. The flat and vertical was bright in the center, but fell off to dark on the ends.

Light gain was excellent with the curved and tilted screen and we obtained a bright and clear 110 foot wide picture. With the flat and vertical picture the picture was darker and did not show enough light gain.

Reflectivity was excellent and required a very little increase in amperage at the

There was excellent distribution with the curved and tilted screen. The picture was equally visible from the extreme ends and even from the outside edge of the road. Good visibility was obtained at 50 to 55 degrees. The people in the picture were equally in shape at the ends as they were in the center. With the flat and vertical screen there was poor distribution. The characters in the picture were distorted at the extreme ends. At 50 to 55 degrees we found that it was difficult to make the picture out.

The entire picture was in complete focus over the entire width of the 110 foot screen with the curved and tilted portion. The flat and vertical screen had good focus in the center, but the ends were out of focus, or the reverse if the lens was adjusted.

projector with the curved and tilted screen. Our test showed that the flat and vertical tower had poor reflectivity and the amperage had to be increased in order to get a fair picture.

The pictures seen on this page offer front and rear views of the screen designed by the author's firm. The main feature of this screen tower is that it is curved and it is possible to adjust the tilt. This design is said to be quick to erect and gives a bright, clear, wide screen picture.

The most highly entertaining and by far the most successful undertaking of the local WOMPI to date was the pre-

Hallowe'en party-dance, with attendance over 200. The club is planning a Christmas dance.

Film Row is glad to see that genial gentleman Jack Katz is back in this area. Katz has leased the Ritz from Flexer Theatres, Inc. He is contemplating revising the policy to show all the top Hollywood films, including CinemaScope, as soon as available after downtown showings, and from time to time play the very best of the foreign films, around five to eight a year. This change removes long time Ritz manager Joe Simon, but Flexer states he will definitely be in the Flexer office. Katz was formerly with Paramount Tenarken here as district manager.

Aubrey Guy, Shirley D. Smith public relations firm, and formerly with WMCT, spoke at the regular monthly meeting of WOMPI at the Hotel Gayoso.

M. A. Lightman, Sr., Malco, took out a large newspaper ad intended to correct any impression a previous full page ad on "White Christmas" stating a "new obsolete" screen had been taken out and a new one installed might have that Malco was of the opinion that 20th-Fox's CinemaScope was now obsolete. The new ad stated, "Let it be clearly understood that we think CinemaScope is the greatest contribution to the motion picture industry since 'talking pictures.'"

New Orleans

Gaston J. Dureau, Jr., president; Hank Plitt, vice-president in charge of theatre operations; Benny Bicknell, district manager; and John Magendie, purchasing department, Paramount-Gulf, were in Chicago for the TESMA annual convention and trade show.

A walking parade will launch the distribution of the New Orleans Tuberculosis Association Christmas Seal trailers being sponsored by the Women of the Motion Picture Industry, and scheduled to show in all of the theatres in New Orleans, St. Bernard, Jefferson, and Plaquemine Parishes. The procession consisting of members of the association, city officials, and members of other business organizations along with 60 WOMPI's carrying posters will proceed to the Joy preceded by band music, where a trailer will be presented to manager Ernest A. MacKenna and then on to other theatres. The presentations will be made by Mrs. Mary Morris, supervisor of the project, service chairman, and Jill Jackson, WWL's Hollywood reporter and an honorary member of WOMPI. Co-working with Mrs. Morris are Nathalie Odom, who scheduled playing the trailers in all theatres; Mrs. Ann Balencie, who carried out the detail and clerical work; and Helen Simonson, who made the WOMPI posters.

SW Showman Awarded $475

PITTSBURGH — Stanley Warner successfully concluded its three-month long showmanship tribute to national president Si Fabian by singling out 10 managers as winners in its "Fabian Fabulous Forty" drive, it was announced recently.

Judging of the final month's stanza of the exploitation-advertising campaign took place in the office of M. A. Silver, zone manager, who, together with district managers, film buyers and bookers, and advertising heads, carefully reviewed pressbooks, newspaper tear sheets, photos, and letters of evidence to decide the recipients of $475 in prizes.

Winner of the first place in the judging was William Wyatt, Virginian, Charleston, W. Va., with Anthony Collincini, Manos, Greensburg, Pa., and Henry Rastetter, Warner, Erie, Pa., tying for second place and receiving $75 awards.

Fifty dollar bonds were voted to Jules Curley, Haven, Olean, N. Y., and Howard Higley, Allen, Cleveland. Five additional prizes of $25 each went to Ben Schwartz, Lincoln, Massillon, O.; "Doc" Elliott, Ohio, Lima, O.; Gus Nestle, Wintergarden, Jamestown, N. Y.; Alfred Goddard, Latonia, Oil City, Pa.; and Julius Lamm, Colony, Cleveland.

The panel of judges who served to choose the winning entries, included, along with Silver, assistant zone manager B. W. Steerman; chief film buyer-booker Saul Bragin; his first aide, Marvin Samuelson; and assistant Bud Gilliam, Gus Davis, and Bernard Elinoff; district managers Dinty Moore, Pittsburgh and Main Line; Dick Wright, Ohio; Frank Harpster, West Virginia; and Bob Bowman, Erie, Pa.; and Henry Burger, zone advertising-publicity chief, with Phil Katz, assistant.

Pittsburgh's outstanding campaigns for the past three months are being sent to New York, where, in competition with outstanding work from managers in other Stanley Warner zones, grand final winners are to be designated, among them a top winner of a two-week trip to England.

Interfaith Award
Goes to Pleshette

NEW YORK — Eugene Pleshette, managing director, Brooklyn Paramount, has been named by the award committee of the Anglo-Jewish Publications of Greater New York as the recipient of their Interfaith Award for 1954.

The award, given to the outstanding man of the year in brotherhood activities, culminates an active career of humane services by Pleshette, both through his theatre and on his own. Among the local and national associations he has lent his talent to have been the Knights Before Christmas, the National Tuberculosis Association, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and the Mount Sinai Synagogue.

The Interfaith Award was presented to Pleshette by Dr. Eugene J. Lang, committee chairman, in full recognition of Pleshette's activities. The award commends him for his "outstanding and unselfish work in the field of interfaith cooperation," and his "efforts in behalf of the brotherhood of mankind."

He was also tied for first place in the Newark zone campaigns entries for national awards in the drive.

Birk Binnard, manager, SW Warner, was hospitalized.

Scranton

For "White Christmas," manager Ed McGovern, Comerford, concluded a successful campaign. The customary newspaper, radio, and television advertising were augmented by teasers stating "Christmas is coming." A tie-in with The Scranton Dry Goods Company provided every purchaser of a chance on a stove displayed in the department store. A tie-in with Dolitsky's Ladies' Store resulted in the displaying of the gowns worn in the picture being shown in the lobby. Splendid cooperation was achieved with a record shop which ran cooperative ads, and albums of records were in the lobby, where they could be purchased. A mailing piece in the form of a blotter with an imprinted message was sent to 1,000 persons and a maximum of outdoor advertising and posting was used. McGovern procured from the city school district a cutout of Santa, sleigh, and reindeer, which is used on one of the local high schools, and which was spotlighted on the marquee.

Bowery To Bagdad (542)

COMEDY
64M.

ESTIMATE: Okeh series entry.

CAST: Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall, Bernard Gorcey, David Condon, Bennie Bartlett, Eric Blore, Joan Shawlee, Robert Bice, Richard Wessel, Rayford Batnes, Michael Ross, Rick Vallin, Paul Marion, Jean Willes. Produced by Ben Schwalb; directed by Edward Bernds.

STORY: Huntz Hall decides to give Bernard Gorcey, owner of the Bowery sweet shop, a birthday gift and buys him an old lamp, which turns out to be Aladdin's magic lamp. When he starts to clean it, genii Eric Blore appears to do his bidding. Gorcey convinces Blore that he is co-owner of the lamp and that he must obey orders. Racket boss Robert Bice hears of the lamp and sends some of his goons to get it as does a Far Eastern Caliph. The boys are in and out of trouble and wind up in Bagdad where the Caliph recovers the lamp and they land back in the Bowery regretful that they didn't use their wishes to better advantage.

X-RAY: Featuring the usual slapstick and madcap antics of the Bowery Boys, this should please series followers as well as others that have preceded it. The story is fairly interesting and the cast, direction, and production are about average for the series. The screen play is by Edward Bernds and Elwood Ullman. Legion of Decency "B." Maximum aspect ratio: 1.85-1.

AD LINES: "When The Bowery Boys Latch Onto Aladdin's Magic Lamp . . . Watch Out"; "Fun For All When The Bowery Boys Find Aladdin's Magic Lamp"; "They Wanted Things Done In A Hurry And Genii Made Their Slightest Wish Come True."

Athena (507) COMEDY MUSICAL

96M.

(Eastman Color)

ESTIMATE: Names will help this offbeat comedy musical.

CAST: Jane Powell, Debbie Reynolds, Edmund Purdom, Vic Damone, Louis Calhern, Evelyn Varden, Linda Christian,

STORY: When Edmund Purdom, stuffy lawyer, meets Jane Powell, he sizes her up as a crackpot. However, Powell, a believer in astrology, falls in love with him according to the dictates of her horoscope. Coming from a family of health enthusiasts headed by a spry grandfather, Louis Calhern, and a star gazing grandmother, Evelyn Varden, she has unusual attitudes which cause havoc in Purdom's circle. Meanwhile, TV crooner Vic Damone, a navy friend of Purdom, also becomes involved with the family in the person of Debbie Reynolds, one of Powell's six sisters. Powell and Reynolds soon charm the fellows into submission to the family health program and Purdom's home is redone according to their dictates. Purdom loses his fiancée, Linda Christian, and the Congressional nomination he was seeking. His love for Powell remains intact though until he attends a TV program on which "Mr. Universe" is to be chosen. Calhern, cultivating musclemen to compete in the contest, is pulling for his pupil who wins. However, before the cameras, a misunderstanding between "Mr. Universe" and Purdom results in the latter flooring the champ. Powell refuses to see Purdom, whom she believes purposely made her father a laughing stock.

*AS USUAL! The most useful and "theatre-wise" services will always come from the theatremen's most serviceable weekly!

Powell and her family learn to adapt their iron clad standards and the couple is reunited.

X-RAY: An unusual story and a zany group of characters lend zest to this colorful musical comedy. The material is sometime imaginative, but it wears thin. Purdom and the others are good in the hubbub about health with Powell, Reynolds, and Damone carrying the comedy and music satisfactorily. If audiences do not scrutinize the plot too carefully and adapt themselves to the offbeat type of entertainment, they should enjoy this spoof. Beautiful settings and color aid and there are some lively tunes including "Athena," "The Girl Next Door," "Imagine," "Vocalize," "I Never Felt Better," "Venezia," and "Chacum Le Sait." William Ludwig and Leonard Spigelgass wrote the screen play. Maximum aspect ratio: 1.75-1.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better than average.

AD LINES: "The Craziest Comedy Of The Year . . . But You'll Laugh More Than You Ever Have"; "A Glittering Cast Of Youngsters In A Delightful Spoof"; "An Hilarious Musical Comedy Spoof On Health Faddists."

Crest Of The Wave (511)

DRAMA
90M.

(Made in England)

ESTIMATE: Moderate programmer.

STORY: Aboard a small island off the coast of Scotland, the British navy is experimenting with new explosives for torpedoes. When one failure results in the death of one of the officers, American naval lieutenant Gene Kelly is sent to replace him, having worked on the same explosives in America. He is accompanied by sailors Jeff Richards and Fredd Wayne and his presence is resented by Lieutenant John Justin, who worked with and had faith in the dead man. Meanwhile, in the quarters of the enlisted men, morale is low. Also the cook, Sidney James, is against all Americans. The next test sees a submarine officer killed as well as one of the men. The Admiralty orders further work suspended, but Justin has a hunch what's wrong and proves it. Kelly submits the new findings and persuades them to grant a new test. Kelly commands the two-man sub and the test is a success. Kelly and his men prepare to depart, their mission accomplished.

X-RAY: Kelly playing a straight dramatic role is probably the only known personality in the cast as far as American audiences are concerned. The story is interesting and the cast does well by its assignments while the direction and production are suitable. The cast is small in number and the sets are also relatively few, with simplicity the keynote. There is also some comedy relief in this otherwise all-dramatic entry which could be suitable either as a programmer in regular houses or for art and specialty spots. The screen play is by Frank Harvey and Roy Boulting, based on a play, "Seagulls Over Sorrento," by Hugh Hastings. Maximum aspect ratio: 1.75-1.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program price.

AD LINES: "A Taut Drama Of Men Stationed On An Island Experimenting With Death"; "They Had To Be Successful . . . Or Die"; "Thrills . . . Suspense . . . Life Or Death . . . Ride The 'Crest Of The Wave'."

The Last Time I Saw Paris (510)

DRAMA
116M.

ESTIMATE: Well-made drama has names to make the difference.

CAST: Elizabeth Taylor, Van Johnson, Walter Pidgeon, Donna Reed, Eva Gabor, Kurt Kasznar, George Dolenz, Roger Moore, Sandra Descher, Celia Lovsky, Peter Leeds, John Doucette, Odette. Produced by Jack Cummings; directed by Richard Brooks.

STORY: Following the freeing of Paris in World War II, there is much celebrating. War correspondent Van Johnson meets Elizabeth Taylor briefly and later is attracted to Donna Reed. Friend George Dolenz introduces them. He is invited to a party at Reed's home and meets her father, carefree Walter Pidgeon, and her sister, Taylor. They marry and he remains in Paris working on a newspaper and trying to write the great novel. Taylor continues to live gaily while Johnson tries to work. Reed, in love with Johnson, weds Dolenz. Taylor's good times are interrupted by a baby girl, but things are soon back to normal. Johnson, meanwhile, gets fed-up with rejections when the good news arrives that the family is wealthy, with oil being discovered on land in Texas. Johnson turns to gay living while Taylor tires of it. At this point, oft-married and oft-divorced Eva Gabor appears to accompany Johnson on his gay rounds and Taylor turns to Roger Moore for comfort. Johnson gets drunk and unwittingly locks Taylor out of the house in a pouring rain. She becomes fatally ill and dies after forgiving him. Reed blames him for her death and gets custody of the child, Sandra Descher. Johnson returns to America. Later, changed and successful at writing, he pleads with Reed for the child, but she refuses until Dolenz convinces her she is keeping them apart as revenge. Then she reunites father and daughter.

X-RAY: Beautifully photographed in Color by Technicolor, with Paris backgrounds serving as an effective backdrop to this interesting novel of people in love and their circumstances, while overlong, this should prove entertaining to adult audiences with perhaps women being most affected emotionally. The cast has Taylor emerging very well and Johnson and Pidgeon following close behind. The direction and production are in the better category. The screen play is by Julius and Philip Epstein and Richard Brooks, based on a story by F. Scott Fitzgerald. A song, "The Last Time I Saw Paris," is heard. Maximum aspect ratio: 1.75-1.

TIP ON BIDDING: Higher bracket.

AD LINES: "A Wonderful Love Story In The City Of Love . . . Paris"; "She Had A Way With Men And Her Husband"; "A Wonderfully Adult Story About People In Love In Paris And Of Their Life Together."

20TH-FOX

Black 13 (428)

MELODRAMA
75M.

(English-made)

ESTIMATE: For the lower half.

STORY: When a small cafe is robbed, several clues lead police to suspect that someone at the college may be involved so detective Patric Barr is assigned as undercover man. Professor Martin Walker is disturbed by news that his son, Peter Reynolds, has again turned down the offer of a job not knowing that he is the leader of the trio that robbed the cafe along with Michael Balfour and John Forrest. Walker's secretary, Lana Morris, is in love with Reynolds, but his attentions are directed at piano player Genine

Graham at a club which has gambling. Several more robberies result in a watchman at the college killed. When Morris finds Reynolds' lighter he almost kills her, but she gets away. Meanwhile, Barr has met Reynolds' sister, Rona Anderson, and they fall in love, but have a fight when she learns his real identity. She is later convinced that Reynolds must be arrested. During a hold-up at the club, the police arrive and Reynolds is killed trying to escape.

X-RAY: With suspense, action, and interest, this can be used as supporting filler in some spots, despite the cast not meaning anything. This is based on an original story by Pietro Germi.

TIP ON BIDDING: Lowest bracket.

AD LINES: "The Number Was Lucky For Some And Unlucky For Others"; "His Number Was Up When He Called The Wrong Turn"; "Murder . . . Suspense . . . Romance . . . Action In a Thriller From England."

Desiree (425)

DRAMA
110M.

(Color by DeLuxe)
(CinemaScope)

ESTIMATE: Impressive picturization of best seller.

CAST: Marlon Brando, Jean Simmons, Merle Oberon, Michael Rennie, Cameron Mitchell, Elizabeth Sellars, Charlotte Austin, Cathleen Nesbitt, Evelyn Varden, Isobel Elsom, John Hoyt, Alan Napier, Nicolas Koster, Richard Deacon, Edith Evanson, Carolyn Jones, Sam Gilman, Larry Craine, Judy Lester. Produced by Julian Blaustein; directed by Henry Koster.

STORY: In 1794 in Marseilles, France, Jean Simmons shocks her family with news that she has invited a stranger she met at the fabric shop of her brother, Richard Deacon, nominal head of the family, to call the next day for the purpose of meeting her sister, Elizabeth Sellars. Cameron Mitchell comes to call and brings his brother, youthful general Marlon (Napoleon Bonaparte) Brando, who takes an interest in Simmons. Mitchell and Sellars plan to wed and Brando and Simmons also fall in love. Complications in politics arise and Brando is forced to go to Paris. Months later, Simmons hears Brando is having a wonderful time and arrives to see him become engaged to influential Merle (Josephine) Oberon. General Michael (Bernadotte) Rennie comforts Simmons and asks to see her again, but she refuses. Later, after Brando's armies have conquered much of Europe, she attends a dinner party with her sister and Mitchell, now high in the government, and meets Brando and also Rennie. The latter falls in love with her and she agrees to marry him. A son is born, and it is evident that Brando, too, would like an heir, but Oberon cannot give him one. When Brando becomes First Consul, he asks Rennie to joint the government and he agrees, though spurning personal friendship. When Brando later becomes emperor, he dissolves his marriage to Oberon, taking a wife from the Hapsburg clan. In 1810, Rennie is asked to become heir to the throne of Sweden. Brando is furious that he and Simmons ask to relinquish their French citizenship. In Sweden, Simmons finds the role of a princess difficult and returns to Paris. Brando tries to invade Russia, but is defeated. Later Brando is defeated in other battles and is exiled to Elba. Escaping, he raises an army which threatens the destruction of Paris, but Simmons persuades him to surrender. She plans to rejoin Rennie in Sweden.

X-RAY: In the better entertainment category, this well-mounted entry in CinemaScope and color should please audiences seeking high rating dramatic entertainment. While there isn't too much action, interest is maintained, with very good performances, especially by Brando, Simmons, and Rennie, and the story is well-developed and absorbing. This period piece should fall into the better category boxofficewise as well. Brando handles the role of Napoleon in such fashion as to make him seem vividly real and kudos should again be heaped upon him. The screen play is by Daniel Taradash, based on the novel by Annemarie Selinko.

TIP ON BIDDING: Higher bracket.

AD LINES: "An Outstanding Film In All Respects; 'The Film Everyone Has Been Talking About'; 'Another Triumph For Marlon Brando, Who Portrays A Man Of Destiny—Napoleon—And Makes Him Live.'"

Snow Creature

MELODRAMA
70M.

(Wilder)

ESTIMATE: For the lower half.

CAST: Paul Langton, Leslie Denison, Teru Shimada, Rollin Moriyana, Robert Kino, Robert Hinton, Darlene Fields, George Douglas, Robert Bice, Rudolph Anders, Bill Phipps, Jack Daly, Rusty Westcott. Produced and directed by W. Lee Wilder.

STORY: An expedition to explore the flora of the Himalaya Mountains and led by Paul Langton includes photographer Leslie Denison and guide-interpreter Teru Shimada. The latter's wife is abducted by a snow creature. Shimada asks Langton to divert the expedition to search for his wife. When he refuses, doubting there is such a creature, Shimada takes over and directs the search. They follow a trail to a cave, find it's not the kidnapper but another creature. Langton succeeds in capturing it and arranges to have it transported to the United States. There, while waiting for the red tape to be cleared, the creature breaks loose and commits several murders. Langton finally directs the police to search the sewers. Langton is caught in a death grip and the police are forced to kill the creature to save him.

X-RAY: Photographed darkly, and with only the bare outline of a story, but with enough atmosphere and a few glimpses of the alleged monsters, this should appeal most to youngsters. The story is fair as is the acting, direction, and production, and the whole should serve as filler. The story and screen play are by Myles Wilder.

TIP ON BIDDING: Low bracket.

AD LINES: "Himalayan Monster Terrorizes City, Abducts Women, Annihilates Men!"; "Half Man! Half Monster!"; "Giant Of All Thrillers!"

You Know What Sailors Are

COMEDY
89M.

(Rank)

(Color by Technicolor)

(English-made)

ESTIMATE: Zany import for the lower half.

STORY: Donald Sinden, a British navy radar man, is drunk. For a joke, he and buddies weld the three brass balls of a pawnbroker and a baby carriage to a foreign ship and paint them. When asked about the strange new item on the foreign ship, he tells a superior officer that it is radar equipment "998." An uproar is caused when British naval officials try to order the "998." It is thought to be a new secret weapon. Meanwhile, Sinden has been assigned to the foreign ship to teach the men how to operate the radar equipment and tells the president of the foreign country, Akim Tamiroff, who is travelling on the ship, the story. They are about to throw the joke overboard when a plane sabotaged on shore blows up as it passes over the strange equipment. Tamiroff is now convinced that the material is a new weapon. He takes Sinden back to his country and puts him under the supervision of his palace girls. Meanwhile, Tamiroff's scientist realizes that there is nothing to the secret weapon, but in order to prevent a war with a neighboring country, he lets it be known that the weapon is dangerous. Thus peace is saved. Sinden is rescued by his girl, Sarah Lawson, who helps him escape the clutches of the palace beauties.

X-RAY: Not taken too seriously, this slam bang slapstick import can be rather amusing. Everything seems to be thrown in without much organization or logic and this accounts for some of the laughs. An added attraction is the quantity of scantily clad palace maidens. Without names of value, this might be adequate for the lower half. Peter Rogers wrote the screen play.

TIP ON BIDDING: Lowest bracket.

AD LINES: "The Craziest Comedy Of The Year"; "A Riotous Bunch Of Everything"; "An Hilarious Lampooning Of British Naval Operations."

U-International

Sign Of The Pagan

MELODRAMA
92M.

(CinemaScope)

(Color by Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: Well-made adventure story should ride into the better money.

STORY: In 450 A.D., with the Roman Empire split in two Jack (Attila the Hun) Palance unites all the barbarian tribes under his leadership and plunders and raids. He captures Jeff Chandler, a soldier in the Roman emperor's guard en route to Constantinople with a message for emperor George Dolenz warning him against Palance. Chandler is wounded. When he recovers, he steals a horse and goes on to Constantinople. There Dolenz, who plans on breaking from Rome and ruling the East independently, brushes him off, but Chandler makes an impression on his sister, Princess Ludmilla Tcherina, who appoints him head of her guard. At a feast for barbarian tribal leaders with whom Dolenz is seeking an alliance, Palance appears though uninvited, shows his strength, and demands that Chandler be assigned him to show him the Roman art of war. When Palance later prepares to leave, daughter Rita Gam is reluctant to go, preferring to remain in the Christian city, but she is ordered out. When Chandler warns Dolenz that Palance is headed for Rome, he is ordered arrested as a traitor. Freed by general Jeff Morrow and with his aid and that of Tcherina, he engineers the overthrow of Dolenz and Tcherina is appointed empress. She makes Chandler a general and sends him towards Rome with an army. He reaches the city to find it being abandoned by the emperor, assumes command, and awaits Palance and his own men. Palance, at the walls of Rome, refuses to attack and kills Gam when he learns she gave information to the Roman clergy. As his forces withdraw, Chandler and his men beat the barbarians, Palance's life being taken by a woman slave. Tcherina takes Chandler as her husband.

X-RAY: Aided by CinemaScope, this has a colorful action, interesting scenes and situations, and good performances. The direction is well-done and the production impressive while the pace moves along to keep interest pretty much on high. Sales of the recently-published book should be an asset in the selling while the Technicolor works out to the general advantage. With a little extra attention, the results could be impressive. The screen play is by Oscar Brodney and Barre Lyndon, based on a story by Brodney.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better price.

So This Is Paris

MUSICAL COMEDY
96M.

(Color by Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: Entertaining musical has names to help.

CAST: Tony Curtis, Gloria De Haven, Gene Nelson, Corinne Calvet, Paul Gilbert, Mara Corday, Allison Hayes, Christiane Martel, Myrna Hansen, Roger Etienne, Ann Codee, Arthur Gould-Porter, Regina Dombek. Produced by Albert J. Cohen; directed by Richard Quine.

STORY: Three American sailors on leave in Paris hunt for some feminine companionship, wind up in a cafe, and meet entertainer Gloria De Haven, an American from New York City. Tony Curtis takes her home. His two sailor buddies, Gene Nelson and Paul Gilbert, also meet girls, Gilbert cafe cashier Mara Corday and Nelson wealthy Corinne Calvet. The next day the three are invited to breakfast with De Haven, her French grandmother, Ann Codee, and six war orphans for whom they are caring with the financial assistance of an American philanthropist. Curtis and De Haven make a date, but when he and the other two sailors are invited to Calvet's, he is persuaded to remain there and Nelson tries to cover for him with De Haven. As a publicity stunt, Calvet announces her engagement to Curtis and their pictures appear in the paper. De Haven breaks off with him. Word is received that the rich American has died and that the support money for the children is tied up. Curtis persuades Nelson and Gilbert to put on a show to raise money to keep the youngsters going, and they use Calvet's home and grounds. She and her father return from a trip with the police, but Curtis explains everything satisfactorily with the aid of De Haven and the youngsters, who are summoned by Nelson. The father underwrites the necessary money. As the three leave to rejoin their ship, each promises to return to the girl he loves.

X-RAY: An entertaining musical comedy, this moves at a rapid pace with tuneful songs and dance numbers, and it also contains a story that should please fun-seeking audiences. The screen play is by Charles Hoffman, with a story by Ray Buffam. Tunes heard include "Looking For Someone To Love," "Wait 'Til Paris Sees Us," "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby," "I Can't Do A Single (But I'll Try)," "A Dame's A Dame," "Three Bon Vivants," "The Two Of Us," "If You Were There," "So This Is Paris," and "It's Really Up To You." Legion of Decency. "B."

Drum Beat (404)

MELODRAMA
111M.

(CinemaScope)
(WarnerColor)

ESTIMATE: Ladd draw will make the difference.

CAST: Alan Ladd, Audrey Dalton, Marisa Pavan, Robert Keith, Rodolfo Acosta, Charles Bronson, Warner Anderson, Elisha Cook, Jr., Anthony Caruso, Richard Gaines, Edgar Stehli, Hayden Rorke, Frank de Kova, Isabel Jewell. Written and directed by Delmer Daves.

STORY: Indian fighter Alan Ladd comes to Washington to see President Grant in 1869 and meets Audrey Dalton. The President names him peace commissioner to negotiate without the use of guns a peace with a part of the California Modoc Indians led by Charles Bronson, a renegade continually creating trouble at the Oregon-California border. Dalton goes west with him to live with her uncle Richard Cutting. While the stage is stopped, one of Bronson's men, Frank de Kova, kills Isabel Jewell, girl friend of driver Robert Keith, and the latter swears vengeance. Dalton finds her aunt and uncle dead, victims of Bronson, but she decides to remain in the west. Meanwhile, Ladd is aided by the friendly part of the tribe and its leaders, Anthony Caruso, and his sister, Marisa Pavan, in love with Ladd since he saved her life years back. Ladd seeks a parley with Bronson accompanied by Pavan and Caruso at which he is told of Bronson's demands. Keith kills de Kova starting war between the Indians and the whites. Many whites are killed and soldiers prove of little avail against Bronson's men. A peace commission meets with Bronson but it turns out to be an ambush and Ladd is wounded. When he recovers, he is asked to get the murderers in any way he can, and most are killed or captured, Ladd bringing Bronson back to be tried and hung.

X-RAY: A bit more action and a tighter running time could help this entry, but still it has enough angles to be sold, Ladd, CinemaScope, color, action, Indian intrigue, etc. The cast is good, and the direction and production average.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better than average price.

AD LINES: "A Scrawny Horse, A Rusty Gun, And An 'Injun Girl' To Fix His Meals"; "This Was The Man MacKay, Who Stood Alone Where A Hundred Were Afraid To Be!"; "The Nerve Test That Meant The Northwest To The Winner."

Track Of The Cat (405)

DRAMA
102M.

(CinemaScope)
(WarnerColor)

ESTIMATE: Unusual dramatic fare should benefit from the star draw.

CAST: Robert Mitchum, Teresa Wright, Diana Lynn, Tab Hunter, Beulah Bondi, Philip Tonge, William Hopper, Carl Switzer. A Wayne-Fellows Production; directed by William A. Wellman.

STORY: On an isolated cattle ranch in northern California in the 1890's are the alleged head of the household, educated, alcoholic Philip Tonge; his wife, Beulah Bondi, an embittered, domineering old woman devoted to her Bible and sons; Robert Mitchum, a violent, boastful bully in his 30's; William Hopper, a quiet man in his 40's; Tab Hunter, the youngest, afraid of Mitchum; and Teresa Wright, their 40-year-old spinster sister; visiting Diana Lynn, Hunter's girl, who wishes he would be stronger. Also on the ranch is weird Indian chief Carl Switzer, a handyman. Mitchum and Hopper set out to hunt a mountain lion after Mitchum makes himself thoroughly unpleasant to Lynn. They pick up the tracks, and when it looks like a long hunt, Mitchum returns to the ranch for food and snowshoes. Hopper is killed by the cat in his absence. Mitchum sends the body back on his horse and continues the search. Hunter builds a coffin as Bondi mourns and Tonge gets drunker than ever. When Bondi sees Hunter and Lynn romancing, she orders her off the place and Hunter decides to go with her, but remains when Bondi asks him to help with the burial. Lynn waits for him to finish his chores. Mitchum loses his food, gets panicky, and falls off a cliff. Hunter and Switzer bring back the body as well as the hide of the cat, full of the necessary confidence to make him head man of the ranch.

X-RAY: Loaded with grief, forebodings, gloomy surroundings, unpleasant characters, and situations, this is straight drama. True, there is a certain amount of fascination in the developing of the yarn, but even this is over long and some cutting might have helped. Characterizations are good and the direction and production are okeh. The dramatic impact and the unusual and unpleasant theme could be quite successful in some situations, where the horror angle might be used. The screen play is by A. I. Bezzerides, based on the novel by Walter Van Tilburg Clark.

TIP ON BIDDING: Fair program price.

AD LINES: "A Cat Could Take The Lives Of Some Men And Make Real Men Out Of Others"; "What Was The Secret Of The 'Track Of The Cat?'; "Shocking Drama With Impact You'll Never Forget."

The Anna Cross

DRAMA
84M.

(Artkino)
(Russian-made) (English titles)
(Sovcolor)

ESTIMATE: Okeh Soviet entry for the art spots.

CAST: Anna Larionova, A. Sashin-Nikolsky, V. Vladislavsky, Mikhail Zharov, A. Vertinsky, N. Belevtzeva, I. Murzayeva. A Gorky Film Studio Production; directed by I. Annensky.

STORY: Anna Larionova, the daughter of a mild manner piano teacher who is addicted to drink, is offered marriage by an aged, wealthy merchant. Her ambition drives her to accept, but the old man is miserly and indifferent. His only purpose for the marriage was to get a show-piece wife to help his prestige. When he receives an invitation to a ball at which the prince will appear, he excitedly gives his wife money to buy a new gown. She is a sensation and gathers around her the wealthiest, most eligible men. Even the prince becomes enamored by her charms. When the prince pays a visit to his house, her husband is more than delighted. However, as a result of the sensation she caused at the ball, she establishes her independence from her husband financially. She lets herself be courted by a fast-living gentleman, becomes indifferent to her doting husband, and even turns her eyes away from her family in need of financial help.

X-RAY: Based on a story by Anton Chekhov, this Russian entry is fairly interesting. As a social satire, the film is in some sense an amusing and ironic commentary on middle class society of the last century. The Soviets get in some licks at the nobility, but the propaganda is not too obvious. I. Annensky wrote the screen play.

AD LINES: "An Amusingly Ironic Commentary On Middle Class Life"; "Based On The Story Of One Of Russia's Leading Writers, Anton Chekhov"; "An Engrossing Tale Of Russian Life In The Last Century."

Four Ways Out

MELODRAMA
77M.

(Carroll)

(Italian-made) (Dubbed in English)

ESTIMATE: For the art houses.

CAST: Gina Lollobrigida, Renato Baldini, Cosetta Greco, Paul Muller, Enzo Maggio, Fausto Tozzi, Tamara Lees, Emma Baron. Produced by Edoardo Capolino; directed by Pietro Germi.

STORY: Four men hold up the cashier's office of a football stadium and get away from the police. Renato Baldini, one of the men, goes to his girl's house with his share. The girl, Gina Lollobrigida, has an independent income and does not need the money he brings her. She calls the police and he is apprehended. Fausto Tozzi, another of the quartet, and his wife, Cosetta Greco, plan to leave for the country. Greco buys a doll for their daughter before boarding the train. When the conductor comes around collecting fares, Tozzi has only the loot money. When the large bill is questioned, Tozzi, unwilling to let himself be caught, commits suicide. The third crook, Paul Muller, an artist, is tracked down by the police, but makes a deal with some shady characters to take him out of the country. Instead of giving him safe conduct, the smugglers take the money and murder him. The fourth man, Enzo Maggio, a teen-ager, comes home to find the police waiting, and tries a getaway via the window ledge, but his parents persuade him to come in. Giving himself up, the case is then closed.

X-RAY: The Lollobrigida name should help this fair cops and robbers thriller. Film has been dubbed into English with a fair technique, which should give the film a wider audience.

Half A Century Of Songs

MUSICAL

ESTIMATE: Strictly for Italian audiences.

CAST: Silvana Pampanini, Renato Rascel, Cosetta Greco, Galeazzo Benti, Anna Maria Ferrero, Carlo Daporto, Maria Fiore, Erno Crisa, Olga Villi, Franco Interlenghi, Lauretta Masiero, Marco Vicario. Directed by Domenico Paoletta.

STORY: This musical consists of a number of slight sketches based on popular songs of the last half century. One involves a model, Silvana Pampanini, and a window dresser who fall in love and are separated by the war. Another shows the wild fantasies of an elevator boy, Renato Rascel, suggested by a beautiful woman, Cosetta Greco, who is a passenger in his elevator. A cynical man about town meets a simple girl in the streets, but he leaves her to continue his gay life. He returns later to find her dead. Another sketch has a country maid, Maria Fiore, singing in the streets as she sells flowers. A painter, Erno Crisa, hires her as a model and soon has her in a compromising position, but not without the girl's indirect approval.

X-RAY: This Italian musical import in color should have a limited appeal, chiefly in the Italian houses. Most of the songs are unknown and the sketches that accompany the tunes are meagre and done with maudlin sentimentality or broad slapstick humor that rarely comes across successfully. Involved in this Ferrania-color extravaganza are some important names of the Italian industry that might aid in its selling. Domenico Paolella and Carlo Infascelli wrote the screen play. Heard are "Yes Sir, That's My Baby," "Chiribiribem," and others.

AD LINES: "A Great Musical Extravaganza In Color From Italy"; "A Nostalgic Glimpse Into The Last 50 Years"; "History Through Song."

Illicit Interlude

DRAMA
90M.

(Hakim)

(Swedish-made) (English titles)

ESTIMATE: Moderate love story for the art houses.

CAST: May Britt, Alf Kjellin, Berger Malsten, Georg Funkquist, Mimi Pollack, Annalisa Ericson, Stig Olin, the Ballet Theatre of the Stockholm Royal Opera. Directed by Ingmar Bergman.

STORY: May Britt, a famous ballerina at the Stockholm Opera House, is confused and unhappy and is not sure of her love for newspaper reporter Alf Kjellin. An anonymous messenger brings her a diary of her first lover, Berger Malsten. She sees again her youthful days when she spent her summers with an aunt in the country and relives the carefree times with Malsten swimming, fishing, and discovering love. She also feels guilty for her intimacy with Malsten. After the latter's death in a diving mishap, Britt returns to the city, where she concentrates on her dancing. Her life is empty and guilt ridden until Kjellin offers some companionship. After a rehearsal, the ballet master tells her gently that a career will only last a few years and that she must think of her personal life. At this point, Kjellin offers her marriage again, but she feels that she must clear her conscience. She gives him Malsten's diary and asks him to return the next day if he wishes. As the curtain rings down, he is in the wings and Britt embraces him.

X-RAY: This Swedish effort has some good moments, but it suffers from dramatic content. The unfolding of the story does not have the lucidity that it should and often one could get lost in the flashbacks. However it may be a satisfactory import for the art houses. Ingmar Bergman and Herbert Grevenius wrote the screen play.

AD LINES: "One Summer Of Happiness . . . A Life Of Guilt"; "She Discovered Love Slowly And Lost It In A Twinkling"; "A Moment Of Passion And A Life Of Remorse."

The Runaway Bus

MELODRAMA
78M.

(Kramer-Hyams)
(English-made)

ESTIMATE: Fairly amusing import for the art houses.

Lovegrove, James Brown, Alistair Hunter, Sam Kydd, Reginald Bechwith. Produced and directed by Val Guest.

STORY: Thick fog grounds all flights at a London airport and the passengers besiege the receptionist. Among the most belligerent is an eccentric spinster, Margaret Rutherford. A special bus is chartered to bring the passengers to another airport where the fog is lifting. Other passengers include a dumb blond who reads murder mysteries, a mild mannered man, an American, the driver, and the hostess. An airline pilot, Terence Alexander, joins the group as an unofficial passenger. Meanwhile, it is discovered that some gold has been stolen and that it is probably on the special coach. Consequently it is assumed that the mastermind of the robbery is on the bus. Frankie Howard, the driver, learns of the bullion robbery and its implications through the bus radio. Suspicion first falls on Alexander, then on the American, and finally on Howard, himself, who is not the driver assigned to the bus. In the dense fog, the bus gets lost in an army training field that is mined. Since no one on the bus knows this, the mysterious explosions astound everyone. Finally, it is discovered that Alexander is an airline security officer and that the master mind of the whole stickup is the innocent looking Rutherford and her accomplice is the mild mannered Toke Townley.

X-RAY: A pleasant little mystery comedy, this import will create no great stir but it should fit comfortably on the program at art houses. Val Guest wrote the screen play.

The Shorts Parade

Comedy

THE FIRE CHASER. Columbia—All Star Comedies. 16m. Joe Besser, with a mania for chasing fire engines, is away at a fire when he is supposed to be getting married. His angry fiancée, disgusted with his crazy antics, decides to marry a rival. Joe tries to stop the wedding but ends up in the hospital. However, Joe and his girl eventually get reconciled and together they chase the fire engines. FAIR. (7411).

SHOT IN THE FRONTIER. Columbia—Three Stooge Comedies. 16m. The Three Stooges in real western getup ride into town to marry their respective fiancées. However, the girls give them an ultimatum. Since they were being bothered by the Noonan boys, the Stooges must revenge them. The sheriff leaves town when the gang of toughs arrive, and it remains for the Stooges to cope with the desperadoes. This they do in their own slap happy fashion. The threats gone, the boys are joined in marriage with their girls. FAIR. (7402).

Color Drama

ILLEGITIMATE CHILD. Artkino. 16m. Sovcolor. Based on a story by Anton Chekhov, this tells of a middle aged man who is accused by a servant of fathering her child. Ridden by his own guilt when he finds a baby on his front porch, he runs off with it in a panic, hoping to keep the fact from his wife. However, for the sake of the child, he determines to tell his wife all. After blurting out his indiscretions, he learns that the child belonged to someone else. FAIR.

Color CinemaScope Novelty

THE CINEMASCOPE PARADE. 20th-Fox—CinemaScope Special. 22m. This presents highlights of various 20th-Fox CinemaScope features as originally presented in "The Advancing Techniques Of CinemaScope." It should prove interesting as an advance trailer. GOOD. (7422).

Musical Novelty

CHEVALIER DE MENTILMONTANT. Joseph Burstyn. 14m. French musical comedy star Maurice Chevalier revisits the neighborhood in which he lived as a child and reminisces about the good old days as he walks around the streets of the Paris suburb. The camera catches the local color, the children at play, and the older folks going about their daily routines. For a finale, the children mob Chevalier and join him in a song. GOOD.

Novelty

THE WORLD OF LIFE No. 1. Noel Meadow. 16m. Part of a series of nature subjects, this shows some Saanen goats and kids enjoying themselves on the mountainside. The Saanens are white hornless goats that hail from Switzerland. On the west coast of Scotland, one sees the lighthouse keeper being relieved. In the midst of industrial London herons have set up a breeding ground and here are documented some of the actions of a typical family. The final sequence shows the London Zoo vet treating some of his animal patients. GOOD.

THE WORLD OF LIFE No. 7. Noel Meadow. 16m. Prospective climbers of Mount Everest test oxygen equipment necessary to the ascent. Some of the effects of rarified atmosphere are demonstrated in a decompression chamber. A young barn owl raised from a fledgling in a home shows himself to be quite tame and unafraid of the domestic surroundings. Seal life is examined in this final episode, which shows a baby grey seal learning the elements of life from its mother on the rocky seal island where he was born. GOOD.

THE WORLD OF LIFE No. 15. Noel Meadow. 15m. This shows preparations made by an expedition that planned to leave Plymouth, England, for a trip across equatorial Atlantic. The expedition tests and checks stores before setting out on this survey of marine life in the Atlantic. Dr. Konrad Lorenz, a noted Austrian biologist, is seen here in an intimate study of the private lives of geese, ducks, fish, and other animals. Since geese adopt as their parent the first moving object they see, Lorenz is shown as his flock of geese fledgling follows him obediently. He tries to sub for the real parent by teaching them the facts of life. GOOD.

CinemaScope Color Sports

THE EMPIRE GAMES. 20th-Fox—CinemaScope Specials. 13m. Covered in color are highlights of the recent British Empire games in Vancouver, B. C., winding up with the mile run between Bannister and Landy. This is preceded by excellent views of other events, and the subject shapes up as one of the better sport shorts, particularly because of the lensing. EXCELLENT.

Topical

USSR TODAY No. 24. Artkino. 19m. This Soviet newsreel shows a student meeting in Moscow with delegates from many countries; the opening of a new Anton Chekhov museum; scientific stations in the Arctic; an exhibition of agricultural machinery; a fur auction in Leningrad; process of fishing for crabs; and the courtesy visit of a Swedish ship at a Russian port. FAIR.

ONE REEL*Color Cartoons

HECKLE AND JECKLE IN A BLUE PLATE SYMPHONY. 20th-Fox—Terrytoons. 7m. The magpies open up a roadside eatery and are apparently quite successful despite their slap-happy methods. They have unusual ways of preparing their foods and even stranger ways of serving it. While the birds are leading their customers in a soup drinking symphony, a pair of hoods try to raid the place. The magpies meet the occasion by waging warfare, using all the devices and foods in the joint until the gangsters give up. FAIR. (5424).

LUMBERJACK RABBIT. Warners—Bugs Bunny Specials. 7m. It was said of this subject when first reviewed in THE SERVICE of October, 1953, in a 3-D version, "Bugs Bunny wanders into the land of Paul Bunyon, giant lumberjack, and his equally huge dog. Bugs, after the giant's huge carrot patch, outwits the big, but stupid, hound. FAIR." (2723).

CinemaScope Color Novelty

THE MIRACLE OF STEREOPHONIC SOUND. 20th-Fox—CinemaScope. 11m. This can only be played by theatres with stereophonic sound equipment. Part of the 20th-Fox demonstration held earlier, this subject acquaints the patron with the advantages of stereophonic sound and makes its point. Although of a technical nature, audiences should be interested. GOOD. (7414).

Novelty

Walter O'Keefe, Martha Tilton, and Marie Wilson. FAIR. (7852).

VistaVision Color Sports

SPEED SUB-ZERO. U-I—Vistarama Special. 9½m. Suitable for showing in CinemaScope and other aspect ratios this one-reeler is devoted to EastmanColor coverage of such sports as skiing at Sun Valley, sailboat racing on frozen Lake Geneva, skiing, and bob sled racing at Lake Placid. GOOD.

Sports

ARGENTINE ATHLETES. Columbia—World of Sports. 10m. Buenos Aires, one of the largest cities in the western hemisphere, is also one of the most sports-minded. Its citizens support a variety of competition shorts. A visit to the soccer stadium finds crowds cheering for their team while similarly enthusiastic fans watch the game of pato, a combination of basketball, hockey, and horseback riding. Another popular sport in Argentina is auto racing and the camera catches some of the thrills of this daring spectator sport. GOOD. (7801).

HUNTING THRILLS. Columbia—World of Sports. 9m. A hunting expedition in Mexico brings Tex Stone and his wife, both champion archers, up against some ferocious game. Stone first tracks down a javelina or wild pig, and manages to make a kill with one shot of the bow. His wife takes out after a puma and at a dangerously close range downs the animal with her arrow. FAIR. (7802).

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

ADMITTING that the general average of today's pictures—bolstered by CinemaScope, stereophonic sound in both magnetic and optical tracks, bright new bigger screens across the land, VistaVision for greater clarity of image, and the mammoth Todd-AO in the near future—is bigger, better, and more entertaining than has ever previously been accomplished in the entire history of this industry, just what will all of this excellence bring to our theatres?

We don't claim any pipeline to the occult, or any special ability to foresee the future not enjoyed by any other day-in-and-day-out theatremen of experience, but based on our observations of the last year, it seems entirely possible that "picture business" may be following the cycle of the old "legit" and big time vaudeville.

There was a day when the theatres and the showmen who operated them ran those businesses too. The theatremen himself hired his talent and built his show to the tastes of his known patronage. Road companies of the big time hits and traveling stock companies brought in percentage deals and gradually reduced the theatre showman to the status of landlord, risking his positive investment in bricks and mortar on a very minor share of the gross. But the real killer came when there were few hit shows and less traveling stock so that his theatre building was dark and vacant.

One of the contributing factors to the rapid growth of "picture" theatres was the ease of converting just such "legit" theatres. Motion pictures were founded and grew great on their ability to deliver entertainment to the whole family at a low price that permitted the family to come often. And the motion picture theatre, locally managed and carefully booked to suit local family tastes, became the family community center. With 1,000 and more pictures produced each year management had the facility to pick and choose and to control the entertainment purveyed.

But now, a shrinking source of supply has grown into a real shortage. Under single picture selling with no ability to average out costs, terms have risen to the place that there is little room for profit. And there aren't any "sleepers" any more. To accomplish grosses declared necessary by distributors, every big picture must raise the admission price and thereby chase away at least some part of the established clientele. Dollars are now necessary to go to the movies where quarters used to suffice, so the teen-agers and younger married set are forced into other forms of entertainment.

Some of this development or transition has not yet reached the critical stage, but it promises to. We are more or less in an era of road show business, with the large first-runs constituting a narrow group commanding a high weekly gross and able to live on the small percentage left by the distributors. The small town and neighborhood theatres which are the numerical majority can't get the price, so can't do the weekly gross and are allowed to wither on the vine. Should these latter disappear, no new audience will be developed and the movies as America's source of low cost family entertainment will disappear with them.

Every effort should be devoted to the finding of ways and means to continue to improve quality, but at a price that will allow the smaller or feeder theatres to exist. Only if we can continue to encourage and develop new patronage will we be able to support the larger, high-admissioned first-runs. Should the day come when movies depend on the thick wallet rather than the thin pocketbook, then America will look elsewhere.

RECORDS, MUSIC AND PICTURES

WHILE RECORDS of popular music have been tied up with motion pictures since even before "talkies" were introduced, and while it is an admitted fact that a song can help a good movie just as a movie can help a good song, Milton R. Rackmil is probably the only example of a record manufacturer who runs a motion picture producing company. As president of both Decca and Universal-International, Rackmil has shown a great deal of knowledge of the public's entertainment tastes since he acquired the latter company in 1951. Most important, he has exhibited a real liking for the movie industry and a confidence in its future that proves reassuring to many.

So we have a switch in the form of a song industrialist helping a good movie studio by bringing to it a lot of entertainment attributes in addition to financial stability.

And in that league they don't play with "box tops" either!

NEW YORK By Mel Konecuff

ONCE AGAIN hundreds of industryites gathered from all parts of the country at the Hotel Astor last week to attend the 16th annual showmanship dinner of the Motion Picture Pioneers at the Sheraton Astor Hotel.

It almost sounded too good to be true, but when Robbins said it, he meant it, and thus it came to pass that precedents were broken all over the place. As a matter of fact, he had the dais rise and applaud the audience for a real switch, which is pretty good as audiences do need morale boosting once in a while.

Following the benediction, the swearing in of new members, and the moments of silence in honor of those who have passed on, a program of entertainment got under way which presented the life of Fabian. Such personalities as the Deep River Boys, George Murphy, Dore Brooks, John Daly, Licia Albanese, Walter Abel, Judy Johnson, Paula Stewart, Van Johnson, Bill Hayes, Bill Stern, Dorothy Sarnoff, and Lowell Thomas participated in fine fashion under the direction and written guidance of Morton Sunshine.

Thomas presented the story of Cinerama which was tied in with the story of Si Fabian, and he credited the honored guest and his associates, including Sam Rosen, with the success of the medium which has taken in something like $19,000,000 to date from 13 cities.

To mark the entry of the Fabian organization into the field of commerce, attention was called to the purchase of International Latex Corporation by having a

Montague Pledges Aid To Distressed Exhibitors

CHICAGO—Addressing Allied of Illinois, Abe Montague, Columbia sales manager, promised all the help needed by distressed exhibitors, but urged that exhibition police itself to prevent free rides.

Denying that Columbia had helped create the product shortage, he pointed out that the shortage hurt the producer more than anyone else.

Answering a question from the floor, Montague said that in certain cases Columbia would sell such films as "The Caine Mutiny" on a flat rental basis. He stressed that each case would have to be decided on its own merits.

Indiana Allied Meets

INDIANAPOLIS—The fall convention of the Allied Theatre Owners of Indiana was warned by Abram F. Myers, general counsel, Allied States, of the need to work to attract new people into theatres. He pointed out that attendance was decreasing even while grosses have increased.

The convention reelected Roy Kalver, president; Richard Pell, vice-president; Richard Lochry, treasurer; Trueman Rembusch, national director; and William A. Carroll, executive secretary.

pretty gal parade across the stage in girdle and bra, illustrative of some of the products made.

Jack Cohn, Pioneers president, thanked Robbins, Sunshine, and all concerned with making the dinner a success, after which he presented the plaque to Fabian whereupon the assembled pioneers arose as a body in standing tribute to the Pioneer of the Year.

The latter, deeply touched, thanked all who had a hand in the affair and noted that his 40 years in show business and particularly in the movie end have been fascinating ones and he's enjoyed every minute of it from the time he was an usher to be trusted only in the balcony, to the present day when he rules a theatrical empire.

With heart full of emotion, he abandoned his prepared speech and went over a brief history of the industry showing how today buyer and seller have drifted apart, referring to distributor and exhibitor. He recalled how in the past these two branches respected and cared for each other's welfare, and he opined that he would like to see the day again when there is mutual respect and concern by one another for one another and an industry working together.

Fabian urged the younger men who take over the industry and its problems to handle their chores wisely, humanely, and from the heart, for there is still a tremendous future in the business. To Hollywood he extended thanks and congratulations for the fine product that has emerged

New B'way Product Stimulates Grosses

NEW YORK—With the advent of some new top-rating product, business in the Broadway sector experienced a considerable upswing. Top business was being done by the Roxy, Capitol, and the Paramount.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"DRUM BEAT" (Warners). Paramount, with Jackie Gleason and his TV show on stage in person, was heading toward $105,000 on the opening week.

"DESIREE" (20th-Fox). Roxy reported $47,617 for Thursday through Sunday, with the opening week sure to top $77,000.

"WHITE CHRISTMAS" (Paramount). Radio City Music Hall, with stage show, garnered $87,000 for Thursday through Sunday, with the sixth week bound to exceed $130,000.

"SABRINA" (Paramount). Criterion, in the ninth week, dropped to $14,000.

"CARMEN JONES" (20th-Fox). Rivoli dropped to 30,000 on the fourth week.

"FIRE OVER AFRICA" (Columbia). Globe expected the opening week to hit $9,000.

"SUDDENLY" (UA). Mayfair dropped to $10,000 on the seventh, and last, week.

"ON THE WATERFRONT" (Columbia). Astor was heading toward $17,000 on the 17th week.

"A STAR IS BORN" (Warners). Victoria, now playing this film alone, claimed $35,000 for the sixth week.

"THE LAST TIME I SAW PARIS" (MGM). Capitol announced $28,500 for the Friday through Sunday of the opening week with the first session heading for a sure $56,000.

"PHFFFT" (Columbia). Loew's State was down to $16,000 on the second week.

Contract Talks Start

NEW YORK—Negotiations of new contracts covering film-exchange employees throughout the United States was started last week by representatives of the IATSE and the major distributing companies, it was announced by the union's international president Richard F. Walsh.

Decision to hold nationwide talks was made recently following a poll in which the locals of both back-room and front-office employees voted overwhelmingly against negotiating in each exchange area.

Representing the IATSE at the sessions will be a committee composed of general secretary-treasurer Harland Holmden, international vice-president Louise Wright, and international representative Joseph D. Basson.

Coast Suit Settled

HOLLYWOOD—The $800,000 anti-trust suit of Moises and Raqual Mareyana, owners, Belmont, Hollywood, against National Theatres, Fox West Coast, and 20th-Fox was settled out of court last week for an undisclosed amount. The suit charged that the Mareyana's suffered damages of the above amount when NT chose to divest itself of the Belmont when ordered to get rid of one theatre under the consent decree.

Fabian Saluted By Pioneers, Calls For Fair Practices

NEW YORK—Si Fabian, president, Stanley Warner Theatres and Fabian Theatres, issued a call for new trade practices fair to both industry buyer and seller last week as he accepted the honor of "Pioneer of the Year" at the 16th Annual Showmanship Dinner of the Motion Picture Pioneers at the Hotel Astor.

Fabian, who received the plaque emblematic of the award from Jack Cohn, Pioneers president, was highly optimistic concerning the future of the industry, calling it the best story telling medium in existence. In conjunction with the story of Fabian, Lowell Thomas told of the success of Cinarama, the operations of which are conducted by SW.

His 40 years in show business were dramatized by a star-studded group in a narration written by Mort Sunshine. Herman Robbins was dinner chairman. The dinner also featured the induction of 38 new members.

Lardner Dismissal Approved

SAN FRANCISCO—The United States Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals here last week reversed the decision of the Los Angeles trial court in 1952 awarding $25,789 to screen writer Ring Lardner, Jr., in connection with his dismissal by 20th-Fox after claiming the protection of the Fifth Amendment when asked about his Communist affiliations by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Lardner had claimed that the "morality clause" in his contract did not extend to political activity.

The Appeals Court ruled the trial court should have admitted evidence of Lardner's citation for contempt of Congress, and that the citation legally constitutes moral turpitude and is valid grounds for dismissal.

Lardner's suit was heard simultaneously with a similar one brought by Adrian Scott against RKO which was also decided for the plaintiff. Damage claims in the two suits originally totaled $1,000,000 but were cut to $20,000 for Lardner, and $70,000 for Scott.

Both RKO and Fox have refused to consider out of court settlements with any of the 10 writers dismissed on similar grounds.

TOA and Allied Agree That Roundtable Idea Has Merit, Would Help Iron Out Differences

NEW YORK—The growing sentiment on the part of all branches of the industry to close ranks and solve their problems without calling in outside help was given further impetus by 20th-Fox distribution director Al Lichtman's proposal to have an industry conference attended by leading exhibitors, company presidents, and sales managers, at a meeting of the Council of Motion Picture Organizations, last week.

Although the announcement calling for an industry forum was made at the COMPO meeting, it was stressed that this would not be sponsored by the organization. Lichtman suggested that the meeting be held in New York, "sometime before the end of the year."

On the basis of calls for more intra-industry cooperation to help air out grievances by the Theatre Owners of America at its recent convention, and the Allied States Association intention to seek Federal regulation of film rentals, the speedy and favorable reaction of these two exhibitor groups came as no surprise.

The roundtable idea was described as a constructive approach to industry problems by Sam Pinanski, speaking for TOA. Allied's president, Ben Marcus said that his organization was "very, very favorable" to the plan.

Lichtman's reaction to exhibition's enthusiasm for his conference proposal was a reassurance that the film companies would cooperate with such a move. When the question of whether or not such a meeting might be a violation of anti-trust regulations was raised, Lichtman said that if this were so it would still be possible for individual companies to meet with exhibitor groups.

In reply to a question about the possibility of Allied calling off its move for Federal regulation, Marcus was non-committal and replied that much would depend on the results achieved at the proposed meeting.

While Lichtman said that the meeting should cover the general state of the industry, Marcus declared that the product situation and trade grievances were two problems which should be discussed at the conference. Pinanski envisioned the forum as one that would produce harmony and "a code of ethics." He warned against the meeting turning into a haggle over the pricing policies of individual companies.

Tangent Films Formed

NEW YORK—Tangent Films, Inc., has been formed as a subsidiary of Robert Alexander Productions, it was announced last week by Steve Cochran, board chairman.

The company will produce commercial and documentary films for the entertainment, industrial, and business world.

COMPO Endorses Audience Poll; Coyne Warns Of Local Taxation

NEW YORK—The COMPO board and executive committee met last week and endorsed the audience star poll as part of a plan to increase theatre audiences. Other ideas are television programming, research, and capturing youth's interest. A COMPO committee was formed to study the over-all plan.

In other business, the meeting, presided over by Wilbur Snaper, member of COMPO's governing triumvirate, decided not to press for total federal admission tax repeal at this time; it was said that National Allied had indicated it would not veto the industry group insurance plan if other COMPO member organizations thought it desirable; a report was given on attempts to produce a TV spectacular promoting motion pictures and it was said that the project is "very much alive"; the audience poll will proceed without TV tieups since distributors are not inclined to pay the cost of such shows.

The COMPO dues campaign was postponed until May or June, and Harry C. Arthur was named as board representative for Southern California Theatre Owners Association.

According to the proposed audience poll, theatregoers would select the best picture, actor, and actress of the year, as well as selections in other categories. The COMPO endorsement of the plan follows meetings between exhibition leaders and sales heads on how to capture a greater portion of the public's entertainment dollar.

It was reported that toll-TV was not formally discussed as part of the agenda, and the organization's by-laws were changed to "legitimize" the rule by a three-man committee and reduce the number necessary for an executive committee quorum from 15 to 10.

Robert Coyne, COMPO special counsel, reported on the dangers of local taxation, revealing that such levies are draining off a minimum of $36,000,000 annually. He urged more frequent COMPO meetings and careful study in the building of a secure industry.

Although toll TV was not on the agenda, it received informal attention.

Montreal Gets Cinerama

NEW YORK—The first Cinerama theatre to be operated by the Stanley Warney Corporation outside the continental United States will be the Imperial, Montreal, Canada, it was announced last week by Lester B. Isaac, general manager in charge of Cinerama exhibition.

The 14th theatre in the company's operation, the Imperial will premiere "This Is Cinerama" on Dec. 27. Renovations have just begun to permit installation of three projection booths, the huge screen, Cinerama sound, and other special equipment.

For the premiere showing in Canada, Cinerama officials are negotiating for a charity sponsored opening under the auspices of the St. Justin's Children's Hospital, which is under the direction of the Cardinal of Canada.

UA Concludes Deal For Italian Distribution

NEW YORK—United Artists has entered into a long-term agreement with D.E.A.R. Film of Italy, whereby UA releases will be distributed throughout the Italian market by that organization, it was announced last week by Arthur B. Krim, president.

The deal, renewing a previous distribution arrangement, was finalized in Rome by Arnold M. Picker, United Artists vice-president in charge of foreign distribution, and UA continental manager Charles Smadja. The Italian organization was represented in the negotiations by Angelo Rizzoli and Robert Haggiag.

Rizzoli and Haggiag, who were financially active in the co-production of United Artists' "The Barefoot Contessa," will similarly participate in the co-production of important forthcoming UA releases, it was concurrently disclosed by Krim.

Shea Ordered To Arbitrate

NEW YORK—Shea Enterprises and Jamestown Amusement Corporation were ordered last week by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Gavegan to proceed with arbitration under E. C. Grainger's claim for breach of contract as former general manager of the companies.

Grainger was dismissed in 1951, when he requested arbitration. Shea charged mismanagement against Grainger and E. C. Raftery and claimed that Grainger's contract was invalid. Arbitration was deferred, but the court recently found the contract valid. Judge Gavegan, however, upheld Shea's claim that the statute of limitations applied, limiting Grainger's possible recovery to six years.

Goldenson Keynotes Carolina Meeting

CHARLOTTE—Leonard Goldenson, president, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, delivered the keynote address at the convention of Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina last week and remarked that one of the most important methods of attracting a new generation of moviegoers was through merchandising films via television.

He called for a program of industry experimentation with TV merchandising to discover how best to use the medium, and said that his circuit had a committee currently studying the problem. Goldenson also suggested that there be improved liaison between producers and exhibitors regarding story properties, stars, and other problems.

Goldenson pointed out the rapid population growth and the fact that many will soon be reaching movie age. Regarding the product shortage, he said he hoped exhibitor financing aid to independent production would do much to alleviate it. He warned that the product shortage leads to exorbitant film rentals, threatening the shuttering of many theatres.

E. D. Martin, newly elected president, Theatre Owners of America, also spoke on the serious product scarcity, and George Murphy, Hollywood's good will ambassador, pointed out that understanding and closer liaison between all branches could bring about an era of unparalleled success for the industry.

The exhibitor unit came out strongly against the exhibition of sex films, and another resolution commended TOA and other groups for spurring independent production. Delegates also attended a demonstration of Perspecta Sound at the Carolina.

Delegates were addressed by Herbert Barnett on the convention's final day, and the president of SMPTE said that the industry was no nearer to standardization at this time than it was when old standards were upset. He said differences of opinion among major studios were in the way of

Canadian Industry Approves Institute

TORONTO—Establishment of a Canadian Motion Picture Institute for a trial period of two years at a cost of $50,000 is recommended by a committee set up by the Canadian Motion Picture Industry Council to study the idea. The five-man committee, representing the distribution and exhibition phases of the industry, recommends in its report to be given the Council at the annual convention the appointment for a period of a year of an executive director with a newspaper and magazine background. The Institute should start operations by Jan. 1, 1955.

A board of directors composed of 14 members is recommended. These would represent each of the seven exhibitor organizations in Canada; three distributors appointed by the Canadian Motion Picture Distributors Association on the understanding that one such member shall represent a British-controlled company and one a Canadian-controlled company; and four members-at-large, appointed by the Council, with the restriction that two will represent the two national circuits of Canada.

At the first opportunity, the report recommends that a permanent president or chairman be appointed for a year, as well as an executive committee.

The executive director should set up an office in Toronto and arrange for a sub-office in Montreal in order that whatever plans are worked out for English-speaking magazines and newspapers could be incorporated in their French counterparts in Quebec. The committee's report indicates that it would be wise, possibly, to create what it calls "a special approach to the French-speaking population." Canada's French population comprises an important part of the movie public.

Work to be done by the Institute is basically to establish between the motion picture industry and the various media of communication in Canada a closer liaison by providing material on the industry for use in the media and developing more intensive and favorable coverage of the industry in the media. The Institute would also serve as a clearing-house for a source of public information as well as public relations, such as making contact with universities or similar institutions equipped for the determination of economic facts in order to obtain statistics on the movie-going habits and ad-reading trends of the Canadian public.

Other suggestions include the provision of speakers for various clubs on the industry, as well as travelling exhibitions, creation of a weekly movie column, and most important, "a concerted and continuous effort should be made with all newspapers on the higher advertising rates presently being charged motion picture theatres, and, in many cases, the lack of cooperation being given for publicity."

The plan, according to the report, should be tried for two years, with the distributors paying $15,000 a year and the exhibitors paying five cents per seat, or, in the case of drive-ins, five cents per car capacity.

The motion picture industry has developed some fine public relations on its own, without an Institute. Take the case of the two film companies which have been supplying gratis 16mm. features through General Films for the needs of polio patients at King George Hospital, Winnipeg. Both Paramount and 20th-Fox have cooperated in showing the films. And because the majority of polio victims are in iron lungs, no more than four of them at a time can see a program which is projected on a ceiling.

The film companies are cooperating with members of the Chamber of Commerce who devote long hours going from one small group to another projecting the program on equipment supplied by provincial exhibitors. Other film companies are being sought to cooperate on the project, and many have expressed their intention to do so.

The other public relations effort is that of Mr. and Mrs. Godwin, owners, Norwood, Delburne, Alta., who believe that through the donation of a school scholarship they may help some youths. They have set up scholarships valued at $100 to be awarded by the department of education to ninth grade students in three towns. Godwin expressed the opinion that, "we find the theatre can do a lot to promote social welfare in a rural district, and thus keep the theatre and its business in the forefront."

Canadian Comment

A familiar abbreviation to be included in the already numerous initial list in the motion picture industry is that of WOMPI. It stands for Women of the Motion Picture Industry. Prime movers in the club's formation are Anne Kaplan, Paramount, and Glad Rowsley, UA, both of Toronto. . . . George Altman, Mavety Film Delivery Service, continues hard and strong in his one-man campaign to raise funds for Variety Village through collection of scrap. His latest donation was for $600. . . . John Davis, JARO, is expected in Canada late this month. . . . J. Roy McCullough and R. L. (Bob) Todd have joined Adfilms, Ltd. McCullough is western divisional manager, while Todd is eastern divisional manager, with headquarters at London, Ont. . . . Paul Hamer, manager, Christie, Toronto, is the manager, Odeon, Guelph, where manager Ken Davies was until his move to a similar post at the Odeon, London. Keith Wilson, formerly supervisor, Ontario District D, Odeon Theatres, becomes manager, Odeon, Brampton. . . . Motion picture and TV producers at Associated Screen News' Workshop sessions at Montreal will see the first demonstration in Canada of 16mm. CinemaScope through the auspices of Bell and Howell. Jack Chisholm, chairman of the workshop, reports an enthusiastic interest in the coming sessions.

TOA Finance Group Comes Into Being

NEW YORK—Herman Levy, TOA general counsel, announced last week that incorporation papers had been filed in Delaware bringing into existence the Exhibitors Film Financial Group, Inc., with a capitalization of $10,000,000.

Sam Pinanski was selected as president of the new company, whose formation was authorized by TOA members at their recent national convention as an effort to spur independent production as an answer to the product shortage.

Other temporary officers and directors are John Rowley, vice-president; Myron Blank, secretary; L. S. Hamm, treasurer; and additional directors E. D. Martin, Walter Reade, Jr., and Alfred Starr.

Levy also said plans were being made for filing of the necessary papers with the Securities and Exchange Commission who must condone the sale of stock. After stock is sold, holders will meet and elect permanent officers. It was reiterated that participation is not confined to TOA members, but to all exhibitors, and, in the future, to the general public as well.

TOA executives stressed the point that release will probably not be through major distributor channels, since it was feared that the purpose of the plan might be defeated if a distributor should acquire the films and then cut his own production plans. Another reason given was that major distribution is too expensive a proposition and was one of the causes of exorbitant film rentals.

Martin pointed out that harmonious relations between exhibition and distribution could come about best when a balance of power has been achieved and stimulation of independent production was thought to be an excellent way to bring this about.

Hughes Denies Sale Rumors

HOLLYWOOD—Howard Hughes denied last week published reports that he is about to sell his varied industries, except RKO film studios, to a New York syndicate headed by realtor William Zeckendorf.

"I have denied this rumor in the past," Hughes declared. "Let me say once and for all this rumor is utterly untrue."

standardization and urged that it be accomplished, but without stifling new developments.

Jack Braunagel, Kansas City, spoke on proper theatre operations. Also speaking was Hal Makelim, who stated that production of his first film would begin when enough signed contracts were on hand and added that he had no intention of asking a theatremen to pay "more than 25 per cent of the gross for a picture."

MGM conducted a special screening of "The Last Time I Saw Paris," with Murphy acting as host.

Officers elected included C. A. Dandellake, Tarboro, N. C., president, succeeding Howard Anderson, Mullins, S. C.; Anderson, first vice-president; and Woodrow Fussell, Bladenboro, N. C., second vice-president. TOA directors named are H. F. Kincey, North Carolina, and Robert Bryant, South Carolina.

Columbia Sales Heads Discuss New Lineup Of 39 Major Productions

CHICAGO—One of the most important sales meetings in Columbia history got under way last week with general sales manager A. Montague presiding, and including home office executives led by Jack Cohn, executive vice-president; department heads, key sales personnel, seven division managers, branch managers, and Canadian executives.

Some top product was screened for delegates, including Columbia's first three CinemaScope productions, "The Long Gray Line," "Three For The Show," and "The Violent Men," and also the CinemaScope cartoon, "When Magoo Flew" and the 40-minute product trailer unveiled at the TOA convention recently.

More than 50 leading midwest exhibitors were Columbia's guests at a reception in the Blackstone Hotel.

Highlighting the meeting was the presentation of what promises to be the most impressive lineup of films in the company's history. These productions, ready for release, in production, or planned for early production include "The Long Gray Line," John Ford's CinemaScope-Technicolor tribute to West Point, starring Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara, directed by Ford, produced by Robert Arthur; "Joseph And His Brethren," the most expensive production in Columbia history, to be filmed in CinemaScope and Technicolor, a personal production of executive producer Jerry Wald; "The End Of The Affair," starring Deborah Kerr and Van Johnson, filmed in London by David Rose's Coronado productions, with Edward Dmytryk directing and David Lewis producing; "The Man From Laramie," the first offering of William Goetz Productions, starring James Stewart, in CinemaScope and Technicolor, directed by Anthony Mann; "Three For The Show," starring Betty Grable, Marge and Gower Champion, and Jack Lemmon in a CinemaScope-Technicolor musical, with H. C. Potter directing for producer Jonie Taps; "The Violent Men," a drama in CinemaScope and Technicolor, starring Glenn Ford, Barbara Stanwyck, Edward G. Robinson, Dianne Foster, Brian Keith and May Wynn, Rudolph Mate directed, Lewis J. Rachmil produced.

Also "Phffft"; "My Sister Eileen," CinemaScope and Technicolor musical, starring Janet Leigh, Betty Garrett, and Jack Lemmon, directed by Richard Quine, produced by Fred Kohlmar; "A Prize Of Gold," filmed in Technicolor on the actual locales in London and Berlin, starring Richard Widmark, Mai Zetterling, and Nigel Patrick, a Warwick production, directed by Mark Robson for producers Irving Allen and Albert R. Broccoli; "Tight Spot," starring Ginger Rogers, Edward G. Robinson, and Brian Keith, directed by Phil Karlson, and produced by Lewis J. Rachmil; "The Black Knight"; "The Duchin Story," with screen play by Moss Hart, production by Jerry Wald, and direction by George Sidney; "The Young Virginians"; "Captain Calico," Technicolor drama, starring Clark Gable, produced by William Goetz; "Picnic," adapted by Daniel Taradash; "Pal Joey"; "Reminiscences Of A Cowboy," in CinemaScope and Technicolor; "The Brothers Ricco," to be produced by William Goetz; "The Franz Liszt Story"; "Deadlock," starring Stewart Granger and Jean Simmons, in a Technicolor Film Locations, Ltd., production which Arthur Lubin will direct in England for producer Mike Frankovich;

"The Detective"; "The Prisoner," to star Alec Guinness and Jack Hawkins, which Peter Glenville directs and Vivian Cox and Sydney Box produce; "The Stalk," to star Tyrone Power, in CinemaScope and Technicolor, with Copa producer Ted Richmond on location in Rio de Janeiro; "Lorenzo The Magnificent," Copa production, to star Tyrone Power, produced by Ted Richmond in CinemaScope and Technicolor; "Five Against The House," starring Guy Madison, Kim Novak, Brian Keith, and Kerwin Mathews, Phil Karlson directs, and Stirling Silliphant produces; "The Gentle Wolfhound," with location filming in Japan, Korea, and West Point; directed and written by Richard Murphy, and produced by Fred Kohlmar; "The Bamboo Prison," starring Robert Francis, Dianne Foster, and Brian Keith, directed by Lewis Seiler for producer Bryan Foy; "Women's Prison," starring Ida Lupino, Jan Sterling, Cleo Moore, Audrey Totter, Phyllis Thaxter, and Howard Duff, directed by Lewis Seiler for producer Bryan Foy; "Chicago Syndicate," starring Abbe Lane, Xavier Cugat, and Dennis O'Keefe, Fred F. Sears directs for producer Sam Katzman; "Ten Wanted Men," Randolph Scott Technicolor starrer, directed by Bruce Humberstone for producer Harry Joe Brown; "Duel On The Mississippi," Technicolor drama starring Patricia Medina, under William Castle's direction for producer Sam Katzman; "The Gilded Rooster," starring Victor Mature, with William Fadiman producing; "Masterson Of Kansas"; "New Orleans Uncensored," starring Arthur Franz and Beverly Garland, with William Castle directing for producer Sam Katzman; "It Came From Beneath The Sea," science fiction thriller with Kenneth Tobey and Faith Domergue starring, Robert Gordon directed, and Charles Schnee produced; "Wyoming Renegades," Technicolor western starring Phil Carey, Gene Evans, and Martha Hyer, Fred F. Sears directed, and Wallace MacDonald produced; "Terror In The Night," produced and directed by Andrew Stone; "The Gun That Won The West," Technicolor Dennis Morgan starrer, with William Castle directing for producer Sam Katzman; and "Creature With The Atom Brain," science fiction drama starring Richard Denning, with Edward Cahn directing for producer Sam Katzman.

In other convention happenings, delegates honored 12 of their number for 25 years or more service. Suitably inscribed silver bowls were awarded those persons honored, division managers Sam Galanty, midwest; Bob Ingram, southeast; Harry Rogovin, New England; and Jack Underwood, southwest; branch managers Jimmy Beale, Portland; H. Duvall, New Orleans; Phil Fox, Cincinnati; Saul Trauner, New York; and L. N. Walton, Seattle; Harvey Harnick, sales manager, Columbia of Canada; and branch managers Dutch Levit, Montreal, and Abe Cass, Toronto.

A realignment of the home office executive sales staff was announced by Montague. Louis Astor, veteran circuit account executive, takes on added responsibilities; George Josephs, home office sales executive, has been appointed circuit account executive; Vincent Borelli, formerly assistant to the circuit account executives, has been promoted to a circuit account executive. In addition, Daniel Rothenberg and Milton Goodman have been elevated to the posts of assistants to

COMPO Issues Booklet On Anti-Tax Efforts

NEW YORK—In an effort to help theatre owners combat present or threatened state and local admission taxes, COMPO is distributing nearly 10,000 copies of a new booklet it has prepared entitled "Block That Tax!" Robert W. Coyne, special counsel, said the booklet is being sent to all members of state, Congressional, and local tax committees, to the members of the recently appointed state and regional press relations committees, and to all dues-paying COMPO members.

The booklet warns that new admission taxes may come from two sources, states and municipalities, and sets forth a detailed plan for combatting them at each level. It also submits facts and figures which local exhibitors may use to advantage before state or local taxing authorities.

The booklet makes it clear that unlike the federal tax campaign, the conception, organization and prosecution of a successful campaign against local taxes rest almost entirely upon the individual exhibitor.

About People

NEW YORK—C. S. Perkins, operating manager, Altec Service Corporation, announced last week the transfer of R. D. Fairbanks, veteran engineering specialist attached to the Boston office of Altec's northeastern division, to New York headquarters. Fairbanks will work in a special projects group headed by E. S. Seeley, chief engineer, Altec's engineering department. The nature of the work Fairbanks will perform at Altec's headquarters, according to Perkins, is highly restricted.

NEW YORK—Phil Reisman, president, Michael Todd Productions, last week accepted the chairmanship of the motion pictures committee of the New York Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation's $500,000 development fund drive for 1954-55. In announcing the acceptance, William M. Holmes, campaign chairman, said Reisman would direct the motion picture division, which has a goal of $40,000.

NEW YORK—Bernie Hickey was transferred last week to the home office of the Shea Circuit here. He will coordinate publicity, advertising, and exploitation between the distributors and theatres. Hickey is the former manager of Shea's Fulton Theatre in Pittsburgh. Frank King, field representative of the circuit, is now manager in Pittsburgh.

HOLLYWOOD—Hy Daab is the new public relations director for Hal Makelim enterprises. Daab will take charge of a global press campaign for the Makelim Plan, already widely backed by American exhibitors. He is the former advertising and publicity director for RKO, Columbia, and David Selznick.

KANSAS CITY—Richard P. Brous, former chief counsel, Fox Midwest Circuit, has been elected divisional president, replacing Elmer C. Rhoden, new president, National Theatres. Senn Lawler has been made division manager in charge of theatre operation, and Joe Redman is now in charge of advertising and publicity.

The Editor Speaks

NO USE TALKING—you just gotta hand it to a city in France called Paris for having the best press agent ever!

JUST LOOK at the scads of free publicity the motion picture industry has been bestowing this fair city. Currently we have "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "So This Is Paris," "April In Paris," and coming up is "On The Boulevard" and many others, all extolling the beauties and excitement of this belle of all cities.

PAUL MANNING

NEVER HAVING HAD the good fortune to be able to visit this garden spot of love, liberty, and the pursuit of love, all I can say is that the oodles of pictures, all in big screen and gorgeous color (my mouth is drooling!), doesn't make a typewriter look any sweeter.

SERIOUSLY, the film companies have found a great, new, photographic wealth in the rare beauties of many far away cities and lands. The human eye and mind, always eager to see and enjoy strange sights, regards the roving camera eye of present-day films as a magic door to unequalled visual excitement. Couple this usual quality with the vastly improved stories being filmed, and you have a solid future for our motion picture industry.

BUT STILL, I'd sure love to see gay Paree! Have tux and will travel. Any offers?

Meet Edmond Baumgarten

EDMOND BAUMGARTEN

EDMOND BAUMGARTEN, new president of Lippert Pictures, showed his sense of humor when Robert L. Lippert introduced him to the trade press as his successor.

"You know those big pictures now showing on TV? Well, I'm the one who foreclosed on them," were Baumgarten's opening words.

THE NEW PRESIDENT took over the office last month, with Lippert to remain in an advisory capacity while also supervising sales on "They Were So Young," "The Black Pirates," "A Race For Life" and other forthcoming product.

BAUMGARTEN is a native of Buffalo, where he spent eight years with the Buffalo Industrial Bank, starting as the last teller and finishing up as assistant to the president. He worked at every job in the bank, including advertising and public relations manager, and brought about such innovations as the nation's first drive-in bank, and the first financing of private airplane purchases, a program which was the backbone of the government's civilian pilot training in the East.

IN 1942, Baumgarten came to California for a vacation and decided to stay. To learn big business methods first-hand, instead of from a banking point of view, he joined the Douglas Aircraft Company, starting with a 65c-per-hour job and becoming assistant comptroller and coordinator of all payroll matters at a time when Douglas had 250,000 employees.

RETURNING to his former field, Baumgarten joined the Bank of America, and his cost accounting experience at Douglas qualified him as the first bank representative to unravel the "mystery" of cost reports on motion pictures.

THE AFORESAID FORECLOSURES were the least pleasant but most informative aspect of Baumgarten's tenure as an executive in the Bank of America motion picture department. In foreclosing, he had to learn everything about a picture because so many people are involved and, he says, "The post-mortem was invaluable training."

BAUMGARTEN RESIGNED from the bank to become Lippert's executive assistant in June, 1952.—P.M.

GOOD THINGS TO COME FROM HOLLYWOOD...

MGM's "The Last Time I Saw Paris"

Here is a show with what it takes to hit the jackpot! Brimming with humor and loaded with that necessary ingredient called drama, it all adds up to great big boxoffice.

Van Johnson, fresh from his triumph in "The Caine Mutiny," scores with this intelligent portrayal. This actor is fast developing into one of our best. The same can be said of Liz Taylor, his luscious leading lady. She rises above her breathtaking beauty, with a grand job of making her difficult role believable. Walter Pidgeon, Donna Reed, Eva Gabor, and moppet Sandy Descher round out the impeccable cast, each contributing excellent performances.

Producer Jack Cummings has given a handsome mounting to this drama in keeping with his usual pattern of making solid screen merchandise. With pictures like "The Stratton Story," "Three Little Words," "Kiss Me Kate," and the current surprise hit, "Seven Brides For Seven Brothers," all to his credit, Cummings can rest assured that the industry holds his production in high esteem. Director Richard Brooks, a fast rising young man in film-land, gives highly sensitive direction, and should, as a result, be seen in important directorial berths from here on.—P.M.

"Blackboard Jungle" Starts

HOLLYWOOD—With filming started on "The Blackboard Jungle" last week, six pictures are currently in production at MGM. Based on the widely discussed Evans Hunter novel about today's juvenile delinquency problem, "The Blackboard Jungle" has a cast headed by Glenn Ford, Anne Francis, Louis Calhern, Margaret Hayes, and Richard Kiley. The film is being directed by Richard Brooks, who also wrote the screen play, with Pandro S. Berman as producer. Brooks recently completed MGM's "The Last Time I Saw Paris."

"Jester" Shoots At Paramount

HOLLYWOOD—"The Court Jester," Danny Kaye's new picture for Paramount, went before the VistaVision cameras last week with several cast additions. Signed for key roles were Patrick Aherne, brother of Brian Aherne; Alan Napier, former Broadway actor; and Lewis Martin, a veteran of the stage and screen. Produced by Melvin Frank and Norman Panama under the Dena Production banner, "The Court Jester" co-stars with Kaye the British-born actresses, Angela Lansbury and Glynis Johns.

Rugged Site For Republic's "Timberjack"

Montana, the mountain state, breathtakingly scenic, offers a bold challenge to the hardy cast and crew intending to capture its beauty for the screen. These behind the scenes photographs represent a pictorial view of one of Hollywood's toughest locations.

FILMED in Trucolor by Consolidated, Republic's "Timberjack" qualifies as one of the quality productions of the current motion picture season.

Starring Vera Ralston, the roster of players in this top-budgeted drama of the vast northwest timberlands includes Sterling Hayden, David Brian, Adolphe Menjou, Hoagy Carmichael, and Chill Wills.

In order to achieve authenticity of background and the ultimate in pictorial beauty, President Herbert Yates' entire "Timberjack" company was transported in a fleet of chartered planes to Missoula, Mont., where the scenic splendor of this area was captured in Trucolor by cameraman Jack Marta.

The "Timberjack" company, composed of 125 people and 30 pieces of rolling equipment, constituted the largest location junket in Republic's history. Three weeks were spent shooting in a score of selected sites ranging from the Anaconda Copper Mining Company's camp near Missoula, to logging camps and mills in the Polson Lake area to isolated mountain forests, the latter made accessible only after a fleet of bulldozers had cut miles of roads through the wilderness. Each day the company had to arise at 4 a.m. to travel 130 miles to location sites.

The first storm of the season in western Montana isolated Republic's big company for two days while working in the dense mountain forests miles from the nearest highway. Food was parachuted to the company from helicopters by the famous

Under the personal supervision of Herbert J. Yates, left, Republic president, a scene of "Timberjack" is filmed in Trucolor amidst the rugged beauty of western Montana.

Montana "Smokejumpers." Yates, who personally supervised the extensive location, and Miss Ralston, with her co-stars, were brought out via a large amphibious jeep.

Hundreds of Montana's colorful timberjacks were used. These husky woodsmen engaged in a spectacular free-for-all brawl for the cameras with the movie timberjacks.

Prominent in the picture is a colorful oldtime Shay logging locomotive with flatcars brought to the Missoula location site from Cottonwood, 51 miles away on the old Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad line. It was loaned to Republic by the Anaconda Copper Company's lumber department, who had used it many years before the great modern locomotives took over hauling out the newly cut timber.

Prominent among the many spectacular scenes in "Timberjack" is one in which a giant log-jam is blown up. Taken at one end of beautiful Flathead Lake under special effects head, Howard Lydecker, scores of giant logs were suddenly blasted sky high out of the water in a roaring geyser.

School authorities declared a holiday for students at one time during shooting for the educational benefits they would derive from observing a large film company in action on location.

Republic spent months of research on the period treated in Dan Cushman's novel and Allen Rivkin's exciting and entertaining screen play.

The many gowns worn by Miss Ralston in the interiors were fashioned by Adele Palmer from originals loaned to Republic by descendants of the first owners. The dress suits worn by Hayden and Brian were also adapted from originals.

The music in "Timberjack" comes from the talented Carmichael, who composed five songs for the picture. The musical score was directed by Victor Young, who composed and directed the musical score for Republic's "The Quiet Man" and "Johnny Guitar."

At the directorial helm was associate producer-director Joe Kane.

Bonner, Mont., and the almost inaccessible mountain area nearby became a mecca for tourists, sightseers, and local citizens as the Republic troupe of 200 arrived on location. Starred are Sterling Hayden, Vera Ralston, David Brian, and Adolphe Menjou, seen brandishing a cane. Joe Kane, Republic associate producer, is directing the big-budget production.

Another star in the outdoor adventure is the Old Shay logging locomotive shown here with cast and crew aboard, including, left to right, Chill Wills, Menjou, Hayden, Miss Ralston, Hoagy Carmichael, Brian, and Howard Petrie. Cooperating are the Anaconda Copper Mining Company lumber department and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Pacific Railway.

Chatting on location are Yates and Hayden. The scene involved in their discussion was shot near Missoula, Mont., and overflow crowds were on hand to observe the thriller being made.

The going got considerably tougher as filming of the rugged drama of the Pacific Northwest timber land continued. Here, Republic's crew prepares for a scene in one of Montana's most picturesque locales. Some idea of the hazards involved in such arduous location filming can be derived from the fact that at one point the cast was stranded by a storm.

Seen left to right are Miss Ralston and Carmichael making Montana music via the tambourine; movie fans gathering from miles around to witness the filming and surrounding veteran soundman Roy Meadows, working without the sound proof privacy of a studio sound stage; Hayden devoting some time off to the acquisition of Montana sustenance; and a host of eager fans converging on Wills as he arrives for some early morning shooting.

Republic's contingent joins the locomotive crew and seen are Yates, decked out in the very latest engineer's cap; Jack Marta, cinematographer; Kane; and Kenny Halmes, unit manager, all obviously having a fine time. Real-life railroad men and lumberjacks were turned into actors for same of the action scenes, with the Hollywood version holding their own.

It was certainly not a case of all work and no play for the cast and crew, and after a hard day's shooting, Miss Ralston is amused by the antics of actors Elisha Cook, center, and Karl Davis, featured in the film. The rugged and realistic surroundings captured in Trucolor by Consolidated are expected to give the production added impetus at the boxoffice.

BETTER MANAGEMENT

*Valuable Exploitation Keys
To Profitable Merchandising*

Manager Don Haley, Paramount, Los Angeles, recently used these bally beauts as a roving billboard for United Artists' "Suddenly." The girls tied up traffic—what else? They marched downtown streets eight abreast. For benefit of rear viewers, the shapely octet carried pictures of star Frank Sinatra on their backs. On the right is seen another of Haley's stunts on the same picture—gag picketing, with a teen-age brigade staging mock protest over the crooner's sudden film switch to rugged drama portrayals. This and similar exploitation stunts helped the film attain top grosses.

IFE's "Aida" Benefits From Many Campaigns

NEW YORK—A large number of the nation's leading manufacturers and advertisers have joined forces with IFE to introduce America to S. Hurok's new color musical drama, "Aida," it was revealed last week by Jonas Rosenfield, Jr., vice-president in charge of advertising, publicity, and exploitation.

These manufacturers have created special merchandise, inspired by the personalities, colors, and period of "Aida," and will promote nationally and with special emphasis at point-of-sale and local theatre level. This important tieup and exploitation campaign, the most powerful in the history of IFE, was developed by Bernard Lewis, exploitation manager, and his staff.

The national advertising campaign will be launched in the December issue of Vogue with a special six page "Aida" section which will feature full page ads by Everfast Fabrics, Carolyn Schnurer, and Will Steinman as well as editorial comment on the merchandise and the picture.

Everfast has created new designs and colors based on the Egyptian theme in "Aida" which are incorporated into new cotton fabrics. Carolyn Schnurer has developed a line of daytime dresses, bathing suits, play-togs, cruise and resort wear utilizing the Everfast fabrics, with new styling inspired by the costuming in the picture. Will Steinman has utilized the "Aida" inspiration in creating a series of evening and cocktail dresses.

In addition, Valentina Dolls have made ballerina and dancing "Aida" dolls; Faberge has created a new romantic perfume, "Tigress Of The Nile"; Aronov of California will introduce a collection of "Aida" footwear; MacGregor has designed a line of men's sportswear utilizing "Scarab" prints inspired by the film; Swank Jewelry will introduce a new line of "Aida" inspired men's jewelry, utilizing ancient Egyptian designs and motifs; and most of the leading record companies will promote their "Aida" opera albums.

"Pagan" Manuals Distributed

NEW YORK—To provide exhibitors with important promotional material for the earliest possible start of their advance promotional campaigns on "Sign Of The Pagan," its CinemaScope and Technicolor film production, Universal-International last week started distribution of its special exhibitor manuals on the picture.

The manual contains more than 100 pages of television, radio, and merchandise promotions; school and organizational tieups; store and newspaper contests as well as comprehensive publicity material prepared for all sections of local and Sunday newspapers and television and radio outlets.

Cooperative local newspaper ads with department stores will be used extensively and local contests and exploitation campaigns are being planned to coincide with playdates.

It is the object of the IFE exploitation department to develop these tieups into effective ticket-selling tools for exhibitors by supplying both the manufacturers and exhibitors with necessary information and material.

"Aida," said to be the only toe-dancing ballerina doll, made an effective window tie-up in Gimbel's department store in New York City for IFE's "Aida," first film sponsored by famed impresario Sol Hurok, currently at Little Carnegie.

U-I's "Paris" Gets Decca Record Tieup

NEW YORK—Universal-International and Decca Records are joining promotional forces again for the promotion of the sound track album of "So This Is Paris," the music from the U-I Technicolor film production, it was announced last week.

The pattern of the promotional campaign is expected to follow that of "The Glenn Miller Story," one of the most successful albums in Decca's history and the biggest grossing film in the history of U-I.

Special window streamers, counter cards, color stills and theatre displays are being prepared and a special advertising campaign and a national promotional launching of the album are being planned. The picture will be screened for record dealers in key cities and important disc jockey promotions are being set.

The album will have eight of the picture's songs sung by Curtis, Miss DeHaven, Nelson, and Gilbert. The album features the Universal-International Orchestra and Chorus under the direction of Joseph Gershenson.

In addition, Miss DeHaven has recorded the title song from the picture and the song "The Two Of Us" for Decca, with the record being issued separately but being tied in with the promotional campaign on the sound track album.

Cab Cards Boost "Desiree"

NEW YORK—The entire fleet of the Terminal Taxi Cab Corporation, numbering over 600 cars, are carrying special stickers announcing the Command Performance engagement of 20th-Fox's "Desiree" at the Roxy.

The two-color cards, which tie in the film's March of Dimes benefit opening, will continue in view through the showcase engagement.

Drivers also are recommending "Desiree" to their many customers, adding up to a large word-of-mouth campaign.

New Variety Chapter Meets

NEW ORLEANS — The first general business meeting of Variety Club of New Orleans, Tent 45, was held at Arnaud's Restaurant, with 90 barkers present and the three honor members, Reverend Father Murphy, Rabbi Leo Bergman, and Reverend Sherwood Clayton.

Chief Barker and chairman Page M. Baker presided and opened the meeting with a welcome address. He explained the aims, purpose, and ideals of Variety. The main purpose, he said was to help those less fortunate than ourselves, especially handicapped children. The local creed that could be adopted, as he personally perceives it, is "Do good unto others, and have fun while doing it."

Baker then outlined the history behind the development and growth of Variety Club of New Orleans from the time the first spark was kindled 15 years ago, through the tireless efforts of 25 men keeping the idea alive, up to June 1 when a meeting was called mainly for the purpose of deciding whether or not to abandon the hopes of Variety formation in New Orleans. With the determination and resolution of all present at this June meeting, and with the assistance and advice of international representatives William McCraw and Jack Dumestre, the long desired Variety Club was finally and definitely started.

The temporary board selected at the June meeting includes Page M. Baker, Joel Bluestone, J. L. Boyer, D. M. Brandon, William Briant, Harold Cohen, Ike Katz was in from Atlanta to confer with Matt Freed, Hallmark, in to set "Karamoja" and "Half-Way To Hell," which Kay has taken over for distribution.

Billy Fox, Johnson, improved the Fox Drive-In, Alexandria, La., to the tune of $30,000.

Leon Rountree, Holly, Holly Springs, Miss., is a live-wire exhibitor who does not let his boxoffice lag. He recently ran Allied Artists' "Riot In Cell Block II" and erected a complete false front as shown. To make everything as authentic as possible, local police rode around the square at nine o'clock each night with sirens blowing and pulled up in front of the theatre grabbing two "convicts" who were in front passing out heralds and hauled them off to the pokey with another blast of siren blowing.

William Holiday, Carl Mabry, Ernest MacKenna, L. C. Montgomery, and Henry Plitt, and the officers, Baker, chief barker; Cohen, assistant chief barker; Briant, second assistant chief barker; Brandon, property master; and Plitt, dough guy, were unanimously re-elected to serve during the 1955 period. Others who have done untiring work in different endeavors given assignments are Don Stafford, Jimmie Howell, Arthur Schwartz, William Cobb, Eldon Briwa, and Teddy Solomon.

Holiday, in the absence of Cohen, gave a report on the heart committee. The letter authored by Cohen announced that a charity for temporary purposes only had been selected and was one of showing movies to as many shut-ins as possible, regardless of race, creed, or color. It has proven a most beneficial charity endeavor along with a permanent charity which is under consideration, with the guidance of doctors, welfare workers and, particularly, chaplains.

Briwa, chairman of the membership committee, announced that the club presently consists of 159 regular members, one associate member, Eugene Lillis, Sr., and the three honorary members who are club chaplains, with the expectation that the membership will more than double as soon as a general membership drive will get underway.

Briant, chairman, house and rules committee, announced that temporary quarters have been set up at Room 401 in the Warwick Apartment Building, until permanent quarters suitable for all can be procured.

The two delegates elected to the international winter quarters are Baker and Mabry. Alternate delegates also unanimously elected are William Cobb and Milton Guidry.

Thanks, Mrs. Leona Schmitt, member of WOMPI, joining the large family of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR readers. . . . The Grand, Stonewall, Miss., is now operating on Fridays and Saturdays only, advised coowner M. A. "Max" Connett, however, the Ritz, Enterprise, Miss., a few miles up the country road, will continue to operate on a full week schedule. Interested with Connett is Cleo Boutwell.

The Palace, New Iberia, La., will close on Dec. 5. . . . Mrs. A. M. Randall notified Transway, Inc., that because of the illness of her husband they have suspended all operations at the Fern, Centerville, Miss., until further notice.

Milton London's Midtown was a $320 loser to gunmen. . . . Paul Field leaves the manager's office of the Alhambra to open a production office. . . . David Korman incorporated the Gem. . . . Larry Leins, former Cinema manager, moved over to the newly reopened Sterling Time art house.

Indianapolis

MGM held its second Ticket Selling Workshop at Marott Hotel. Mike Simons, in charge of customer relations, was chief speaker and moderator. Emery Austin, exploitation head, discussed the 33 services Howard Dietz's department makes available to theatre owners for the promotion of MGM pictures. John J. Maloney, MGM central sales manager, opened the gathering, the exchange coming under his supervision. Foster B. Gauker, resident manager; Val Klaiber, Dewey Taute, and O. L. Prescott, salesmen, worked with Maloney and were on hand to personally greet theatre owners and representatives of allied interests from the area. Austin was assisted by E. C. Pearson, press division head, and Jerome Allan, local press representative. Pearson also attended the opening forum in Pittsburgh. Ervin J. Clumb, managing director, Riverside, Milwaukee, representing large theatres; L. J. "Bill" Williams, successful operator of theatres in such small towns as Union, Hermann, and Owensville, Mo.; and Wayne Botkin, retail advertising manager, The Muncie, Ind., Evening Press, made up a showmanship panel. All major circuit heads in the territory were represented. The workshop was an integral part of three days of exhibitor activities in the Indiana capital. The board of directors of Allied Theatre Owners of Indiana met in executive session before the workshop and the general business meeting of the Indiana membership followed. President Roy Kalver and executive chairman Bill Carroll, the latter in charge of the Indianapolis office of the exhibitor organization, are the first such body to request a workshop in conjunction with its annual convention.

Pittsburgh

Dick Shawn, comedy star, headlined the show for the Variety Club banquet at the William Penn Hotel. Walt Framer, producer of "Strike It Rich," a native Pittsburgher and a barker of Tent 1, will be presented with a plaque naming him "Mr. Television of the Year."

Louis and Maury Sher, operators, Bexley Art, are planning to open an art house in Shaker Heights, Cleveland suburb.

C. Harry Schreiber, manager, RKO Palace, arranged with The Ohio State Journal for the selection of the Franklin County High School "Queen of Queens" on the Palace stage.

George Pekras, manager, Ritz and Rivoli, West Side neighborhood houses, announced installation of CinemaScope in both theatres.

Additional speaking dates lined up by Robert Wile, secretary, Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, include—Nov. 23—Lions Club of Seville and Feb. 1—Lions Club of Beaver. The date for his speech before the Lions Club of West Lafayette has been changed to date of Dec. 22.

The three per cent city amusement taxes have been repealed at Hillsboro, O., and St. Mary's, O. Robert Wile, noting the St. Mary's repeal, said that "We find city councils amenable to many of the arguments we present against this tax. Now is budget time for many cities and now is the time to make a determined effort to kill this tax. If it is omitted from the budget, it is more easily killed. Once it's in the budget, it's a little harder."

Toll television is a great menace to the exhibitor, said Robert Wile, secretary, Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, in his most recent bulletin to the trade.

In a bulletin issued by the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio it was said in connection with "A Star Is Born" that "quoted prices are fantastic; but there is another quirk in this one that might be precedent setting. Originally in the first-run houses throughout the state, the picture ran three hours and two minutes. About 27 minutes have been cut from the picture as it will be released to subsequent runs. This sets a dangerous precedent. One of the things that the sub-runs have always been able to say truthfully is that the pictures are shown exactly as they were originally. If the public learns that a picture is cut after it has been shown in first-runs, this will set the stage for other companies to do the same thing and will seriously hurt sub-run business. Regardless of what 'A Star Is Born' is worth in its original form, it is worth nothing to a sub-run theatre after it has been cut. The sub-run would be better off to advertise that it is not showing the picture because it has been cut. The least Warners can do is to offer the picture in both its original or cut versions so that the exhibitor may make his own choice." Other items covered in the bulletin are local taxes; toll TV; and a jibe at Columbia's title "Phfft," of which Bob Wile, ITOO executive secretary comments, "It's going to cause a lot of trouble when it plays theatres. What is the person answering the phone going to say when a patron inquires, "What's playing tonight?"

A galaxy of Hollywood stars, leading newspaper columnists, and scores of state and local civic, business and social personages filled the Fox to capacity for the world premiere of 20th-Fox's "Desiree." It was a benefit performance with all proceeds going to the San Francisco Newspaper Guild. Governor Goodwin J. Knight and Mayor Elmer Robinson headed a delegation of civic officials, while stars on hand included Debra Paget, Sheree North, Tommy Noonan, and Rita Moreno. Newspaper people in attendance were Louella Parsons, Erskine Johnson, Harrison Carroll, Earl Wilson, Emily Belser, and Bob Thomas as well as columnist Sheila Graham, who interviewed personalities on a 30-minute show over Station KPIX-TV.

Five projectionists told a State Senate Labor Committee that they have been excluded from union membership and rights for as long as 16 years, although the union had levied assessments and taken a percentage of their earnings. They testified they had been denied vacations and desirable jobs. They spoke of the process by which one can become a member of Local 162, AFL International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees. The hearing was before a committee headed by Senator F. Presley Abshire. Mathew O. Tobringer, attorney for the union, told Senator Presley the answer to the charges will be presented at a committee hearing scheduled in Los Angeles. The committee is looking into grievances filed by union members against their officials. One witness said he had worked as a projectionist here since 1937 and that he had made several attempts to join Local 162, but was always ignored and rejected. He said he became a member of Local B18 of the ushers, doormen, and cashiers international and worked as a projectionist within the jurisdiction of Local 162. He said he is now paying Local 162 three per cent of his gross earnings, and he pays dues to Local B18 also. He stated he had no seniority or voting rights in 162. The same story involved an Oakland, Cal., union, Local 169.

The Neptune, Evergreen's popular university district house, marked its 33rd year. It was opened in 1921 as the University Neptune, and for a brief period in 1927 its name was changed to the Liberty. The house is in the midst of a remodeling program which includes the installation of CinemaScope and stereophonic sound, plus reseating of the main floor with over 600 new seats. . . . Film Row visitors included Vance Weskil; George Blair, Island, Vashon, Wash., and Kitsap, Kitsap, Wash.; Harry Wall, Lewiston, Wash.; Ernie Thompson, Uptown, Port Townsend, Wash.; and Mr. and Mrs. Milburn Kenworthy, Moscow, Idaho.

The City Council License Committee warned F. M. Henry, owner, Grand, that fire-safety requirements of the Fire and Building Departments must be met if the 37-year-old house is to continue operating. The theatre, in an area annexed to the city, shares a common wall with an adjoining apartment house. Henry and his attorney, J. Lael Simmons, met with the committee to review the problems involved in reconditioning the theatre, housed in a frame building. Simmons pointed out that Henry will face a heavy financial obligation if he is forced to install a fire-division wall between the theatre and the adjoining building. The departments also have taken exception to other conditions, including an unplastered basement. Henry contended that there were no fire hazards in his building and said his theatre is not the only one in Seattle housed in a frame building. Fire Marshal Robert Laing declared that the theatre was not safe and could not be recommended for a license until the corrections were made.

Over 60 persons attended the annual meeting of Theatre Owners of Washington, Northern Idaho, and Alaska at the New Washington Hotel. Following the noon luncheon a business meeting included the election of officers and a report on the recent TOA convention by Joe Rosenfield, the association's representative. Another speaker was Fred Schwartz, from New York, who is with Century Theatres and also heads Distributors Corporation of America.

Hal R. Makelim, prior to his flying to Charlotte, reported that he was enthused over the Alliance Circuit, latest to subscribe to his plan of independent production in the Pacific Northwest area.

Boston Trade
Fetes 10 Men

BOSTON—There was a spirit of good fellowship and jovial humor in the crowded main ballroom at the Hotel Bradford when more than 300 members of the industry turned out to honor 10 exchange personnel who have been promoted or transferred this year.

The affair, sponsored by the Variety Club of New England, was called "New Faces In New Positions" and was humorously referred to by toastmaster Arthur Lockwood as "New Faces Of 1864." The honored guests all sat modestly at one side of the head table while the brief histories of their success stories were being related by the toastmaster, while officers of the club and the other speakers were seated on the other side of the toastmaster.

Samuel Pinanski drew a laugh when he rose to speak. Turning to the honored guests, he said, "Here we are paying our respects to you men who take our money away from us, but we love you all just the same."

Benn Rosenwald, MGM resident manager, was the general chairman of the occasion, who, with his committee, selected Arthur Lockwood, the "deadpan silver-tongued orator," as toastmaster.

Nine of the 10 exchange men were at the head table. William Madden, former MGM salesman here and recently promoted to branch manager in the Philadelphia office, was unable to be present.

Those honored were John Moore and Jack Brown, Paramount; James Connolly and John Feloney, 20th-Fox; Judson Parker, Republic; Herbert Schaefer, Buena Vista; Francis Dervin, RKO; Joseph Gins, U-I; and Ralph Iannuzzi, Warners, all of whom received gifts.

Also at the head table were Kenneth Douglass and James Marshall, officers of the club; Theodore Fleisher, 1954 chairman, Jimmy Fund; Martin J. Mullin, first honorary trustee, Children's Cancer Research Foundation; and Pinanski.

Snapped at the recent "New Faces In New Positions" luncheon sponsored by the Variety Club of New England at the Hotel Bradford, Boston, are nine of the 10 men who have been honored by promotions in the various exchanges during the past year. William Madden, now MGM branch manager in Philadelphia, was unable to be present. Seated, left to right, are John Moore, Paramount; Ralph Iannuzzi, Warners; Joseph Gins, U-I; James Connolly, 20th-Fox; and standing, Jack Brown, Paramount; Judson Parker, Republic; Francis Dervin, RKO; Herbert Schaefer, Buena Vista; and John Feloney, 20th-Fox.

In saying a few words to the gathering, Fleisher thanked the group for the wonderful results of the "Jimmy Fund" drive this year. "I'm happy to have so many of you hard-working exhibitors together in one spot to be able to thank you personally," he said. "Theatre collections in general were ahead of last year despite the two hurricanes. I am urging you all to send in your last collections so that we may total the amount and announce the figures."

Mullin spoke briefly. "This industry of ours is a grass roots business right down to the smallest theatre operator." Turning to the honored guests, he said, "Boys, you will continue to have the wholehearted support of New England Theatres, and we all wish you well."

Pinanski struck a serious note when he made an appeal for more product. "Everyone recognizes the fact that never before in history has the production end of our business been so prosperous. We all hope it continues to flourish so that the same high caliber of pictures will be produced. But, despite the excellent pictures that are being made today, there are not enough of them and in between the top product, we exhibitors are starving. We must have more pictures to fill in during the lean periods when the top product is not available to us. At the recent TOA meeting, we endorsed plans for more independent producers' product for a greater flow of worthwhile films. No exhibitor can exist on the 'high peak' product. We need 'in between' pictures to help our business."

James M. Connolly, northeastern division manager, 20th-Fox, was selected to accept the presentations for the 10 honored guests. This he did in his gracious way, when he said, "It is on a day like this that we like to think of our old friends who gave us a lift as we came up the ladder of success. In addition to our home offices and our own colleagues, we have you exhibitors to thank for our promotions, a fact we have never lost sight of. In saying this, I am speaking for all of us being honored today."

A pleasant interlude during the luncheon was the appearance of seven-year-old Phil Phillips, a youngster with much singing talent, who has done work for the "Jimmy Fund." He sang songs and did imitations of famous song stylists in a delightful way. A protege of Ted Williams, he has recently signed to appear in a film in Hollywood.

At the luncheon's end, it was generally conceded that this affair was one of the finest staged in this city. One exhibitor, a small town operator who has been known to have had difficulty in buying his product at the price he felt was right, said on the way out, "If we had two or three of these gatherings a year, it would do more to cement distributor-exhibitor relationships than any other method I can think of." With that, he walked out of the hotel with his arm around a salesman. The meeting brought out not only exhibitors and distributors, but equipment men, field men, salesmen, projectionists, and theatre managers, all entering into the high spirit of the occasion. Some upstate and out-of-town exhibitors were present who hadn't been in the district for years.

Joe Carrolo, veteran exhibitor from Oakland Beach, R. I., was greeted enthusiastically, while many newcomers to the field, particularly drive-in owners, were introduced informally to exhibitor bigwigs. All the major circuits were well represented from the presidents and district managers down to the assistant managers.

The hard-working committee of Benn Rosenwald, assisted by Bill Koster, executive director, Variety Club of New England, and Arnold Van Leer, Paramount publicist, deserve special commendation for a job well done. The spirit of the occasion will linger long in the memories of those present.

Connecticut Hartford

The Connecticut industry was shocked to hear of the death of James F. (Jim) McCarthy, 55, Connecticut district manager, Stanley-Warner Theatres, at Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston. A bachelor, he leaves his mother and several sisters. Funeral services were held in Bridgeport, Conn.

"A Salute to Irving Berlin" was the title of Ray McNamara's "White Christmas" campaign at the Allyn. McNamara tied-up with two radio stations, offering Decca albums, promoted from a local music concern, for writers of longest lists of Berlin tunes. He also gave passes to winners. Film music was used during intermission and at close of shows for weeks ahead of play-date. Several women's specialty shops carried window displays.

Connecticut premiere of Columbia's "The Black Knight" at E. M. Loew's was given extensive street ballyhoo, arranged by George E. Landers, Hartford division manager. Landers dressed an aide in long, flowing cape, topped by helmet, and sent him, on horse-back, through the downtown area.

Charles Lane, North Haven Drive-In, has announced plans for a new outdoor venture at Branford, Conn., while P. J. DeFazio plans to build a drive-in at Southington, Conn. Both towns at present have no drive-in facilities.

Fred R. Greenway, Loew's Poli Palace, planted a special art layout on "Brigadoon" in The Hartford Times. In addition, he arranged a number of downtown store windows.

Al Lessow, now assistant to Matt Saunders, Loew's Poli, Bridgeport, Conn., was in town. He formerly aided Fred R. Greenway here. . . . George E. Landers, E. M. Loew's Theatres, tripped to Springfield, Mass., Worcester, Mass., and Boston on circuit business.

Derby Drive-In, Inc., New Haven, filed a certificate of incorporation with the Secretary of State at State Capitol here, listing starting capital of $50,000; incorporators, Henry Davidson, Lew Nadell, Harry S. Nadell, all of New Haven.

Harry Furst, former manager, Plaza, Stamford, Conn., was honored at a party hosted by Connecticut friends at the home of Dr. Yale Fodiman, Stamford.

Jack Sanson, Stanley Warner Strand, tripped to Boston to visit hospitalized J. F. McCarthy, Connecticut district manager for the circuit, who died later.

Mr. and Mrs. Ozzie Levinson, West Hartford, Conn., are honeymooning in Bermuda. Bride is the former Adele Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sal Adorno, Sr., head, M and D Theatres, was honored by Forest City Knights of Columbus.

Newington

The Pike Drive-In dropped Monday and Tuesday performances for the remainder of the season.

South Windsor

The East Hartford Family Drive-In dropped Monday through Thursday performances.

Torrington

Phil Allare, ex-manager, Palace, joined Stanley Warner as assistant manager, Strand, Hartford, replacing Bill Kaplan.

The Lockwood and Gordon Sky-Vue Drive-In closed for the season.

Waterbury

Despite protests from two community groups and over 80 individuals, "The French Line" continued its run at the Hamilton in the East End for its scheduled four days. Edward Miller, manager, refused to halt the showing despite pressure brought to bear upon him which reached first page news columns of The Waterbury American. Miller said the theatre faces possible boycott of subsequent film fare if those protesting carry out their threats.

Massachusetts Greenfield

A 50 per cent interest in the Lawler estate, which includes the Lawler and adjoining properties here and the Amherst, Amherst, Mass., was acquired by Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., it was announced by Samuel Goldstein, president of the circuit. Goldstein said that prospects as to future use of the theatre buildings were as yet "indefinite," pointing out that the Shea Theatre Corporation has leases on both buildings until next July 1. The properties' value today is estimated at approximately $500,000. Still holding shares in the

Springfield

The quiet and normally sedate college community of Amherst, Mass., was jolted by a storm in a smorgasbord over the proposed showing of the Swedish "One Summer of Happiness." The squall had the town's 9,000 inhabitants by the ears while it lasted. The board of selectmen held a special meeting to consider the situation, with Town Manager Allen Torrey observing "the fact that no one taking part in the protest movement seems to have actually seen in the picture, complicates the situation somewhat." Torrey said the proposed ban was the first action of its kind ever taken in that community, while William Kibrige, Amherst house manager, observed, "The picture will play. It will be seen by many, and two days later it, and the controversy attending it, will be forgotten."

A snake dance, started in the spirit of exuberance by about 150 teen-agers attending a convention of the Order of DeMolay, took an unexpected and disconcerting turn when the celebrants left the sidewalk and kept their Conga line going right into the Arcade during a performance. The manager hustled to the phone and 10 police cruisers rushed to the scene, where about a dozen dancers were rounded up and taken to headquarters in the first disturbance of its kind here in a long time. No physical damage was reported by the Arcade, which was only recently leased to Israel Hoffman, New Haven, by Nathan Goldstein, Inc., owner, but the house was empty in a matter of minutes, with a good many patrons demanding their money back. Local officials classed the incident as a youthful prank, and the house management said it would press no charge.

Majors-Fox Percentage Case Subject of Court Orders

PHILADELPHIA—Several orders were made last week by U. S. District Court Judge John W. Lord, Jr., in connection with the pending major distributors' suit against Melvin J. Fox.

The motion of 20th Century-Fox was granted, and the defendants were ordered to produce for inspection and copying or photographing certain books, accounts, records, and other documents.

The plaintiffs shall produce for inspection by defendant Fox all checkers' reports of admissions for the period Jan. 1, 1950, to date at the Fox and High, Burlington, N. J.; Burlington Drive-In, Burlington, N. J.; Wildwood Drive-In, Wildwood, N. J.; Criterion, Moorestown, N. J.; Fox and Mt. Holly, Mt. Holly, N. J.; Fox Riverside, Riverside, N. J. Roxy, Maple Shade, N. J.; Delsea Drive-In, Vineland, N. J.; and the Mayfair and Hollywood, Philadelphia.

A motion of Fox's to strike an affidavit of Arnold Nemiroff in Warner Brothers Pictures Distributing Corporation portion of the case was denied.

Also, defendant Fox's motion to dismiss in connection with Warners was denied, without prejudice, to renew the motion after discovery proceedings have been completed.

Salesman Stan Taylor enjoyed his first trip to the Eastern Shore.

Reading

Appeals from new 1955 assessments on theatre properties have been filed by owners, hearings now taking place at City Hall. They include: Schad Theatres, Inc., Astor, assessment, $381,000; and Warner Theatres, Warner, assessment, $230,000. Other theatre assessment appeals are expected to be filed.

Myerstown, Pa., in adjoining Lebanon County, approved a proposal to legalize football and baseball games on Sunday afternoons and evenings by a vote of 608 to 396. Observers see in the vote the approval of Sunday movies in the big borough the next time this issue comes up on a ballot for a citizens' decision.

Loew's assistant manager Ken Steckline spent a vacation at home.

David R. Jones, manager, Lemoyne, Pa., has purchased a new home in Cumberland Park, near Camp

Mary Garden, one of the most celebrated "Carmens" in the 70-year history of the Metropolitan Opera Association, recently visited Monty Salmon, managing director, Rivoli, New York City, and witnessed the 20th-Fox CinemaScope version of "Carmen Jones." She said the film "brought out the music of Bizet more wonderfully than the opera" and that "the entire production was exquisite."

Dick Powell, producer-director, RKO's "The Conqueror," recently arrived in New York for a series of interviews on the CinemaScope color epic, which marks his debut as a producer, although he has directed before.

Hill. . . Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Goldstein, owners, Paxtang, were recent visitors in Atlantic City, N. J., a combination business and pleasure trip.

Herman Levine, representing the interests leasing the Stanley Warner properties at 751-757 Penn Street, told an assessment appeal board that the $230,000 realty assessment is far too high. Citing the slump in real estate values in the past two years, Levine said that rental income is not normal and also that the revenue from theatre operations is below that of previous years.

A number of theatres will schedule midnight shows on Thanksgiving eve or on the night of the holiday.

Virginia Richmond

Leonard Gordon, president, Virginia Motion Picture Theatre Association, announced that the one-day exhibitors meeting originally planned for Dec. 8 had been cancelled. To replace this, in an effort to bring every possible Virginia exhibitor into the discussions of conditions and practices now existing in the industry, four meetings will be held throughout the state. The first of these was at the Hague Club, Norfolk on Nov. 23, with Sidney Bowden, Norfolk, as chairman. Other meetings will be held at the George Wythe Hotel, Wytheville, at noon on Nov. 30, with John Lester, Wytheville, as chairman; Natural Bridge Hotel, at noon on Dec. 1, with Charles Grimes, Washington, D. C., as chairman; and Jefferson Hotel, here, at noon on Dec. 2, with Sy Hoffman, Richmond, chairman. Both Gordon and Carlton Duffus, executive secretary of the association, will attend all of the regional meetings.

Variety Club Tent 13, Philadelphia

The Tent's headquarters in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel are now recognized as the most beautiful, not only of all the Variety Clubs in America, but of all the clubs in Philadelphia. An expenditure of over $18,000 made it possible, and it is expected that there will be $3,000 in addition spent for "extras".

DEAR M-G-M
I WANT IT FOR CHRISTMAS-
NEW YEARS!
-JOE EXHIBITOR

"DEEP IN MY HEART" had its first public preview in New York this week at Loew's Lexington. Wow! is the word for it!

East or West, the public loves it. In Los Angeles the Preview response cards, for the first time on record, were "100% Recommended"! And in New York it was equally sensational. They applauded during the picture, they acclaimed it at the end. When they do that, you know you've got an attraction!

M-G-M has delivered many important money hits to theatres at holiday time in past years, but never have we offered an entertainment so perfectly suited for Christmas-New Years presentation!

Aptly called "The Musical With A Heart," it is a beautiful love story that follows a celebrated composer's career along the rocky road to fame. You will truly bring Santa Claus to your patrons when you play "DEEP IN MY HEART," the Big Holiday Attraction, spangled with stars and song hits, spectacle—all in glorious color!

UNEASY LIES THE HEAD

WE SOMETIMES WONDER how happy or pleased with himself a sales manager or top distribution executive can be, when, after snapping off the light and settling down to sleep, the thoughts of a busy day race through his head?

What of that picture on which I got $10,000 front money because I knew it was the only one available and the theatremen couldn't afford to close down? A full week's gross of less than $7,500 was pretty lousy, wasn't it? That guy is really hurt! But he did it with his eyes open. He didn't have to buy my picture. Or, did he?

What about that other guy when I moved down his split figure to $500 because his joint hasn't been grossing like it used to, so we aren't getting the same return. He can't even get his overhead down that low, and I know it. But, what the h---, that's his problem. Or, is it?

What about Joe and his three little key spots back home? Before I got this top spot, he and I worked out many a deal, and they were fair ones, too. But, now that I'm in New York and he's out there, it is easy to reject the very same deals and send the branch back after ones that I couldn't ask to his face. Joe is smart. He'll make out. Or, will he?

What about those verbal negotiations that I have ordered to insure admission increases on our current hit? That's price fixing and our lawyers wouldn't like it. But that picture cost a lot of dough and higher admissions are the easiest way to get it back. Theatremen don't need you to draw pictures. They'll soon know that even a bid, if it doesn't carry a promise of increased admissions, won't be accepted. And those birds of mine ought to have sense enough to handle it neat. But, will they?

Gees! I wish I could get to sleep!

Of course, if the Department of Justice ever looks across the U. S. and finds that everyone who plays our hit is charging $1.50 they'll think they have a case and will come sniffing around. I'll have to remember to spot around a few cheaper deals. Anyway, that's the lawyer's problem. Or, is it?

Where was it I read that Thurman Arnold, or somebody, suggested a prison term instead of fines for anti-trust violations? Oh, well, that's one that would be fought through all the courts until I have whiskers; and if I did lose I'd be so old that Leavenworth would feel like a nice rest. Or, would it?

I'll have to tell the guys to be short of prints whenever a theatre bucks on that admission increase. That's one that will be harder to prove. Or, will it?

And so on, into the night!

Now, we don't say there aren't some general sales managers who drop a tired but carefree head on their pillow. Some do a good smart day's work, of longer and more concentrated hours than the average theatre executive. Some follow a code of honesty and morality that is beyond reproach. And some others are so calloused, and their hides are so tough from the climb up the ladder of success, that they have hardening of the spiritual arteries and are oblivious to understanding or sympathy. But it mightn't be a bad idea for the average sales executive to take a good look at himself in the mirror of his own mind. After all, there are more than 6,000 of their former customer theatres now closed.

Has competition between distributors robbed him of his inherent sense of values? Has the need to grab the top buck made him adopt policies that are unfair to his exhibition customers to the point of bringing them to the verge of ruin? Has he been responsible for any of the seething unrest that is forcing exhibitors, large and small, and however unwillingly, to cry for "Cop!"?

To those who can answer negatively, rest easy, my friends! To those who cannot, yours must be the realization that much of your unease can be charged to no one but yourselves.

THAT "LILI" IS A LADY

NEVER IN OUR MEMORY has any motion picture stayed in one theatre for one continuous first run of 90 weeks. "Lili," the MGM picture starring Leslie Caron, the little French dancer turned dramatic actress, has just done that in New York City where it has kept the turnstiles of the Trans Lux 52nd Street clicking for nearly two years.

Of course, this will prove no surprise to many theatremen who have found "Lili" to be a doll that could be brought back four and five times after its original play. But it is too important a record, for a grand little picture, to be overlooked.

being used by producer-director Stanley Kramer in his film version of the best seller, "Not As A Stranger," received from medical supply houses all over the country. Included are the latest gismos, doodahs and septa-fortis. Anyhow guards have been posted night and day on the set because loss would mean additional expense plus a delay in re-ordering. Must be a lot of unscrupulous doctors around Hollywood these days. Oxygen, anyone???

PREMIERES: Two sock openings recently on the Gay White Way. "Desiree" at the Roxy was veddy social, lots of celebs, plenty of lights, photographers' flashes, TV, radio, newsreels on hand, heralds in knee britches, Cadillacs mixed with gilded coaches, crowds, noise, lots of glamour. Wowee. . . . The other, "The Last Time I Saw Paris," at the Capitol the next night. Lots of stars, society, leaders of stage, screen, and radio, good press coverage. The Paris motif prevailed with gendarmes at the doors, a French cafe set in the lobby, Odette singing ze songs in French in ze lobby. Sacre Bleu and oo-la-la.

LUNCHEON NOTE: Richard Burton, fine actor and star of "Prince Of Players," currently in town to promote that film as well as "Desiree," was guest of honor at a luncheon at the Plaza, attended by trade press representatives and fan magazine people. Burton, who has a seven-year contract with 20th-Fox to do one film annually, admitted that he has still to see "The Robe."

Brandt Assails Policies Of National Allied's Myers

NEW YORK—Harry Brandt, president, Independent Theatre Owners Association of New York, last week charged that Abram F. Myers, counsel and board chairman, National Allied Theatre Owners, is to be blamed more than any other individual for the elimination of block booking, divorcement, competitive bidding, lack of arbitration, and threat of Government regulation.

Brandt questioned how much these have contributed to the welfare of the independent exhibitor, adding, "The unalterable fact remains that the fruits of Myers' efforts have been a distinct disservice to independent exhibition."

These remarks were addressed to Ben Marcus, Allied president, who had previously said that Myers "has contributed more than any other individual during the past 25 years to the welfare of the independent exhibitor and the industry as a whole."

Brandt concluded by saying to Marcus that "surely it is time for the responsible elements to sit down around the table and work out their differences in a spirit of mutual understanding," something which, according to the ITOA head, "has not yet been done because of stumbling road-blocks."

The proposal to call a meeting of company heads, sales managers, and exhibitor leaders made recently by Al Lichtman, 20th-Fox director of distribution, at the recent meeting of the board and executive committee of COMPO, was hailed by Brandt.

NT Executives Meet For West Coast Talks

LOS ANGELES—With emphasis on showmanship keynoting the theme, a three-day divisional conference of National Theatres, Inc., presided over by Elmer C. Rhoden, newly-elected president, began at NT's home offices.

Every division will be represented. Top-pers from Los Angeles include John B. Bertero, newly-elected president, Fox West Coast Theatres; Edwin F. Zabel, FWC general manager; and Alan May, NT treasurer. From out of town will be Frank H. Ricketson, Jr., Denver, president, Fox Intermountain Theatres, and Richard P. Brous, Kansas City, newly-named president, Fox Midwest Theatres.

Also attending are theatre operating executives M. Spencer Leve, Los Angeles; James Runte, San Francisco; William Thedford, Portland; Senn Lawler, Kansas City; Robert W. Selig, Denver; Gordon Hewitt, Milwaukee; Dave Idzal, Detroit; William Moclair, New York; and Harold Seidenberg, Philadelphia.

Dedicated to an analysis and round table discussion on "new, more and better showmanship techniques," the agenda deals with forthcoming product, money-making bookings, theatre TV, etc.

Barnett Urges Support Of Boxoffice TV

Tells Florida TOA Unit To Secure Franchises; Exhibitors Ask Formation Of Research Institute

JACKSONVILLE—"Exhibitors should embrace rather than resist subscription television" was the advice given by Herbert Barnett, president of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers, to the delegates at the annual convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors of Florida last week.

Noting that pay-as-you-see TV may soon be available to the public, Barnett urged that instead of waiting to discover the competitive effect of this on the theatre, exhibitors should play an active part in providing this service. "It may be wise for theatre owners to secure local franchises for distributing such programs," he told the convention.

"One of the results of increased screen size," said Barnett, "is the necessity of improving picture resolution." For this and other reasons, there is much interest being displayed in 50mm. and 70mm. film.

Another development brought about by the wide-screen is the designing of improved carbons and lamp houses to meet the need for increased illumination. According to Barnett, "The principal limitation at present is the inability of film to stand the resulting temperature rise without buckling." Two approaches to this problem named by Barnett were air and water cooling of the projector gate and a system of pulsed air pressure applied to the film to oppose its tendency to buckle.

Decrying the secrecy and lack of co-ordination between engineering programs, Barnett noted that "heretofore it has been possible to show any picture from any studio in any theatre in the world," and said that we must ultimately return to such a situation.

Barnett suggested that "all theatres could be made to conform to one of two or three projection and sound methods which would give best results to a given house and that such a program would benefit all concerned."

Earlier in the meeting, Alfred Starr, TOA executive committee chairman, announced that Texas Guinan's famous greeting of "hello sucker" applied to theatre men, "who are at the bottom of the industry heap." Describing the sliding scale of 70-30-10 as a "mathematical monstrosity," he said, "you can't make money with poor pictures, and distribution won't let you make money with good pictures."

Nat Williams, Thomasville, Ga., chairman of the meeting, urged the formation of an exhibitors research institute to "get at the causes of present ills and do something about them."

Lamar Sarra, legislative chairman, MPEOF, praised the public relations program of COMPO for its work in obtaining tax relief. Albert Sindlinger, noted industry analyst, discussed downward boxoffice trends and suggested remedial action by

Big City Theatre Prices Climb To Record High

WASHINGTON—The Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported that motion picture admission prices in big cities have reached a record high almost double the 1935-39 average.

The combined index of adult and children admission prices was put at 199.9 at the end of September. The previous record was 192.8 at the end of December, 1953.

The adult price index was 204.5 compared to a June index of 197.0; the children's index was 172.2 compared to 163.3 at the end of June. The new figure is still below the record 172.5 for the end of December, 1953.

The figures are apt to be a bit misleading, industryites explain, since the primary drop in motion picture attendance has been in lower priced houses and at performances when admission fees are lowest, also.

the industry. Jerry Gold, Panokee; Dick Potts, TOA public relations director; and George Murphy, Hollywood, also addressed the convention.

The convention elected Gold, independent owner, Pahokee, as president for 1955. Elected as equal vice-presidents were Mark Dupree, Jacksonville; Jimmy Biddle, Jasper; Bob Daugherty, Haines City; and Pete Sones, Tampa. Other officials selected were Bill Beck, Jacksonville, secretary; B. B. Garner, Lakeland, treasurer; Mark Chartrand, Miami, TOA representative; and Hugh Martin, Leesburg, regional TOA vice-president. Horace Denning, outgoing president, became board chairman.

Thanksgiving Helps Holdover Grosses

NEW YORK—The Thanksgiving holiday helped the Broadway first-runs a bit last week with most houses reporting satisfactory grosses, mostly with hold over product.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"DRUM BEAT" (Warners). Paramount, with Jackie Gleason and his TV show on stage in person, jumped to $116,000 for the second, and unfortunately, last week.

"DESIREE" (20th-Fox). Roxy reported $56,784 for Thursday through Sunday, with the second week besting the first and sure to top $81,000.

"WHITE CHRISTMAS" (Paramount). Radio City Music Hall, with stage show, hit $112,500 for Thursday through Sunday, and also went ahead of the previous week by hitting $145,000 on the seventh session.

"SABRINA" (Paramount). Criterion was up to $18,500 on the 10th week.

"CARMEN JONES" (20th-Fox). Rivoli claimed $36,000 for the fifth week.

"THE ASPHALT JUNGLE" (MGM); "BATTLEGROUNDS" (MGM). Globe was heading toward $18,500, more than double the previous week, with the opening of these two reissues.

"SITTING BULL" (UA). Mayfair expected the opening week to tally $32,000.

"ON THE WATERFRONT" (Columbia). Astor reported $19,000 for the 18th week.

"A STAR IS BORN" (Warners). Victoria claimed $39,000 for the seventh week.

"THE LAST TIME I SAW PARIS" (MGM). Capitol announced $31,000 for Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, with the second week heading toward $46,000.

"PHFFFT" (Columbia). Loew's State claimed $22,000 for the third week.

Bertero Heads Fox West Coast

HOLLYWOOD—John B. Bertero, vice-president, director, and counsel, National Theatres, Inc., was elected president last week of Fox West Coast Theatres, NT's principal subsidiary.

Bertero succeeds the late Charles P. Skouras. Theatre operations will continue under the guidance of Edwin F. Zabel, vice-president, NT, and general manager of theatre operations, FWCT.

COMPO Ad Raps Taxes

NEW YORK—The 31st in the series of Council of Motion Picture Organizations ads in Editor and Publisher last week stated that if municipalities take over all or part of the 20 per cent federal admission tax, which the government gave up on April 1, "they will be putting a roadblock to local retail business which Congress went to great pains to remove."

Cowboys' Appeal Denied

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court has refused to reconsider its decision not to review California Circuit Court decisions throwing out suits by Roy Rogers and Gene Autry seeking to bar Republic from selling their old pictures to TV.

COMPO Reports Sharp Rise In Industry Earnings, Attendance

NEW YORK—A sharp gain in theatre earnings and attendance, coincident with the granting of federal tax relief, and a highly significant reversal in seasonal trends are revealed in a special COMPO report mailed last fortnight to COMPO members.

Second quarter theatre gross earnings jumped to $270.3 million in 1954 as against $227.7 million in the same period of 1953, a gain of $42.6 million, or 18.7 per cent. This gain, the report says, came from two sources, increased attendance and admission tax relief.

These and many other statistics are disclosed in the 12-page booklet, compiled by the COMPO staff and based on research studies made by Sindlinger and Company, analysts, working under the direction of Robert W. Coyne, special counsel, and Charles E. McCarthy, information director, COMPO.

One of the most revealing disclosures is the spectacular rise from 300 to 4,050 in drive-in operations during the last eight years. This is held primarily responsible for the seasonal reversal in motion picture attendance, which now reaches its peak in the months of July, August, and September, which prior to 1952 were comparatively low points in both attendance and earnings. Drive-in attendance has accounted for nearly half of the motion picture attendance during the months of July and August from 1952 through 1954.

The report states that with motion picture attendance now reaching its peak in the third quarter, and the increasing percentage of weekend attendance at other seasons of the year, "changes in production schedules and programming are indicated . . . Exhibitors are also confronted with the necessity of devising ways and means of stimulating week-day attendance and developing a regular movie-going habit among the younger generation and those who have been temporarily diverted to other forms of entertainment."

Theatre earnings kept pace with the growth in attendance. On the basis of preliminary June-September 1954 gross, the annual rate is $1,191.2 million, which would be $183.7 million more than in 1953, or an increase of 18.2 per cent.

During the period of inflation, the average admission price for a movie ticket, including the federal admission tax, but not state or local admission taxes, rose from 42 cents in 1946 to 50.61 cents in 1953. This was an increase of 8.61 cents, or 20.5 per cent, but the actual average price of a movie ticket to the average theatre had increased only by about 12 per cent. The reason for the difference, the report says, lies in the fact that during recent years attendance decline on a national basis has been greater in lower priced theatres, and at times of day or week when admissions are normally lower.

A comparison and analysis of average admission prices between the second quarter of 1953 and the second quarter of 1954, which shows a drop of about half a

John B. Bertero, vice-president, director and counsel, National Theatres, Inc., was recently elected president, Fox West Coast Theatres Corporation, National's principal subsidiary. He has been with the company for more than 24 years.

NSS, Buena Vista In Deal

NEW YORK—Leo F. Samuels, general sales manager, Buena Vista Film Distribution Company, Inc., announced last week that arrangements had been completed between National Film Service, Inc., and National Screen Service whereby the latter will take over accessory and trailer distribution of Buena Vista product. This will apply to all current as well as future Buena Vista releases, Samuels said.

Accessories and trailers were previously handled by National Film Service who will continue to perform billing, collection, physical handling of prints, and other local exchange functions for Buena Vista.

F And M Appeals Dismissal

WASHINGTON—Fanchon and Marco have appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court the dismissal in the lower courts of its anti-trust action against eight distributors, National Theatres, and Fox West Coast. Action charged that defendants conspired against the Baldwin, Los Angeles, by denying it first-runs.

cent in the average price of a ticket, indicates that a portion of the federal tax saving was passed on to the public.

The number of active theatres in the United States in August, 1954, as shown in the report, was 18,351, of which 14,301 were conventional four-wall theatres and 4,050 were drive-ins. Texas led all states in the number of theatres with 1,362. Pennsylvania had 1,095; New York, 1,091 and California, 1,064. Nevada had only 43, Delaware 44, and Rhode Island, 46.

Federal tax relief, the report shows, has not only resulted in higher theatre attendance and earnings but has checked the alarming trend of theatre closings. The average number of monthly closings increased from 35 in 1946 to 107 in 1953, and reached a high of 149 in the first two months of 1954. During April, May and June, the first three months of tax relief, a total of 351 theatres closed, but in the same period 169 closed theatres reopened, so there was a net loss of only 182 in the second quarter.

Bishops Bemoan Lack Of Movie Ad Decency

WASHINGTON—The Catholic Bishops of the U. S., holding their annual meeting here last week, expressed "grave concern" over the lowering of standards of decency in motion picture advertising and the "apparent indifference" or responsible industry authorities toward the trend, or their inability to deal with it effectively. They expressed "hope" that no similar lapse from "acceptable standards" will be "allowed to creep" into the work of the Production Code Administration, now headed by Geoffrey Shurlock, following the retirement of Joseph I. Breen.

The Most Reverend William A. Scully, D.D., Bishop of Albany and chairman of the Bishops' Committee on Motion Pictures, reported on the work of the National Legion of Decency, and advised that approximately 43.01 per cent of pictures in the United States during the year were classified morally unobjectionable for general patronage; 36.13 per cent were termed morally unobjectionable for adults; 20.07 per cent were rated morally objectionable in part for all; while only two domestically produced films out of a total of 279 were "condemned."

Of the 73 foreign films reviewed by the Legion, 18 were classified as A-1; 26 as A-II; 22 were rated "B," and seven were "condemned."

11,000 C'Scope Houses Forecast

NEW YORK—Basing its estimate on the present total of 9,234 theatre installations, 20th-Fox estimated last week that there would be 11,000 United States and Canadian houses equipped for CinemaScope by the end of the year.

It was explained that of the houses so far installed 7,869 are conventional theatres; 1,234 are drive-ins; 129 are army installations, and two are non-theatrical situations.

Installations are now averaging 200 weekly, it was said, with those abroad keeping pace with those in this country and Canada.

IFE To Expand Activities

NEW YORK—The board of Italian Films Export announced last week that IFE may eventually distribute films of any nation, as well as those of Italy. This decision was confirmed by Dr. Renato Gualino, president.

While in New York, Dr. Gualino met with John McCarthy, International Affiliates, and George Lourau, Filmsonor, S.A., to discuss their French films.

Jensen Dies

NEW YORK—Emil C. Jensen, 62, president and general manager of Artcinema Associates, Inc., died last fortnight in St. Charles Hospital of a heart attack. He is survived by his wife, Edna, a sister, and brother.

Italian Production Costs Increasing

NEW YORK—Production costs in Italy have increased four times since 1949 and certain types of labor actually cost more than they would in America. This is the view presented by Ilya Lopert, producer-exhibitor, on his return from Venice where he supervised filming of his current project, "Summertime," the film version of the play, "The Time Of The Cuckoo," starring Katherine Hepburn.

It was two years in preparation and required 100 shooting days, Lopert said. As a result of the increased difficulty in making a film away from home, especially in Venice where the only means of transportation are barges on the canals, the film cost $150,000 more than the originally estimated budget, Lopert added. The shooting time also ran behind schedule.

Because there are only a handful of key people in Italy, who are in great demand because of increased production there, Lopert thought that it would be cheaper to bring production people from America rather than hire Italians. Lopert estimated costs on "Summertime" to be about $1,200,000.

The film is expected to be released here around Easter under the auspices of United Artists. The Wolff brothers will handle distribution of the film in England; Korda will handle Germany, Scandinavia, and Switzerland, while United Artists will handle the rest of the world, Lopert said.

Aside from this producing effort, Lopert has financial interests in three other films, "Richard III," which has six more weeks of production; "Lucky Kid," which is now being scored and edited; and "The Man Who Loved Redheads," starring Moira Shearer, a print of which is expected here soon.

Lopert said that he would like to produce one film a year. This, of course, depends upon the availability of material. In his view, it is still more important to have a good story than to depend upon the process. Lopert also said that he plans to make three or four more pictures with Alec Guinness. The Guinness picture already in release, "The Captain's Paradise," Lopert said has already grossed $1,050,000.

UCP Executives Named

WASHINGTON—Three prominent executives of motion pictures, radio, and television were elected to leading national offices of United Cerebral Palsy at the fifth annual convention at the Mayflower Hotel last week.

They are Leonard H. Goldenson, president, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc.; Earl J. Hudson, vice-president, west coast division, American Broadcasting Company, and former theatre executive in Detroit; and George C. Hoover, South Miami, Fla., theatre executive and chief barker, Variety Clubs International.

Goldenson, who had served as President of UCP since its founding in 1949, was elected board chairman. Hudson was elected vice-president. Hoover was named regional vice-president for the southeast.

Goldenson previously announced he would not stand for reelection.

UA Sets 40 Or More

NEW YORK—Max E. Youngstein, United Artists vice-president, announced last week that UA will have "not less than 40 productions for release in 1955."

Youngstein reported that he recently closed deals for about 15 pictures, which will be announced when the legal papers have been signed.

Youngstein added that UA now has $10,000,000 invested in six independent productions now shooting. He pointed out that under UA's program over $30,000,000 has been made available for pictures now being filmed, or contemplated for production, or finished but unamortized.

Broidy Uses Crystal Ball

HOLLYWOOD—Steve Broidy, Allied Artists president, predicted last week at the Publicists Guild "panhandler" dinner that units of "three or four men from publicity and advertising departments will devote their entire efforts over a period of months or years solely to three or four films. In the sales department," he continued, "separate sales managers will be assigned these same films as a unit, on a national basis. The units will be coordinated by the general sales manager and the national director of publicity."

Brandt Takes Loew's House

NEW YORK—Brandt Theatres last week acquired the 86th Street Theatre, formerly Loew's 86th Street; and began its operation Thanksgiving day. The new operation is specializing in catering to the neighborhood trade in the area.

U-I Discloses C'Scope Films Will Be Available For 2-D

NEW YORK—Universal-International announced last week that all future CinemaScope productions will be made available in conventional as well as anamorphic versions. This, of course, includes "Sign Of The Pagan," said to be the company's most expensive picture. The company's CinemaScope productions will also be available in magnetic sound and optical sound prints.

Already, U-I's first CinemaScope release, "Black Shield Of Falworth," has played more than 600 engagements in houses not equipped for the wide-screen process.

Paramount Promotion Executives To Meet

NEW YORK—The first international promotion coordination meeting in the history of Paramount has been scheduled for the entire week of Dec. 6 at the Hollywood studio. It will set plans to "achieve the full boxoffice potential in the unprecedentedly strong Paramount product lineup for 1955."

The meeting, which also will further resolve the integration of activities among home office, studio and field promotion forces for maximum merchandising benefits, will be attended by advertising, publicity, and exploitation executives from the home office, the studio publicity staff, the field merchandising representatives of the U. S. and Canada, and ad-publicity executives of Paramount International Films.

Jerry Pickman, vice-president in charge of advertising, publicity, and exploitation, will preside, and Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount vice-president in charge of the studio, and Don Hartman, executive producer, will address the meeting, as will other executives.

The home office contingent will include Sid Blumenstock, assistant national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation and advertising manager; Herb Steinberg, national exploitation manager; and Burt Champion, publicity manager. Teet Carle, studio publicity manager, will head the group of studio promotion representatives.

Paramount overseas operations will be represented by Tony Reddin, director of advertising, publicity, and theatres in England, and Odette Ferry, promotional liaison for Continental Europe, as well as Paul Ackerman, director of advertising, publicity, and sales promotion for Paramount International. Also representing the foreign field will be Al Deane, manager, Paramount International department of censoring and editing.

Product sessions will focus on forthcoming major pictures, "The Bridges At Toko-Ri," "The Country Girl," "Mambo," "Ulysses," "The Conquest Of Space," and VistaVision films, "Strategic Air Command," "The Seven Little Foys," "Run For Cover," "The Trouble With Harry," "To Catch A Thief," "Lucy Gallant," "The Far Horizons," "We're No Angels," and "The Ten Commandments."

U-I West Coast Sales Meeting Set

NEW YORK—U-I will hold a week-long sales conference at the studios in California starting on Dec. 6, to be attended by the company's executives from both New York and the studios; home office sales executives; district sales managers; foreign department executives; east and west coast advertising and publicity executives; and representatives of Empire-Universal of Canada, it was announced last week by Charles J. Feldman, vice-president and general sales manager. High on the agenda is a discussion of current and forthcoming product.

Following the meetings, division sales managers will hold a series of district sales meetings with their district managers, branch managers, and salesmen participating, and with a promotional executive scheduled to attend each of these seven individual meetings.

Top executives from New York and California who will participate in the sales conference include Milton R. Rackmil, president; N. J. Blumberg, chairman of the board; Alfred E. Daff, executive vice-president; Edward Muhl, vice-president in charge of production; Adolph Schimel, vice-president and general counsel; David A. Lipton, vice-president; James Pratt, executive manager of the studio; and Maurice A. Bergman, eastern studio representative.

Feldman will preside and head the sales contingent which will include Ray Moon, assistant general sales manager; F. J. A. McCarthy, southern and Canadian sales manager; P. T. Dana, eastern sales manager; Foster M. Blake, western sales manager; James J. Jordan, circuit sales manager; Harry Fellerman, sales head, U-I Special Films Division; Irving Sochin, short subjects sales manager; and F. T. Murray, manager of branch operations and maintenance.

A. W. Perry, president, Empire-Universal, which distributes U-I pictures in Canada, and Mark Plottel, sales manager, will also attend.

Americo Aboaf, foreign general manager; Ben Cohn, assistant foreign general manager; and Fortunat Baronat, foreign publicity director, will also attend the meetings.

Walter Branson, world wide sales manager, RKO, recently returned from a trip to Europe for the first foreign industry demonstration of Superscope and stated exhibitors' reactions there were excellent. He was accompanied on the trip by Joseph Tushinsky, co-inventor of Superscope.

Eastman Kodak Net Earnings Increase

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Eastman Kodak Company's third-quarter sales showed an improving trend and in total almost equaled the high level of the 1953 third quarter. Net earnings in the quarter showed a gain over the 1953 figure. This statement was made by Thomas J. Hargrave, chairman, and Albert K. Chapman, president, last week, following a meeting of the company's board of directors.

Sales in the third quarter were $152,714,860, compared with $152,958,756 for the corresponding 1953 quarter. Consolidated net earnings were $18,824,501 up 51 per cent over the 12,434,802 in the 1953 quarter. Third-quarter earnings equaled $1.07 per common share in 1954 on 17,402,261 shares outstanding, compared with 71 cents in 1953 on 17,374,496 shares.

Sales of $430,846,992 for the 1954 three quarters were off slightly compared with $439,340,926 for the same period last year.

Earnings before taxes for the three quarters were $100,458,076, down 11 per cent from $112,949,175 for the same period in 1953. After taxes, net earnings for the three quarters were $46,958,693 or $2.68 a share. This compares with $34,966,635 of $1.99 a share a year ago. The increase in net earnings was due primarily to the removal of the excess profits tax.

Salesmen Elect Slate At National Meeting

CHICAGO—The following were elected officers of the Colesseum of Motion Picture Salesmen of America at their annual meeting last week, Glenn Haviland, Seattle, president; Milton Simon, Chicago, first vice-president; Robert Lightfoot, St. Louis, second vice-president; Jack Eckhardt, Chicago, secretary; Leo Shauer, Chicago, assistant secretary; Edgar Shinn, New Orleans, treasurer; and J. P. Mosley, New Orleans, assistant treasurer.

Regional vice-presidents named were Charles Dortic, Pittsburgh; Kenneth Dotterer, Indianapolis; Paul Weiss, Minneapolis; Walter Walker, Atlanta; and William Tomlinson, San Francisco. Regional committeemen named were W. G. Bugie, Albany; Dave Chapman, Milwaukee; Charles Turner, Jacksonville; and Wayne Bateman, Los Angeles.

The convention voted to reopen the contract which expires on Feb. 17, 1955. The growing "menace" of the independent buying and booking combines was discussed by David B. Bartell in his report to the convention.

Los Angeles was selected as the next annual convention city.

Columbia Profit Jumps

NEW YORK—Columbia last week reported earnings of $1,349,000 in the 13 weeks ending Sept. 25. This is an increase of $587,000 over the same period of last year. Current earnings per share of common stock for the period was $1.70, compared with 92 cents for last year.

Net profit before income taxes for this 13-week period was $2,553,000. Estimated income taxes was put at $895,000, while state and foreign taxes were estimated at $309,000.

At the meeting scheduled for Dec. 17 at the home office, Columbia stockholders will vote on proposals to increase the authorized common stock of the corporation from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 shares and to change the authorized no par value common stock, issued and unissued, into common stock having a $5 par value.

The meeting will also vote on a five year extension of Harry Cohn's employment contract and on reelection of the companies nine directors. A stockholders' proposal, opposed by management, for the election of directors by cumulative voting, will be submitted to the meeting.

Swedish-American Film Set

NEW YORK—The first American language film produced in Sweden, "The True And The False," was acquired last week for release in the United States and Canada by the Helene Davis Pictures Company, Inc. Produced by Signe Hasso, this romantic suspense drama is based upon tales by Guy de Maupassant and Honore de Balzac, and was written for the screen by Bob Condon.

"The True And The False" was filmed in one version, entirely in English, at the Sandrews Studios outside Stockholm. It is the first of a planned series of films budgeted at $400,000 to be made abroad by a group headed by Miss Hasso and Arthur Davis.

Emanuel Frisch, fourth from left, chairman, 1954 Brotherhood campaign of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, was recently presented with a silver plaque in recognition of his "outstanding services to the cause of brotherhood" throughout the year, at a committee meeting of the Amusements Division of the NCCJ in New York City. The presentation was made by Sol A. Schwartz, second from right, president, RKO Theatres. John H. Harris, second from left, Pittsburgh, was named chairman for the year 1955. Others who participated in the event and who appear in the picture are J. Robert Rubin, holding plaque, general chairman of the amusements industry; Charles M. Reagan, left, vice-president, MGM; and Ned E. Depinet, right, former president, RKO Pictures, all active in the effort.

Industry Grumbings Pay Off With Press

TORONTO—The rumblings within the motion picture industry on the unfair treatment received by the theatres from the newspapers has begun to pay off, at least on one newspaper officially, and rumor-wise on others.

In Toronto, The Telegram, regarded as Canada's second largest with 265,781, has announced it will expand the entertainment section by several additional columns of news, reviews, photos, and features. The space will be used to bring together the movie column, dramatic and music reviews, and news spread through the paper; plus additional pictures and news and feature stories, including a new Hollywood column and a weekly children's entertainment column.

The newspaper has also promised to cease the understanding that exhibitors of first-run films are given a scene mat in the Saturday entertainment section and pay for the cost of engraving.

Ken Johnson, writer of the "Fun Fare" column for the last two years, has been appointed entertainment editor, with Clyde Gilmour being brought in from Vancouver to write movie reviews, while other important writers are to come, with the name of Stan Helleur mentioned.

Gaspard Fauteux, Lieutenant Governor of Quebec, is seen being greeted at the recent Montreal, Canada, world premiere of United Artists' "Operation Manhunt" by Mrs. Phillip Caplan, president, Cancer Research Society, which sponsored the opening. The gala bow drew impressive contingent of the Dominion's leading government, business leaders and society figures.

Film openings in Toronto will be highlighted on the day of their opening, rather than being restricted to Saturdays. The films "supported," according to a letter from Bas Mason, Telegram promotion director, "will be rotated in the fairest possible manner to all concerned. . . the readers and the advertisers."

The letter from Mason was sent to all distributors and exhibitors in the Toronto area. It is part of a scheme by The Telegram to attract more and more adverti-ers to its pages, particularly in the light of the Star's, Canada's largest paper, upping their amusement page rates five cents a line and adding to the premium charged theatres.

Other rumblings in the newspapers are heard, with changes rumored for The Daily Star, Toronto, as well as The Hamilton Spectator, Hamilton, where already June Baker has been appointed movie columnist replacing John Robinson. The Spectator is planning expanded coverage. The Telegram, meanwhile, "looks to the day—in the not too distant future—when The Telegram will be pre-eminent as the number one entertainment guide in the Canadian newspaper field." The motion picture industry has already received considerable co-operation from The Telegram, and those in the industry are wishing the newspaper every success.

Canadian Comment

New Chief Barker of the Variety Club of Toronto is Harry S. Mandell, Twinex Century Theatres, who succeeded William S. Summerville, Jr., B and F Theatres. First assistant chief barker is Dave Griesdorf, general manager, Odeon Theatres (Canada) Ltd.; Clare Appel moved from property master to second assistant chief barker, being succeeded by Paul Johnston, manager, Eaton's Auditorium, who was the only new canvassman on the crew for 1955. Dan Krendel, manager, Famous Players' District B, is dough guy. Other members of the crew are Herb Allen, George Altman, J. J. Fitzgibbons, Jr., Ernest Rawley, Lou Davidson, and Monty Hall.

The possibility of special matinees for juveniles was one of the more important topics discussed at the annual meeting of the Quebec Allied Theatrical Industries. A committee was appointed to make representations to the provincial government for the admittance of those under 16, now banned from seeing films. The policy originated in 1927 as a safety measure. Well-supervised showings just for juveniles would be undertaken if the committee is successful. Similar representations were unsuccessful in the past. Under the chairmanship of William Lester, the competition from TV was discussed at length. The theatre owners expressed the feeling that the competition from TV was most dangerous during a product shortage and when distributors' terms were high. Officers and directors were returned for another year, J. Arthur Hirsch, honorary president; Leo Choquette, vice-president; John G. Ganetakos, treasurer; and Charles Bourassa, secretary. With them on the executive board are D. Robert, C. A. Magnan, B. C. Salamis, Ed Gauthier, Arthur Bahen, and William Elman.

Four new standard-type theatres have been added to the list of those now under construction, bringing to 23 the total number of auditorium houses currently in various stages of work across the country. The recent opening of the Midale, Midale, Sask., brings to 27 the number of four-walls opened in Canada since the beginning of the year. The Midale, first in that town of 312, is owned by J. L. King. The four under way are M. M. Nikoloynk's Wildwood, Wildwood, Alta.,

The largest trade show crowd ever seen in Montreal, Canada, turned out recently for a special screening of Paramount's "White Christmas," in VistaVision, at United Amusement's York. The showing was held the day of the Quebec Allied exhibitors meeting, which enabled Quebec Province exhibitors, some having traveled 800 miles, to be present at the preview. Seen in the theatre lobby, top, left to right, are R. Gauthier, Regal, Montreal; S. Allard, Garden, Plage Laval; Mr. and Mrs. R. Grenier, Meteor, Dolbeau; and H. David, Viau, Pont Viau; and, bottom, left to right, Hertel Hotte, Commodore, Cartierville; Carl Brock, Princess Cowansville; Mr. and Mrs. R. Landriault, Laurentian, Grenville; Romeo Goudreau, Paramount salesman; A. St. Jacques, Capitol, Thurso; and Winston Barron, Paramount field representative. Company personnel hosted the screening for exhibitors.

Drawing the teeth of the tiger

The searing heat of the high-powered, long-throw, wide-screen projector is a tiger that could quickly ruin film.

It could—but it doesn't.

Because—today this tiger's teeth have been drawn. Reflection devices let light rays through, hold heat rays back; water-cooled gates and air jets give added protection.

To help solve problems such as this, Kodak maintains the Eastman Technical Service for Motion Picture Film. Branches at strategic centers. Inquiries invited.

Burton was introduced to the assemblage by company press representative Harold Rand, a fine chap and a comer in the field of publicity, who gives his all for 20th-Fox with vim, vigor, and vitality. This lad has a wonderful sense of humor, is quick on the conversational draw, and is eager to learn all he can.

Oh yes, Burton thought "Prince Of Players" a most interesting film, and he was quite eager to follow the heavy schedule laid out by the company for interviews, etc., especially since they were paying his expenses while here.

Lunch was pretty good, too.

CELEBRATION NOTE: Jesse Zunser, that ever-popular movie reviewer, critic, and executive editor of CUE Magazine this month marked his 21st year with the mag and was tendered a surprise anniversary luncheon by employees of the organization. Over 100 wires of congratulation were received. What are the greatest pictures he has seen over the years? "Three Little Pigs," "Gone With The Wind," "Best Years Of Our Lives," "Hamlet," "Zola," and "Grapes Of Wrath."

We add our personal best wishes and hope for at least another 21 years of the same.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: While the Los Angeles Rams were in town, Hal Bartlett hosted in absentia a cocktail party for grid and screen star Elroy "Crazylegs" Hirsch at Toots Shor's attended by various press representatives. . . . The first annual art exhibition of paintings by employees of 20th-Fox was launched with a cocktail party in the company's home office gallery on the executive floor. Various members of the press were in attendance. . . . Virginia Mayo was in town for several reasons, among them to plug "The Silver Chalice" and to act as Queen of the Macy Thanksgiving Day Parade. . . . Muzak plugging tunes from "White Christmas" to captive audiences everywhere. . . . Walt Disney plugging his "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea," via his TV show on the ABC network. . . . Falling into the better press-book category is the 20-pager out on "So This Is Paris;" "Carmen Jones," also 20 pages; and "White Christmas," 24 pages. . . . Three wonderful performances by Bing Crosby, Grace Kelly, and Bill Holden in "The Country Girl." The Academy is gonna have a tough time with this one. . . . Last week, the papers carried stories from Stockholm about a flock of letters written to Napoleon by Empress Marie Louise being discovered in the archives of the King of Sweden. We can just picture 20th-Fox press agent Lee Pillet secretly making the trip just to plant the missives so that they would be discovered in time for the opening of "Desiree" at the Roxy last week. What initiative! . . . Stills from oldtime films are on sale in portfolios at the Museum of Modern Art. . . . Some 600 cabs in town are carrying special stickers plugging "Desiree." . . . A later dispatch tells us that "Aida," mentioned above, closed the first week with $22,432. . . . Recent issue of Life carried a six-page spread mit color yet on three new Japanese films, all produced by Masaichi Nagata, head of the Daiei Studios in Tokyo. They are "Ugetsu," distributed by Ed Harrison; "Hell's Gate," being readied by Harrison, and "Golden Demon." . . . Good pressbooks with 20 pages of saleable material are out on "The Barefoot Contessa." . . . Other entries to be noted are out on "Woman's World," "Shield For Murder," "They Rode West," "This is My Love," and "Phffft."

About People

LONDON—Following the return from the United States of general sales manager Macgregor Scott, the Associated British-Pathe executive announced last week that Terry O'Neill had been appointed the company's representative in America. After serving with the U. S. army during the war, O'Neill joined Exclusive Films, Ltd., as a booking executive. Later he returned to America as special television representative for Allied Artists. In his new position, he will supervise the activities of Associated British-Pathe's affairs in the U. S. and Canada. His appointment is part of Pathe's world-wide plan to extend the selling of their product, and follows the recent appointment of Noel Crickett in Australasia.

NEW YORK—David A. Bader, vice-president, Atlantic Television Corporation, was elected last week as 38th president, Associated Motion Picture Advertisers. Other officers elected with him are Martin Davis, advertising and publicity manager, Samuel Goldwyn Productions, vice-president; Harold Danziger, Columbia, secretary and Hans Barnstyn, Trans Lux 52nd Street, treasurer. Lige Brien, United Artists executive and outgoing president, becomes board chairman. The board includes Meriam F. Brandon, Gordon White, Blanche Livingston, and Harry K. McWilliams. Ray Gallagher was elected to the board of trustees to replace Bader. Cy Eichman, Astor, was elected head of public relations.

HOLLYWOOD—Milton E. Pickman is the new executive in charge of production at Distributors Corporation of America. Pickman's immediate duties will be to complete production set-ups on "Finian's Rainbow," which is being co-produced by Maurice Binder and DCA, and to handle production details of operating functions on all DCA products.

Service Screenings Protested

WASHINGTON—Walter Reade, Jr., TOA board chairman; A. Julian Brylawski, TOA vice-president; Maurice Goldstein, chairman, MPAA distribution; and Kenneth Clark, MPAA vice-president, met with D. Walter Swann, deputy defense secretary, and Fred Bund, representing the army and air force, last week to protest the screening of first-run pictures in military camps before theatre release.

The meeting was to explore the situation, and to discuss informally what might be done. It was agreed that the military arms should make reports to Swann, who would make them available to the producing, distributing, and exhibiting industries.

Cinema Lodge Celebrates

NEW YORK—The New York Cinema Lodge of B'nai B'rith celebrated its 15th anniversary last week with a special meeting at the Hotel Astor. The 10 past presidents of Cinema Lodge were honored, and president Burton E. Robbins received a special citation for the fulfilling of Cinema's fund raising quota during the past year. The winner of the 1954 Cadillac sedan awarded to one of the holders of the $25 contribution share certificates was Sid Nagler, Nagler Sign Shop.

Concerning MGM's "Deep In My Heart"

The following unsolicited wire was sent to Charles Reagan, MGM, on Nov. 22, and reflects the experience and picture judgment of Jay Emanuel, who has been an active exhibitor for more than 40 years. While "Deep In My Heart" is reviewed in THE SERVICE in the usual way, this can be regarded as an added bulletin about a brilliant potential success:

Having screened "Deep In My Heart" last night, I'm still shaking my head this morning and saying, "Wow." For the first time in my 40 odd years in the industry, I heard applause break right into a picture in a screening room, and I must admit that I clapped too. Jose Ferrer and every writer, player, and technician having anything to do with it should get an Oscar. It is one terrific show. You will agree that as a theatre owner I would always resist a two a day policy for any picture, but this is different. The Romberg story, as big as you have made it, deserves the biggest presentation that this industry ever gave a picture. My sincere congratulations to MGM for a tremendous accomplishment.

Sincerely,

JAY EMANUEL.

NOTE: You know that we are the toughest and most realistic reviewers in the business; but don't take our word for this one. See it! We're sure you'll agree with our enthusiasm.

Skouras Tribute Planned

NEW YORK—Industry leaders turned out last week for the first meeting of the sponsors of the dinner concert to be presented in honor of Spyros P. Skouras, president, 20th-Fox, by the American Fund for Israel Institutions on Jan. 5, 1955, at the Waldorf-Astoria. Dinner chairman Simon H. Fabian, president, Stanley Warner Theatres, addressed the sponsors and set a goal of 2,000 reservations for the affair, which is presented annually by the fund.

The program this year will offer Metropolitan Opera stars Rise Stevens and Robert Merrill, Pierre Monteux conducting the Symphony of the Air, and City Center Ballet stars Andre Eglevsky and Diana Adams.

RKO-Pathe Moves

NEW YORK—RKO-Pathe moved its offices last week to 1270 Avenue of the Americas, where RKO Radio Pictures has its home office, it was announced by Jay Bonafield, vice-president, RKO-Pathe. The organization is currently at 625 Madison Avenue. Production operations will continue at the RKO-Pathe Studios at 105 East 106th Street, according to Bonafield.

Blumberg Condition Improves

NEW YORK—Nate J. Blumberg, board chairman and former president, U-I, was reported in favorable condition at Doctors Hospital following a heart attack suffered last fortnight.

CINE CHATTER—Foreign films are strong in Ottawa with four first-runs showing them exclusively, another two days a week, and a house across the river at Hull, Que., coupling French product. . . . One of the most important appointments recently is that of Jim Hardiman as director of advertising and publicity for Odeon Theatres (Canada) Ltd. He replaces Wannie Tyers who has returned to theatre operations and becomes manager, Odeon Hyland, Toronto. Hardiman was previously assistant director of advertising and publicity. He has been with Odeon since 1947 and in the advertising department since 1951. He was drive captain in the recent Odeon Big Show, which was the most successful showmanship drive carried out by the circuit. Ron Leonard, formerly manager, Odeon Humber and Odeon Danforth, Toronto, has rejoined the company as a member of the advertising and publicity department together with Charles Mason. He will work at exploitation and showmanship. . . . The first Cinerama operation in Canada will be at the Imperial, Montreal. The theatre, owned by Famous Players Canadian Corporation, has been taken under lease for a period of one year, with options.

England

Officers of the Variety Club of Great Britain, Tent 36, for 1954 held a meeting at the Savoy Hotel, Strand, London. They are chief barker, J. Carreras; first assistant chief barker, Norman Harrington; second assistant chief barker, Tom O'Brien; dough guy, Nat Cohen; property master, Ben Henry; canvassmen John Harding, C. Pearl, Max Thorpe, and A. T. L. Watkins; ex-officio canvassmen D. J. Goodlatte, Sir David Griffiths, O.B.E.; C. J. Latta, and R. S. Wolff, and press guy David Jones.

In London a meeting of the general council of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association has given a vote of complete confidence to general secretary Walter R. Fuller following the resignation from the organization of the Rank organization and the Essoldo Circuit, together representing over 700 theatres. The meeting also approved a motion for a complete review of CEA's "antiquated and cumbersome constitution." First step planned is to regroup CEA's 26 branches which will lead to a more efficient general council.

Germany

Warners have registered in Bonn, Warner Brothers Film GmbH, a producing company to make features in West Germany designed for exploitation in that area. Hans Kubaschewski and Paul Thieffers have been appointed managers by Joseph H. Westreich, who came to Frankfurt from Paris for the establishment of the firm.

BETTER MANAGEMENT

*Valuable Exploitation Keys

Cambridge Theatre Aids Senior Citizens

BOSTON—The University, Cambridge, Mass., managed by Stanley Sumner, is believed to be the first theatre in the country to cooperate with its local Community Service Committee in offering its senior citizens reduced prices to the theatre. Cambridge residents who are 65 years of age or older are offered reduced admissions, matinees and evenings. The project was arranged by the Cambridge Community Services Committee for the Elderly in an effort to brighten the lives of its elderly citizens now living under reduced or fixed incomes.

Eligible applicants may go to one of the ten Red Feather or Community Service headquarters to procure identification cards which are then presented at the boxoffice for the reductions of 25 cents at each weekday performance.

When the program was presented to Sumner he immediately recognized its civic and social significance in an attempt to build up the morale of the city's elderly theatre patrons. "We are testing this project from December first to March first to determine the results. If it is as successful as we hope it will be, we will continue it indefinitely. Today there are many elderly people living in fixed income brackets who simply cannot afford to attend our theatre as often as they desire. We are giving them a chance for diversion and entertainment by offering them this opportunity to attend our theatre more often. This is a Red Feather project which we are delighted to cooperate with."

The Cambridge Chronicle-Sun came out with an editorial entitled "Another First For Cambridge," congratulating those involved in carrying out the project.

In this current Senior Citizen plan, Sumner and the management of the University are to be congratulated on the inception of a project which can easily sweep through the nation as a civic endeavor of prominence and goodwill.

UA Sets "Twist" Tieups

NEW YORK—A national co-op promotion backing United Artists' "Twist Of Fate" with merchandise displays at 40,000 retail outlets and an extensive slate of newspaper ads has been set with the International Laytex Corporation, it was announced last week by Francis M. Winikus, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation.

Manager Bob Turner, Fifth Avenue, Seattle, recently stirred up interest for his engagement of UA's "The Barefoot Contessa" by touring a shoeless model through the downtown district with handbag labelled, "It's better with your shoes off. Main 1686." Those who dialed the number were greeted by smooth-voiced theatre operator inviting them to come up and see the film.

"Vera Cruz" Records Launched

NEW YORK—The mammoth music promotion backing United Artists' "Vera Cruz," Hecht-Lancaster Superscope spectacle starring Gary Cooper and Burt Lancaster, was launched last week with national distribution of the first six recordings of the title song by Victor, Decca, Mercury, Capitol, and MGM, it was announced by Francis M. Winikus, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation for United Artists.

The top-budget tune campaign spotlighting UA's first release in Superscope will feature a coordinated publicity and exploitation program employing disc jockey and other radio support, a variety of TV plugs, newspaper coverage, and tie-ins with chain stores, department stores and school music departments. Leo Feist, Inc., publishers of the sheet music, will also join in the drumbeating that will carry to every exchange area of the country.

Dealer aids backing the platter promotion in record stores also tie in with the picture.

African Trip Is Prize In U-I Campaign Test

NEW YORK—Exhibitors in small towns will have an opportunity to compete with exhibitors in large cities and independent theatre showmen will be able to match their talents with circuit theatre exploiters in the new national exhibitor showmanship contest being conducted by U-I in connection with the American release of the new J. Arthur Rank Organization film production, "West Of Zanzibar," it was announced last week by Charles J. Feldman, vice-president and general sales manager.

The prize will be a trip for two to Africa, locale of the picture produced by the Rank Organization in association with the Schlesinger Organization of South Africa. The trip being offered to American showmen for the best American campaign on "West Of Zanzibar" includes visits to major South African cities as well as to the wild game preserves which provide some of the exciting film backgrounds.

In announcing the national showmanship competition, Feldman stressed that every exhibitor in the United States who develops a campaign on the picture will have an equal opportunity to win the prize. He explained that the campaigns and other activity developed by each exhibitor will be judged solely on the originality of the ideas and by the effective way they are developed, regardless of the size of the theatre or the status of the exhibitor. Certain basic campaign material will be provided to all exhibitors who play the picture, but it will be the initiative of the individual theatre man in developing his campaign which will count most with the judges, who will consist of the editors of the leading American motion picture trade publications.

Feldman pointed out that this will be the first exhibitor showmanship contest conducted by U-I or perhaps by any other film company where exhibitors in all types of theatres and situations will have an opportunity to compete on equal terms for one big national prize, the African vacation.

The contest will start with the January national release of "West Of Zanzibar," and conclude June 1, 1955, with the winners to be announced shortly after that deadline date.

Mars Ties In With "Hansel"

NEW YORK—Joining the long list of merchandising tie-ins with Michael Myerberg's RKO release, "Hansel And Gretel," is the Mars Candy Bar Company, manufacturer of Milky Way Candy bars.

One-hundred-thousand 22-inch streamers will be displayed in all candy stores in cities where the Myerberg production is shown. All displays are designed to appeal to the younger set.

MGM publicity directors met with Emery Smith to discuss campaigns for future productions. Among those attending were Arthur Caton, Ivan Fuldauer, Will Caton, Ted Galanter, Judson Moses, and Manny Pearson. . . . The mother of Tom Aspell, Jr., MGM Los Angeles manager, passed on in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Thomas C. McConnell, theatre attorney, and his wife returned from a Paris vacation. . . . The Indiana University film library will distribute Walt Disney color films for educational purposes. . . . The SMPTE was addressed by John Ott, John Ott Pictures, Inc.

Herb Kaufman was named to represent Hal Makelim in this area. . . . The death of Lionel Barrymore recalled memories to William K. Hollander, B and K ad chief. In 1914, when Hollander was movie critic for the Daily News, Barrymore told him he would "never play in pictures."

The second of the open forum luncheons held by Jack Kirsch, president, Allied Theatres of Illinois, and members with sales managers of the majors, was also a decided success. The first meeting was with William C. Gehring, 20th-Fox, and the second with Abe Montague, vice-president and general sales manager, Columbia. President Kirsch said in his introductory remarks, "In establishing this policy, the board of Illinois Allied was of the firm belief that meetings of this calibre, whereby the sales heads of the film companies could gather with the exhibitors of this area, would do much to provide distribution with a closer understanding of the problems of theatre owners on a local level and thus help create a better distributor-exhibitor relationship. Consequently, it is felt that much benefit can be derived from these meetings by both distribution and exhibition for after all both of our branches are greatly dependent upon one another, and neither of us, we believe, can go forward and prosper without the other. . . . Events of the past year, evidenced by the new wide-screen advances made by the industry which helped to reawaken public interest in the movies, had given us great encouragement. But today that feeling of encouragement is being dampened by certain prevailing conditions in the industry as relating to film sales policies to a point where exhibitors now fear that the slight gains that have been made are slowly but surely being taken away from them. In a shrinking production market, which is markedly prevalent in our business today, this kind of a situation is dangerous and can very well spell the doom of our industry—exhibition as well as distribution—and the sooner distribution is made fully cognizant of these dangers and approach them in a spirit of understanding and cooperation, the better it will be for all concerned."

William O'Connell, manager, and Richard Kubick, assistant manager, Highland, recently arranged with local Boy Scouts to set a tepee and totem poles in the lobby as exploitation on "Sitting Bull."

In the censorship case concerning the attack of the Brattle, Cambridge, Mass., on the constitutionality of the rights of the Commissioner of Public Safety in not allowing the Swedish film, "Miss Julie," to play on Sundays, Judge Cahill, Middlesex Superior Court, has sustained the demurrer filed by a respondent, attorney General George Fingold. The effect of the judge's holding is to sustain the argument that the petition was insufficient as a matter of law. The judge, however, gave the attorneys for the Brattle an opportunity to file amendments. The petitioners, Brattle Theatre Company, operated by Cyrus Harvey, Jr., and Bryant Haliday had asked the court for a declaratory judgment invalidating the existing Sunday licensing law in the Commonwealth. The petition was brought about when twice the theatre was turned down for Sunday showings for the film, although it could play weekdays. The respondents, besides Fingold, are Otis M. Whitney, Commissioner of Public Safety, and City Manager John J. Curry. William C. Brewer, Peabody, Koufman, and Brewer, is handling the case for the theatre, while Arnold Salisbury represented Fingold.

Aaron Shindler who has purchased the block of stores housing the State, East Milton, Mass., has placed Maurice Sidman as manager. The buying and booking will be handled by Joseph G. Cohen.

This city entertained five Hollywood celebrities in one week. First, Debbie Reynolds, MGM star, arrived to receive the award of "Woman Of The Year" from the Harvard Hasty Pudding Club. Next, Dorothy Dandridge, starring in 20th-Fox's "Carmen Jones," met the press and film critics at a luncheon at the Hotel Statler, where she gave an interesting interview on the voice dubbing of the film. Then, Ginger Rogers and her husband, Jacques Bergerac, who are co-starred in United Artists' "Twist Of Fate," spent two days in town for press and radio interviews. They met the press at a luncheon at the Ritz Carlton Hotel arranged by publicist Joe Mansfield. On the day before the annual Harvard-Yale football classic, Julian Blaustein, producer, and Daniel Tadarash, screen writer, of the 20th-Fox film, "Desiree," met the press and film critics at a luncheon at the Hotel Statler arranged by publicist Phil Engel.

A permit to build a new drive-in in Medford, Mass., on the property of the Medford Bowl near the Rotary was turned down at a public hearing with many objectors present. They stated that one open air theatre, the Meadow Glen Drive-In, was sufficient for the city. The permit was asked by officers of the Middlesex Amusement Company, who operate theatres in Malden, Mass.

Mrs. Richard Cody, wife of the exhibitor from Montpelier, Vt., is in Easton Hospital for observation. Cody and his sons, Robert and Raymond, operate the Moonlite Drive-In and the Strand, Montpelier; the Twin City Drive-In, Berlin, and the Strong, Burlington, all in Vermont.

George W. Crawford, corporation counsel, stated recently that a proposed ordinance banning the showing of all films not approved by the Motion Picture Association would be void for three reasons. The grounds given are that such action offends the first and fourteenth amendments of the Constitution; attempts an unconstitutional redelegation of the legislative power granted to the Board of Aldermen; and attempts to regulate a matter which transcends purely local concerns and involves statewide legislation policy on which the General Assembly has already spoken. The proposed ordinance was submitted by Martin J. Griffin, president, St. Francis Holy Name Society, and has the endorsement of 12 other Holy Name societies. Crawford's opinion was sought by the Aldermanic Committee of Ordinances after these grounds were advanced by attorneys representing exhibitors at a hearing on the ordinance.

When "The French Line" played the Hamilton, Waterbury, it was charged that the CYO teenagers, who were picketing the theatre, crowded the sidewalk so much that it was unfair to the theatre management and also a hazard to pedestrians. The pickets also were present when the Hamilton played the Saturday matinee for children, when "The French Line" wasn't playing.

Cry Vengeance (5504) MELODRAMA 83M.

ESTIMATE: Okeh programmer.

CAST: Mark Stevens, Martha Hyer, Skip Homeier, Joan Vohs, Douglas Kennedy, Don Haggerty, Cheryl Callaway, Warren Douglas, Mort Mills, John Doucette, Lewis Martin, Dorothy Kennedy. Produced by Lindsley Parsons; directed by Mark Stevens.

STORY: When detective Mark Stevens is released from prison after serving several years for a framed crime, he seeks revenge for the imprisonment and the death of his wife and child. From gunmoll Joan Vohs, he learns that the man he is seeking, Douglas Kennedy, is in Ketchikan, Alaska, under an assumed name, with his daughter, Cheryl Callaway. Actually, the framing and killing were masterminded by Lewis Martin and carried out by Skip Homeier, who is sent after Stevens with instructions to kill both him and Kennedy, as well as Vohs. In Alaska, Stevens is befriended by cafe owner Martha Hyer. Homeier kills Kennedy and fatally wounds Vohs, who is able to pin the crimes on Homeier, clearing Stevens. The latter and Homeier have a running gun fight with Homeier falling to his death into a huge dam. Stevens promises to return to Hyer and Callaway when he cleans up the loose ends concerning Martin.

X-RAY: Moving at a rapid and interest-holding pace, this entry shapes up as good program material with loads of violence, a yarn that is interesting though familiar, suspense, good performances, and good direction by Stevens. The screen play is by Warren Douglas and George Bricker.

AD LINES: "He Had A Mission In Life . . . Get A Killer"; "A Thrilling Tale Of Crime In Two Cities"; "Action . . . Suspense . . . Murder And An Ex-Cop Looking For A Killer."

DECEMBER 1, 1954

STORY: When John Maxwell negotiates a peace treaty with hostile Indians that grants them reserve grass country, he becomes unpopular with cattlemen who want that land. Bill Henry, leader of the cattlemen group, manages to frame Maxwell, who is convicted of murdering an army colonel on the testimony of one of Henry's stooges. The sheriff, George Montgomery, is convinced of Maxwell's innocence and is eager to prove it because the Indian friends of Maxwell plan war if he is executed. Montgomery is led to believe that gunman gambler James Griffith would know the whereabouts of the condemning witness. However, the two are sworn enemies and it remains for Nancy Gates, Maxwell's daughter, to get Griffith to aid. Joining forces, Griffith and Montgomery head for a nearby town where the witness is hiding. On the way, they save Maxwell from being killed by the cattlemen while he is on his way to the execution. Montgomery finds the elusive witness and learns that Henry had killed the army officer and that Maxwell was framed. With this information, he rides to stop the execution. In the meantime Henry and his men are about to lynch Maxwell. Montgomery, Griffith, etc., save Maxwell and kill Henry and most of his men.

X-RAY: A routine western, this involves sharp shooting, intrigue, and action to please audiences satisfied with a fast moving show with plenty of gunslinging. Douglas Heyes wrote the story and screen play. Maximum aspect ratio: 1.85-1.

TIP ON BIDDING: Lowest bracket.

CAST: Gianna Maria Canale, George Marchal, Renato Baldini, Henri Guisel, Irene Papas, Carlotta Sposito, Nerio Bernardi, Olga Solbelli, Alessandro Fersen, Loris Gizzi, Umberto Silvestri. Directed by Riccardo Freda.

STORY: George Marchal, emperor of Byzantium, wanders among his subjects and meets Gianna Maria Canale, who tries to steal his golden pendant. He offers it to her, she accepts it, and disappears. Later, she is jailed as a thief, but escapes by charming the jailor. At the annual chariot races, Marchal decides to handle a chariot, whereupon Canale drugs her friend, driver Renato Baldini, takes over his chariot and wins. As a reward, she is invited to the palace. ### Deep In My Heart (512)

132M.

(Eastman Color)

(Print by Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: High rating.

CAST: Jose Ferrer, Merle Oberon, Helen Traubel, Doe Avedon, Walter Pidgeon, Paul Henreid, Tamara Toumanova, Paul Stewart, Isobel Elsom, David Burns, Jim Backus, guest appearances by Rosemary Clooney, Gene and Fred Kelly, Jane Powell, Vic Damone, Ann Miller, William Olvis, Cyd Charisse, James Mitchell, Howard Keel, Tony Martin, Joan Weldon. Produced by Roger Edens; directed by Stanley Donen.

Story: Jose "Sigmund Romberg" Ferrer, a waiter, impresses Walter "J. J. Shubert" Pidgeon with his talent as a composer and embarks upon a successful musical career, guided by actress-lyricist Merle Oberon. He has hit after hit, all the time keeping in close contact with his friend, Helen Traubel. Ferrer meets socialite Doe Avedon, and despite the interference of her mother, Isobel Elsom, the two after an involved courtship are married. Saddened by the death of Oberon, Ferrer feels that his music is no longer appreciated. However, he is acclaimed at a concert performance of his works in Carnegie Hall.

X-RAY: The well-known musical works of Sigmund Romberg were never seen or heard to better advantage than in this lavish, colorful musical. Jose Ferrer's portrayal of Romberg is warm and humorous, and he also shows remarkably well as a song and dance man. Another high spot in the film is the performance of Helen Traubel, whose personality and singing aid considerably. The musical numbers, comprising selections from Romberg's best shows, are well-staged, and the appearances of a host of musical celebrities of the screen and the record world offer many exploitation possibilities. Despite the long running time, the pace is swift and interest is maintained. All the stops have been pulled out in the production end, and the results should be felt in boxoffices everywhere. The screen play is by Leonard Spigelglass. Maximum aspect ratio: 1.75-1.

TIP ON BIDDING: Higher price.

AD LINES: "Music To Love By, Music To Dream By, Music From The Inspired Pen Of The Incomparable Sigmund Romberg"; "A New Jose Ferrer, Singing, Dancing, Romancing His Way Into Your Heart"; "All The Color Of Old Vienna, But New As Springtime . . . The Sigmund Romberg Story."

Cattle Queen Of Montana (505)

WESTERN
88M.

(Color by Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: Western has names to help.

STORY: Rancher Morris Ankrum, his daughter Barbara Stanwyck, and trusted employe Chubby Johnson arrive in Montana with cowhands and a large herd to file a claim. Stanwyck meets Ronald Reagan, enroute to a job with Gene Evans as a gunman-bodyguard. Indians led by Tony Caruso raid the cattle, kill the cowhands, as well as Ankrum, and wound Johnson and Stanwyck. Evans, in league with Caruso, arrives to rifle Ankrum's body of claim papers. Lance Fuller, son of the Blackfoot chief, happens by on the way home from white man's school and takes both to the village where they recuperate. Yvette Dugay, Indian girl, hates Stanwyck for the attention paid by Fuller. Stanwyck has no proof Evans is guilty and tries to get same. She is aided by Reagan, who sends her to the army with evidence, but learns of a meeting between Evans and Caruso. She rides to warn Fuller and finds him taking over as tribe chief upon the death of his father and his winning a fight with Caruso. Reagan admits that he was an undercover agent for the army. He, Stanwyck, and Fuller and his men are instrumental in cleaning things up by killing Evans and Caruso.

X-RAY: A complicated yarn with lots of riding, shooting, intrigue, Indians good and bad, etc., is to be found here, along with average performances, direction, and production. The names should be of assistance in the selling and the color helps. Much of what transpires is familiar, but average outdoor meller fans shouldn't mind too much. The screenplay is by Howard Estabrook and Robert Blees, with the original story by Thomas Blackburn.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program price.

AD LINES: "She Had A Way With A Gun And Men"; "Action . . . Indians . . . Rustlers . . . Army Intrigue . . . In Beautiful Technicolor"; "She Wanted Revenge And Justice . . . And Got Both As Well As Thrills And Romance."

Trouble In The Glen

COMEDY DRAMA
91M.

(Trucolor by Consolidated)
(Made in Scotland)

ESTIMATE: Scottish comedy-drama will need plenty of selling.

CAST: Margaret Lockwood, Orson Welles, Forrest Tucker, Victor McLaglen, John McCallum, Eddie Byrne, Archie Duncan, Ann Gudrun, Moultrie Kelsall, Margaret McCourt, Alex McCrindle, Mary Mackenzie, Peter Sinclair, Jack Watling. Produced and directed by Herbert Wilcox.

STORY: Orson Welles returns to the Scottish Highlands, setting himself up as Laird in the castle of his ancestors. Enraged by the manner of the men of the area, he closes a road used by them for many years. American Forrest Tucker, friendly with the Scots, including Scottish gypsies Victor McLaglen and his son, John McCallum, returns to visit his small daughter, Margaret McCourt, crippled by polio, and ignorant of the fact that he is her father. She is heartbroken since the road has been closed and Tucker protests to Welles, in the process falling in love with his daughter, Margaret Lockwood. A civil war threatens, but after Tucker whips Welles' foreman, Archie Duncan, Welles restores peace by reopening the road. Tucker and Lockwood clinch, and McCourt is on the road to recovery.

X-RAY: The scenes of Scottish countryside are quite impressive in excellent Trucolor, but the film is slow paced and lacks action. The promise of a real battle never is fulfilled and in spots the story becomes oversentimental. The film's best chances would seem to be in class spots, where the interesting locale and the Scottish customs can be exploited. The screen play is by Frank S. Nugent from the story by Maurice Walsh. Maximum aspect ratio: 1.85-11.

AD LINES: "Another Wonderful Romance From The Author Of 'The Quiet Man'"; "Long Rolling Scottish Hills And Short Fiery Scottish Tempers Set The Screen Ablaze With Excitement"; "He Was Her Knight In Shining Armor In A World Full Of Villains."

WESTERN
75M.

(Color)

ESTIMATE: For the lower half.

CAST: Jim Davis, Kelly Ryan, Bill Williams, George Cleveland, Elisha Cook, Guinn Williams, Sara Haden, Nelson Leigh, George Barrows. Produced and directed by Wesley Barry.

STORY: A stage coach escorted by marshal Jim Davis is ambushed and his brother is killed by outlaws led by Bill Williams. The trail leads him to the ranch of Nelson Leigh, old outlaw. Leigh is enraged to learn of the participation in the robbery by Williams, Elisha Cook, and George Cleveland, and he attempts to turn them over to Davis but is killed. Leigh's daughter, Kelly Ryan, believes that Davis did the killing. She moves into town and Davis falls in love with her. Cleveland wants to go straight, but Williams and his men kill him. Davis is disarmed by Ryan, who goes off with Williams. Davis takes up the trail, which shows Ryan taking part in a number of hold-ups. When Cook is sacrificed so that Williams can get away, she sees him in his true colors and decides to escape. She also learns he killed her father. Davis and Williams have it out with the outlaw getting killed. Ryan informs Davis she is ready to go back for her punishment and asks him to wait.

X-RAY: There's enough riding, shooting, intrigue and color to satisfy western fans who are not too demanding. Performances, direction, story, and production are average. The screen play is by Sam Roeca.

AD LINES: "She Had A Way With Men And A Gun"; "She Got What She Wanted"; "Hit The Trail To Action And Adventure With 'The Outlaw's Daughter'."

The Yellow Mountain (510)

MELODRAMA
78M.

(Print by Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: Average programmer for the duallers.

CAST: Lex Barker, Mala Powers, Howard Duff, William Demarest, John McIntyre, Leo Gordon, Hal K. Dawson, Dayton Lummis. Produced by Ross Hunter; directed by Jesse Hibbs.

STORY: Howard Duff, saloon owner, gets hold of some promising mining claims at about the same time that a former partner, Lex Barker, shows up to get back some cash Duff appropriated. Barker decides to remain as a partner, figuring to aid Duff in his fight with John McIntire, owner of a mine on the same mountain, who wants to close a deal with Duff making him a limited partner. Crooked attorney Dayton Lummis comes to work for Duff, as does William Demarest, owner of a worthless mine of which he is continually boasting, and father to Mala Powers, in whom Duff and Barker are both interested. Barker is ambushed by McIntire's men and left for dead. McIntire forces Duff to join him, and Barker suspects Duff of being in on the ambush so he could have all the gold as well as Powers. Barker lends Demarest some money during a card game and he signs over the mine to him. Barker turns out to be the legal owner of all the gold found in the mines owned by Duff and McIntire and his gunmen. Duff kills McIntire while Barker takes care of the rest. Powers confesses her love for Barker while he forgives Duff and offers him a share in the mine.

X-RAY: A standard-type entry, this offers enough action, intrigue and atmosphere, as well as a fairly interesting yarn and adequate performances. The screen play is by George Zuckerman and Russell Hughes based on a story by Harold Channing Wire, with the adaptation by Robert Blees. Maximum aspect ratio: 2-1.

AD LINES: "Gold Fever Drives Men And Women Crazy"; "They Were Friends And Partners Until Gold And A Pretty Gal Turned Up"; "Action . . . Gunplay . . . Adventure . . . Romance On 'The Yellow Mountain'."

(Reissue)

ESTIMATE: Reissue has names.

CAST: Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, John Ridgely, Martha Vickers, Dorothy Malone, Peggy Knudsen, Regis Toomey, Charles Waldron, Charles D. Brown, Bob Steele, Elisha Cook, Jr., Louis Jean Heydt, Sonia Darrin, James Flavin, Thomas Jackson, Tom Rafferty, Theodore Von Eltz, Dan Wallace, Joy Barlowe, Tom Fadden, Ben Welden, Trevor Bardette. Produced and directed by Howard Hawks.

STORY: Private detective Humphrey Bogart is retained by proud, elderly Charles Waldron to get his younger daughter, Martha Vickers, out of the clutches of blackmailer-bookdealer Theodore Von Eltz. He finds Vickers weirdly dressed with evidence that she had been posing for risqué pictures, although the film is gone. Detective Regis Toomey reports that Waldron's car and chauffeur have been found at the bottom of the ocean several miles away. Waldron's other daughter, Lauren Bacall, puts Bogart on the trail of blackmailer Louis Heydt, and Bogart forces him to turn over the missing prints. However, while Bogart is still in Heydt's room, Heydt is murdered. Bogart captures the killer and turns him over to Toomey. All through the investigation, Bogart keeps running into gambler-racketeer John Ridgely, whom Bogart thinks has something on Bacall. Bogart learns Ridgely's wife, Peggy Knudsen, has been hiding out; tries to find out why; and is captured by Ridgely's henchmen. After a fight with his captors, Bogart gets a confession from Ridgely in which it is shown that he has held over Bacall the threat of exposure of having knowledge that Vickers had helped kill the dead chauffeur. Bogart maneuvers things so that Ridgely is killed by his own men, meanwhile getting to Toomey for help. Bogart decides to take the future with Bacall, and sends Vickers away for medical treatment.

X-RAY: When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of August, 1946, it was said: "The stars do okeh in this exciting, adventure-laden mystery that is bound to hypo any boxoffice. Fans addicted to this type of film fare will get their fill of mystery, murder, two-fisted action, the Bogart brand of romance, etc. Performances by the cast are uniformly good, as are direction, production, photography, etc." The story is by Raymond Chandler.

TIP ON BIDDING: Usual reissue price.

AD LINES: "Humphrey Bogart At His Fistic Best"; "Whether It Be A Fight Or A Romance, Bogart Comes Out On Top"; "Brought Back So You May Enjoy It Again."

Saratoga Trunk (406)

COMEDY DRAMA
135M.

(Reissue)

ESTIMATE: Names should help reissue.

CAST: Gary Cooper, Ingrid Bergman, Flora Robson, Jerry Austin, John Warburton, Florence Bates, Curt Bois, John Abbott, Ethel Griffies, Maria Shelton, Helen Freeman, Sophie Huxley, Fred Essler, Louis Payne, Sarah Edwards, Adrienne D'Anbricourt, Jacqueline DeWitt. A Hal B. Wallis production; directed by Sam Wood.

STORY: Ingrid Bergman, illegitimate daughter of a romance between a wealthy New Orleans socialite and her mother, who was sent into virtual exile in France by her father's family, returns in 1875 to revenge the death of her mother. She takes a house with Flora Robson, her mulatto servant, and Jerry Austin, dwarf, and meets Gary Cooper, cowboy gambler. Cooper and Bergman have a yen for each other, but she sticks to her business at hand, to embarrass her father's family and to make a wealthy marriage. She succeeds in the first, with the family paying her to get out of town, buying her house, and paying for a stone on her mother's grave. Cooper leaves for Saratoga Springs, N. Y., for the gambling and racing season, and later sends Bergman the dope on wealthy John Warburton, who is battling for possession of the Saratoga Trunk, important state railroad line. Bergman wants to marry Warburton for his money. Eventually, Cooper moves in on the railroad deal, and takes a gang to fight the Warburton opposition. Warburton is wise to Bergman's scheme, but asks her to marry him anyway. Before she can accept, Cooper, who has won the railroad fight, arrives with the unconscious Austin, who had gone with him. Bergman realizes she loves only Cooper.

X-RAY: When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of November, 1945, it was said: "With a story by Edna Ferber that is ideal movie material, with the Cooper and Bergman names, with excellent production, this will provide a busy time for the boxoffices. It has plenty of appeal for all types of audiences. Sam Wood's splendid direction also is apparent, and the whole thing spells dough."

TIP ON BIDDING: Usual reissue price.

AD LINES: "Gary Cooper And Ingrid Bergman At Their Best In The Sensational Novel By Edna Ferber"; "The Story Of A Fight For Love And Riches"; "Brought Back So You May Enjoy It Once Again."

Desperate Decision

DRAMA
84M.

(Times)

(French-made) (English dialogue)

ESTIMATE: Fair import for the art houses.

CAST: Daniele Delorme, Henry Vidal, Nicolas Vogel, Maurice Ronet, Jean Debucourt, Michele Cordone, Jacqueline Porel, Marcel Journet, Marcel Charvey. Directed by Yves Allegret.

STORY: In a dream, Daniele Delorme, shy servant girl in a convent near Dublin, sees her brother, a republic revolutionary, in danger so she immediately sets out for the city to find him, but at the moment of the dream, her brother is executed by his fellow conspirators as a traitor. Delorme comes to the meeting place of the revolutionaries, where she meets leader Henri Vidal, who had killed her brother. She puts her trust in him. He brings her back to the convent through a ruse. In a subsequent sabotage attempt, the police rout the rebels. Delorme, at the convent, is made to think that her brother was killed by the police, and vows in revenge to assassinate the chief of police. She returns to Dublin, but Vidal thwarts the plan. However, a dragnet has been put out for him and to escape he and Delorme hide out in her brother's old apartment. Some children spot them and call the police. Vidal tries to make her escape alone, but she will not leave him. In desperation, he tells her that it was he who had killed her brother. She shoots him.

X-RAY: Starting out as a ironic story of a revolution, this falters along the way by involving itself with a psychologically disturbed young girl. The direction is not so much concerned with melodramatic thrills but rather builds up to a dramatic climax that is just ineffective. Jacques wrote the screen play from a novel, "La Jeune Folle," by Catherine Beauchamp.

The Heart Of The Matter

DRAMA
100M.

(Associated Artists)

(English-made)

ESTIMATE: For the art and class spots.

STORY: Trevor Howard, a deputy police commissioner in a torrid British colony in west Africa, has served for many years, and his wife, Elizabeth Allan, has become haggard as a result of living in a society that she detests. Howard takes pity on her and tries to arrange a friendship between her and government employe Denholm Elliott. Howard borrows money from a disreputable trader and sends her for a holiday in South Africa. In her absence, Howard is assigned the routine duty of meeting and caring for a boatload of survivors from a ship wreck. Among these survivors is young widow, Mary Schell, toward whom Howard at first has a protective sympathy. Schell's charm soon turns this sympathy into love and Howard is then torn by duty to his wife and love for Schell. He sends the latter an indiscreet letter which falls into dishonest hands and he is thus blackmailed into betraying his own integrity by aiding a diamond smuggling operation. When Allan returns, he is plunged into a deeper sense of guilt and powerlessness to help the two women who look to him for happiness. His guilt is also strengthened by his own attachment to superficialities of religion. To take his own life seems the only way out for him, but this, too, would hurt those close to him. He arranges it, therefore, to appear as if his suicide was really death at the hands of hoodlums in the course of his duty.

X-RAY: Based on a novel by Graham Greene, this boasts a talented cast. The story is a little weak and sometimes involved while the characters are far from convincing, but African backgrounds may lend color to the goings-on. This film's appeal will be limited to art and class spots where the names may have some value in selling. The screen play is by Lesley Storm.

AD LINES: "Another Great Novel By Graham Greene Comes To The Screen With A Talented Cast"; "His Sin Was Adultery . . . His Punishment Death"; "Pursued By The Guilt Of His Own Infidelity."

The Fast and The Furious

MELODRAMA
72M.

(American Releasing Corporation)

ESTIMATE: For action spots and duallers.

CAST: John Ireland, Dorothy Malone, Bruce Carlisle, Iris Adrian, Marshall Bradford. Produced by Roger Corman, directed by Edwards Sampson and John Ireland.

STORY: Truck driver John Ireland runs a truck off a road and a man is killed. He is blacklisted by others in the trucking business although cleared by the police, and takes to the open road. He meets Dorothy Malone and learns she is taking her Jaguar for entry at the Pebble Beach International Sports Car races. In a brush with a stranger, Ireland knocks him down and the stranger cuts his head open. Ireland, not wanting another brush with the law, commandeers both Malone and her car. Ireland becomes driver of Malone's car in the race. Recognized in the middle of the race, Ireland makes a dash for south of the border. His racing rival offers his service to grateful cops, who step aside since they can't go to Mexico anyway, and the rival chases after Ireland, but gets run off the road. Ireland helps his rival. Malone catches up and falls in love with Ireland, tells him to go back and face the music and she will wait for him.

X-RAY: A sport car opus, actually filmed at Pebble Beach International Sports Car races, this has a hackneyed plot, but there is good action and the hot rod set will get a kick out of it. The screen play is by Jerome Odlum and Jean Howell.

AD LINES: "High Speed Excitement As A Wanted Man Meets A Wanting Woman"; "Killer—Then Death Driver"; "A Thrilling Race-Car Story Filmed On The Scene."

TWO REEL

Comedy

FOLLOW THE BLONDE. RKO—Leon Errol Reissues. 18m. First released in 1946, this has Leon Errol and a friend returning from a fishing trip, and when Errol borrows a car to go home, he finds a drunken blonde as a passenger. She screams when he tries to put her out and he decides to take her home. The car's speed attracts a motorcycle cop, whom the blonde recognizes as her husband. He gets the license number and hails the owner into court. Errol defends his friend, saying he was looking for a minister to marry him and his girl. The judge offers to do this and suspend the sentence, so the friend forces Errol to masquerade as a woman. As they are about to be wed, the friend's wife shows up and upsets the apple cart. The judge agrees to parole Errol and his friend in the custody of their wives. FAIR. (53706).

HOME CANNING. RKO—Edgar Kennedy Reissues. 16m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of September, 1948, it was said, "Edgar Kennedy decides that his economic stability calls for some home canning in an effort to save some dough. Kennedy is soon disturbed by the painter, who forces him to vacate to the kitchen of an absent neighbor. Things progress smoothly until the pressure cooker explodes, and ruins the kitchen. Adding to the confusion is the loss of a diamond by Kennedy's wife. It winds up with Kennedy paying more than it ever would have cost him otherwise. FAIR." (53506).

Color Novelty

MARINERS AHOY! Warners—Technicolor Specials. 17m. The Girl Scouts go to sea in this featurette that follows a troop of Girl Scout mariners on a cruise in the brigantine, "Yankee." The scouts learn the fine points of seafaring from the ship's captain Irving M. Johnson. They carry out shiphand duties and even take control of the ship's wheel under the captain's watchful eye. The ship puts in at a number of harbors in the New England area that have historical points of interest. The girls learn a lot and enjoy themselves aplenty before they return to their home base. GOOD. (2003).

Novelty

CAMERA HUNTING. Warners—Classics Of The Screen. 19m. Some unusual footage from all over the world is combined here including shots of the famous Florida Everglades giving intimate views of the wild life. Another sequence shows an exhibition of mechanical dolls that operate on the principle of watches and react in amazingly lifelike movements. Arizona's irrigation system that today boasts Roosevelt Dam followed the first efforts of an ancient Indian culture that had once planned and executed a system to make it possible to grow vegetation on the desert. The final sequence reviews the life of Thomas Edison with original films by the inventor of the motion picture camera. GOOD. (2102).

Serial

RIDING WITH BUFFALO BILL. Columbia—Serial. 15 chapters. Marshall Reed, Rick Vallin, Joanne Rio, Shirley Whitney, Jack Ingram, William Fawcett, Gregg Barton, Ed Coch, Steve Ritch, Pierce Lyden, Michael Fox, Lee Roberts. Produced by Sam Katzman; directed by Spencer G. Bennet; screen play by George H. Plympton. Chapter One—"The Ridin' Terror From St. Joe." 25m. With Marshall Reed as Buffalo Bill, this serial begins with a gun raid on a wagon in lawless western territory. Reed happens by and saves Shirley Whitney and her brother from the badmen. When the brother turns to the villains, Whitney tries to make it back home, but she is caught in a horse stampede. Reed saves her. This has action and gun play that will be adequate for serial requirements. FAIR. (7120).

ONE REEL

Color Cartoons

FOXY DUCKLING. Warners—Blue Ribbon Hit Parades Reissues. 7m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of September, 1947, it was said: "A fox is driven to desperation in his efforts to fall asleep. After a good deal of twisting and turning, he discovers that what he needs is a duck down filled pillow, and so packs his bags in quest of a duck. He swoops down upon his potential victim, but soon learns that he has let himself in for something. He is tricked at every turn, and the fadeout finds him completely defeated. GOOD." (2303).

FROM A TO Z-Z-Z. Warners—Merrie Melodies. 7m. A little school boy given to daydreaming has one of his fantasies interrupted by his teacher, who asks him to solve an arithmetic problem, but this only sends him into another wild dream. It seems the boy is always getting into a world of fantasy on the slightest provocation and it remains for the teacher to bring him out momentarily. This is a better than average cartoon that displays imagination in its gags and an original type story. EXCELLENT. (2704).

MY LITTLE DUCKAROO. Warners—Merrie Melodies. 7m. In the fashion of the typical western hero, Daffy Duck, calling himself the masked avenger, along with Porky Pig, his sidekick, sets out to capture a desperate outlaw. The outlaw, however, is unimpressed by Daffy's efforts to take him in which confuses our hero no end. GOOD. (2706).

QUACK SHOT. Warners—Merrie Melodies. 7m. Elmer Fudd sets out for a day of duck hunting but after he bags his first bird, Daffy Duck puts in an appearance warning him not to molest any more of the feathered creatures. Paying no heed to this warning he continues, and Daffy tries to teach him a lesson by utilizing various warfare devices. They all backfire against the duck. Fudd finally eliminates his tormentor, but decides upon a less strenuous form of sport, fishing. After he makes his first catch, a big fish comes up to chastise him indicating a strong union against him. GOOD. (2705).

THE SHELL SHOCKED EGG. Warners—Blue Ribbon Hit Parade Reissues. 7m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of August, 1948, it was said: "Mother turtle plants her eggs in the sand to be hatched from the sun's warmth. During a cloudy spell, one walks off half hatched, and goes looking for a warm spot so that he can get the rest of the way out of his shell. Crawling under a dog, the dog thinks he has laid an egg, and tangles with the chickens. All the while the half-hatched turtle's mother and brothers continue to dig for him in the sand, finally find him, and all are happy but the dog. FAIR." (2304).

Musical

SOUTH AMERICAN SWAY. Warners—Melody Master Bands Reissues. 9m. When first reviewed in THE SERVICESECTION of March, 1944, it was said of this reissue: "This consists of the following numbers: 'Gotta Have My Rhythm,' 'Cachita,' 'Mexican Magic,' 'When Yuba Plays The Rhumba On The Tuba,' and 'Negra Bila Conga.' There is a bit of singing and dancing, but for the most part it is just a band reel. FAIR." (2803).

IT'S EITHER THE SMOG OR STUPIDITY

WE LIKE THE ATTENTION that Harrison's Reports gave to the ridiculous views on exhibition as carried in Billy Wilkerson's Hollywood Reporter of Nov. 19.

Because the latter is published for studio rather than theatre readers, and we doubt whether many theatremen this side of the Sierra strip ever see it, we reprint excerpts for the amusement of our theatre subscribers. They certainly should be aware of the kind of pap being fed to the production fraternity.

About percentage selling Billy states that the distributor has to:

"suffer a deduction of the expenses of running the theatre, with the exhibitor heaping every conceivable charge he can find to pile onto this house expense." And that, "in too many cases the film outfit has to guarantee the theatre a certain amount of profit, with varying forms of splits that to us, in the overall, gave the distributor and producer the bad end of the deal."

Billy then scolds distributors for allowing themselves "to be shoved into a defensive position in all the trading," and advocates "a big revamp" in distributor-exhibitor relations. And then comes the gem of erudite thinking:

"The distributor and his producer MUST get off the defensive in distributor-exhibitor relations because their gamble is becoming too great, production costs have zoomed to unbelievable heights, and the theatremen MUST be forced to shoulder more of the burden, much more than he has. He's not only got to give more equitable terms on the play of top product, but he must be compelled to go out and get more business on these shows . . ."

Now, we've heard about the Smog being pretty bad on the West Coast and that doctors have forecast some pretty bad physical effects, but it now looks to us as though one of the symptoms may be a deterioration of executive minds.

Billy Wilkerson has been around a long while, and from everything we have heard he certainly knows the facts of life. He doesn't need theatre owner group resolutions or trade paper editorials to know that over 6,000 theatres in this country have closed since 1946. The Department of Commerce has already stated the total as 6,200. He also must know that under "the bad end of the deal," and with distributors in the "defensive position in all trading," top product is only sold on percentage with overhead audited by distributors. That under such audits, theatremen are often told their salaries are too high, that they are paying too much rent under their recorded lease, and that their book overhead accepted by Uncle Sam's tax boys is not acceptable to the distributors. That none except the large, high admissioned, first-run investments in bricks and mortar can live on 50 per cent of the gross, yet broadcast across all sizes and all runs are terms such as 50, 60, 70-30-10 per cent, etc. That scarcity of product, rather than quality or big box-office gross, is forcing theatremen to overpay. And he can look at the stock market and the earnings reports and see that every producer, while making less features, is living in a state of prosperity transcending all previous eras.

Even surrounded by the swimming pools, sport cars, night clubs, glamour girls, and incorporated personalities that typify Hollywood, Billy Wilkerson must know that the theatre side of this industry is in trouble.

So it can't be stupidity. It must be the Smog!

A "SEX PICTURE" CO-OP

WHILE WE DOUBT whether the Department of Justice will pay any attention, we hear that a new cooperative pooling of so-called "sex pictures" is under way.

Under the terms of an agreement reached between four of these fringe operators, the costs of legal fees for contesting state censorship edicts and local police actions affecting any one picture will be split four ways, and the profits will likewise be divided. When a suit is won, instead of dumping the whole unsavory pot into the particular area, to compete with one another and satiate the limited public "taste" for such fare, there will be an orderly playoff over a period of months or years, with all partners divvying up the profits regardless of which pictures make them.

So, in the removal of competition, everyone profits, which seems to be the only objective.

A sidelight worthy of a grin is the position of a law office that recently "opened" a censored state on a contingent fee based on the future gross film rental realized. There now must be either a cash settlement or a fifth partner in that state.

NEW YORK By Mel Konecoff

PRODUCER ABROAD: Darryl F. Zanuck, production head at 20th-Fox, last week returned from a brief trip to England where he discussed forthcoming product and the effect of CinemaScope on the theatregoing public, exhibitors, and producers.

Public: He found it eager for a look at the new look in films which meant very favorable boxoffice returns which resulted in business increases of between 50 and 80 per cent, with "The Robe" not being taken into consideration. He termed the increases "amazing." He found that once the public became accustomed to CinemaScope, they were reluctant to go back to viewing old style films, and he said letters have been pouring in by the thousands commending the change.

Exhibitors: Theatres are being equipped at the rate of 40 per month using British-made equipment, with stereophonic sound being requested by 75 per cent of the exhibitors as compared to the 50-50 split here or the 100 per cent demand for it in the Orient. Despite the increase in business, because of house limitations and the fact that only eight features were released this year as compared to 24 last year, company revenue is behind to the tune of two-and-a-half millions. Come next March, however, it is expected that income will be at an all-time high for the company.

Fox is not selling to the Rank Theatres but instead has made its features available to independent exhibitors in Britain. The result is that a third major "circuit" has come into existence that has been termed the "Fox circuit" or "CinemaScope circuit" although there is no connection between theatres. He vowed that

McGee Addresses

Oklahoma Conclave

OKLAHOMA CITY—Pat McGee, TOA vice-president, and general manager, Cooper Foundation theatres, Denver, speaking earlier this week before the Theatre Owners of Oklahoma convention, repeated his plea for the union of Allied and TOA. "The people at the top of both Allied and TOA should make more strenuous efforts to get together, and I don't care what they name the organization or who the officers may be," McGee said.

McGee also offered a solution to distributors who claimed that they could not afford to send salesmen to call on the small exhibitor. This solution, which McGee attributed to Colonel H. A. Cole, co-chairman, COMPO tax committee, is the formation in each distribution center of a cooperative buying and booking office, which would have as its accounts only those small situations which are too costly to sell and need low flat rentals. "The head," said McGee, "should be a man acceptable to distribution, should be paid a salary commensurate with his duties, but have no participation in the proceeds of the theatres he buys for and no share in the savings on film rentals."

Although McGee continued to favor the setting up of a formal arbitration and conciliation machinery, he suggested that "each distribution center should set up within the exhibitor organizations a committee to listen to abuses and grievances, and attempt to conciliate them right now."

Commenting on the attendance report released recently by COMPO, which showed that nationally attendance and boxoffice figures have increased, McGee stated that "90 per cent of the theatres in America are selling fewer tickets, and that a few big pictures in a few big theatres are making the difference."

Disney Answers TOA

NEW YORK—Roy Disney last week in a reply to E. D. Martin, TOA head, who had assailed Walt Disney's Buena Vista Distributing Company over the sound policy for "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea," stated that "it was physically impossible to have optical prints . . . simultaneous at the beginning with stereophonic." Even if this were not so, Disney asserted, "I believe it only good business and common sense to present our picture first in stereophonic sound which is an integral part of the story with dramatic values just as much as any other factor so that on its first presentation in de luxe houses it should be presented with stereophonic sound if at all."

Disney added that he was cognizant of the problems of the little theatremen "and most sympathetic," but repeated that first-runs of the film throughout the country will be in "the best way that it could be presented and for which it was produced."

Moderate Business Reported On B'way

NEW YORK—Fair to good business was indicated in the Broadway first runs last weekend.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"TRACK OF THE CAT" (Warners). Paramount expected the opening week to hit $31,000.

"DESIREE" (20th-Fox). Roxy reported $30,213 for Thursday through Sunday, with the third week bound to top $44,000.

"WHITE CHRISTMAS" (Paramount). Radio City Music Hall, with a stage show, claimed $85,000 for Thursday through Sunday, with the eighth, and last, week sure to reach $125,000.

"SABRINA" (Paramount). Criterion dropped to $11,000 on the 11th week.

"CARMEN JONES" (20th-Fox). Rivoli expected the sixth week to tally $30,000.

"THE ASPHALT JUNGLE" (MGM); "BATTLEGROUNDS" (MGM). Globe was sure of $14,500 with these two reissues.

"SITTING BULL" (UA). Mayfair expected the second week to reach $22,000.

"ON THE WATERFRONT" (Columbia). Astor was sure of $16,000 on the 19th week.

"A STAR IS BORN" (Warners). Victoria claimed $31,000 for the eighth week.

"THE LAST TIME I SAW PARIS" (MGM). Capitol was heading toward a $36,000 third week.

"PHFFT" (Columbia). Loew's State reported $16,000 for the fourth week.

Zanuck Reports On 20th-Fox

NEW YORK—Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production, 20th-Fox, last week upon his return from a trip to England reported at a press conference that the company will make as many features next year as can be turned out effectively. He refused to be pinned down to any specific number, insisting that there will be no mass production of product, shortage or no.

The number will depend on stories, casting, and subject matter, and he expressed a desire to make not less than 20 top films during the year which, when coupled with outside acquisitions, could bring the company total to between 24 and 30 features for the calendar year.

Zanuck reported that pictures are no longer being made just to keep the overhead down, and he offered to prove to exhibitors that since the advent of CinemaScope, they have had longer and more profitable runs. In fact, except for the very small situations, their playing time has been doubled on individual films.

Zanuck said that they are working on all phases toward easing the print situation which has been plaguing all companies, and he reported working with Eastman Kodak on the possibility of making a near-perfect duplicate negative from the original so that the quality would be practically the same as the original, and then more prints could be struck off at twice the rate.

Martin Assails Disney Sound Policy For "Leagues"

NEW YORK—A telegram sent last week by E. D. Martin, TOA president, to Walt Disney, Walt Disney Productions, and Roy Disney, Buena Vista Distributing Company, expressed concern over the announced release policy for "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea."

Martin said that the policy of limiting release in the first 90 days to magnetic stereophonic prints only "will create a new and objectionable system of clearance creating further exhibitor hardships." The telegram pointed out that thousands of theatres that do not have magnetic sound equipment for financial or other reasons will be deprived of the film and stressed that these are the theatres hurt the most from low profits and the product shortage.

Martin continued, "Your isolated policy will reopen the wound recently healed after the battle of magnetic stereophonic sound for CinemaScope productions. We urge you to reconsider and to release this so vitally needed film so that it is made available to all theatres in their normal release pattern."

Paramount Division Heads Meet

NEW YORK—A special meeting of Paramount's divisional sales managers was called by A. W. Schwalberg, president, Paramount Film Distributing Corporation, to start early this week at the company's Hollywood studio.

Purpose of the meeting was to lay the groundwork for the marketing of "the unprecedentedly strong Paramount product lineup for 1955." The executives in attendance, including officials from the home office, were to view several of the 1955 releases that have been completed and "rushes" on films currently in production and scheduled for release next year.

Jerry Pickman, vice-president in charge of advertising, publicity, and exploitation, was to address the division managers and outline merchandising of the product to be released in 1955.

Celebration Intended To Spur Ticket Sales, Create Public Appreciation for The Place Of Theatres In Communities

NEW YORK—Charles Reagan, MGM vice-president in charge of domestic sales, outlined plans for a nationwide campaign saluting exhibitors, to be called "MGM's 1955 Motion Picture Theatre Celebration," at a trade press luncheon held yesterday (Dec. 7) at the Hotel Astor. He also called attention to the success of the company's Ticket Selling Workshop program, which has been drawing increasingly large numbers of exhibitors, and estimated that 25 to 30 such sessions would be conducted throughout the country in 1951.

Reagan was highly optimistic concerning the industry's position in 1955, calling attention to top product on the way from MGM and other companies, and stressing the importance of improved selling techniques. The "Celebration" is designed with this in mind, Reagan asserted, and will be backed by the slogan, "There's More Fun At The Movies."

Exhibitors will be encouraged to utilize the opportunity afforded by the campaign "to make every effort, in any direction which occurs to each of them to accent his theatre's place in the community," creating "a nationwide wave of appreciation on the part of the public."

Reagan stressed that the salute is intended for the local community and theatre, "not the glorification of Hollywood." He estimated that 15,000 theatres will participate in the "Forward in '55" campaign, set to run through April with the hope that the momentum gained will carry through the year. He praised theatre men for backing recent improvements through investments in new equipment and said the campaign was set to encourage the "necessary advertising and promotion required to properly sell every attraction."

Howard Dietz and Dan Terrell are consulting in Hollywood with Dore Schary and Howard Strickling, Reagan revealed, on production of a film to publicize the salute; Si Seadler is preparing an advertising program; and Emery Austin and his staff will spearhead the effort in the field.

Reagan hailed the success of the Workshop program, conceived by Mike Simons as an answer to the need for "constructive, purposeful meetings to give theatre men practical ideas they might take home and turn into extra boxoffice revenue."

Welch Battles Censors In Mass. Court Test

BOSTON—An assault on the censorship laws in this city and in the state was made in Federal Court last week by counsel for RKO, distributors of the film, "The French Line," which has been banned by the Mayor of Boston, the Mayor of Lynn, and for Sunday showings throughout the Commonwealth by the Commissioner of Public Safety.

Joseph N. Welch, attorney for RKO, argued before a three-judge court comprising Chief Judge Calvert Magruder and Federal Judges William McCarthy and Charles Wyzanski that a preliminary injunction should be enforced restraining Massachusetts officials from refusing to grant licenses to show the film without the deletions asked.

"Massachusetts has motion picture censorship in its most exquisite and painful form," said Welch. "I have never seen 'French Line' but I am interested in whether or not I have the right to see it. It has been shown all over the United States and I am not aware of any injurious impact on our civilization. . . . It seems that in this state only a whisper by an official in command is necessary to ban a film."

Welch contended that the Massachusetts statute under which officials ban films is unconstitutional. He told the court he is not asking for damages but would be content with a temporary injunction. He is attempting to have the suit heard in the federal court, asserting that the plaintiff has lost several hundred thousands of dollars by the banning of the film in Boston and Lynn and on Sundays throughout the Commonwealth.

Attorneys for the defendants urged the court to dismiss the suit on the grounds that the remedy should be in the state court and not in the federal court.

Ohio Censorship Unlawful

COLUMBUS, O.—The State Supreme Court last week declared the 41-year-old Ohio film censorship law "unreasonable and unlawful." By a one-vote margin, the Court failed to rule the state law unconstitutional, six votes being required on constitutional questions.

The decision came on appeals by RKO to void censor cuts on "The French Line" and "Son Of Sinbad," and by Capitol Enterprises, Washington, on Hallmark's "Mom And Dad."

Attorney General William O'Neill is expected to rule at once on whether censorship functions should end immediately.

R. M. Eyman, chief, Ohio Censor Board, said, "We will have to seek new legislation which will be constitutional and which will give us the right to make certain cuts and rejections in films."

Republic And Wilcox Part

LONDON—Herbert Wilcox and Republic have ended their co-production and distribution deal, it was announced last week. In the eastern hemisphere, Wilcox's Imperadio pictures will be distributed by British Lion, and in the western hemisphere by United Artists. Republic will release one final Wilcox picture, "Trouble In The Glen."

20th-Fox Net Earnings Soar In 39-Week Report

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation and wholly-owned subsidiaries last week reported consolidated net earnings of $5,732,063 for the 39 weeks ended on Sept. 25, 1954. This amounted to $2.17 per share on the 2,644,486 shares of common stock outstanding.

Comparable operations for the 39 weeks of 1953 showed net earnings of $1,143,037 which amounted to $.52 on the 2,769,486 shares of common stock then outstanding.

The net earnings for the third quarter amounted to $2,635,518 as compared with net earnings of $1,274,728 for the third quarter of 1953. The net earnings for the second quarter of 1954 were $1,048,515.

Amortization of film costs has been taken on the same basis as in 1953.

Zenith Asks Quick Toll TV Approval

WASHINGTON—The subscription television controversy entered a new phase last week as the Zenith Radio Corporation requested the Federal Communications Commission to authorize immediate commercial operation of the medium by properly equipped TV stations.

The petition asserted that the public interest would best be served if prolonged hearings were eliminated. It was pointed out that toll-TV "would make possible a new and better kind of programming that will not duplicate or interfere with present commercial programs."

Zenith also said that rising production costs and insufficient advertising revenue have forced many stations off the air, a situation that could be corrected should toll-TV be approved to provide an extra revenue source. The petition also requested that approval for subscription operation be granted to VHF stations instead of being restricted to UHF outlets as previously suggested.

Trueman T. Rembusch, co-chairman, exhibitors committee against toll-TV, stated that the petition was simply a tactical move on Zenith's part and expressed confidence that the FCC would not dispense with the hearing of the other side to the question. He also said that the many intricate problems involved in toll-TV operation point to a long passage of time before the problem can be resolved. Among the ticklish questions that must be answered are whether toll-TV will constitute unfair competition to theatres, forcing them out of business, and whether the possibility exists that approval of the medium might result in a monopoly of communication facilities.

The committee is moving to call upon motion picture producers to stand up and be counted on the issue. The committee chairmen, Alfred Starr, and Rembusch, want to know whether film producers favoring subscription television seek to by-pass the theatres in bringing their films to the public. The committee is also interested in finding out how the producers will testify when hearings on toll-TV are held.

IMPDA To Award Foreign Film Prize

NEW YORK—At a meeting of the Independent Motion Picture Distributors Association of America last week, it was agreed to make a presentation of the annual Joseph Burstyn Award for the best foreign-language film released in the United States during the past year on or before Dec. 31. A special committee, consisting of Arthur L. Mayer, Max A. Goldberg, Martin J. Lewis, George Roth, and Thomas J. Brandon, was appointed to select the winning picture.

It was also voted to broaden the organization's membership basis by admitting to membership exhibitors who are also importers and distributors of foreign films.

It was agreed to postpone further legal proceedings against IFE in connection with its purported restriction of competition in the field of Italian films or the rumored proposals that it is seeking to obtain a similar preferred position in the French field until after the Federal Trade Commission renders its report.

A resolution was unanimously passed, stating, "On this, the first anniversary of the death of our beloved former president, Joseph Burstyn, we, the members of the Independent Motion Picture Distributors Association of America, rededicate ourselves to the ideals and principles to which his life was devoted. We shall continue his gallant fight to liberate the screen from the dead hand of censorship and the black hand of bigots and pressure groups. We shall use every means in our power to protect the small group of pioneers who have, over the years, labored to broaden the public appreciation of unusual and experimental films and whose continued existence is now grievously threatened by subsidy-finance monopoly and competition-destroying covenants. We shall continue to explore the markets of all freedom-loving nations in order to make available to the American people foreign films which will enrich our own domestic picture production and which will broaden the mutual understanding and good-will upon which the peace of the world is dependent."

Schine Sale Allowed

BUFFALO—Schine Theatres, Inc., was granted court permission last week to sell the Strand, Van Wert, O., for non-theatrical uses. Federal Judge John Knight approved the sale in an opinion on a motion by Schine Attorneys to dispose of 11 theatres for non-theatrical use.

The 11 properties are covered by a decree signed by Judge Knight in 1949 ordering Schine interests to dispose of 42 theatres and refrain from monopolistic practices.

UA Sues For TV Funds

HOLLYWOOD—United Artists Corporation last week filed suits against James Nasser and various individuals and corporations asking an accounting and injunctive recovery of funds involved in the sale of four films to TV in violation of distribution contracts with UA. The films are "Cover Up," "Kiss For Corliss," "Without Honor," and "Don't Trust Your Husband."

Industry Institute Discussed In Canada

TORONTO—A week-long series of Motion Picture Industry Council meetings and get-togethers wound up with delegates feeling they had accomplished a lot, learned a lot about their own industry, and had enjoyed themselves besides.

Key of the week's meetings were the discussions on the setting up of a Motion Picture Institute. A committee investigating the matter recommended its being set up. However, the meeting decided that an executive secretary be appointed to serve under a different top industry leader each month.

This is the proposal that will go out to the exhibitors across the country asking them how much they would pledge to the establishment of such an organization.

The committee investigating the problem decided that the exhibitors should pledge five cents a seat, while the distributors were to be asked for $15,000 collectively.

The council elected David Griesdorf, general manager, Odeon Theatres (Canada) Ltd., chairman for next year's council, succeeding Archie J. Mason, Springhill, N. S.

A very encouraging report was presented by Clare Appel, chairman, public relations committee, MPIC of Canada, who pointed with pride to a special edition of The Telegram of Toronto, which featured the meetings.

He pointed out that two well-known writers, Clyde Gilmour and Stan Helleur, would be appointed to the amusement section of the newspaper, a section of which would be remade. This remaking follows considerable discussions with Appel and other industry leaders by Bas Mason, promotion director, The Telegram.

The result of this new promotion is that it has pushed other papers in the country into action insofar as amusement sections are concerned. The Star, The Telegram's main opposition, has pushed a number of ads off the amusement pages "that should have never been there," Appel said.

Starting on Dec. 1, the Distributors Association is acting as host at monthly luncheons attended by representatives of the motion picture industry and personnel of The Telegram to thrash out problems.

Appel also reported on the arrangements with a group of women representing many prominent organizations in the country who are to screen the various films to be released in Canada. These women will make a report to their respective organizations, who have chapters all over the country, on the various films they see.

Another report to the MPIC was that of the retiring chairman, A. J. Mason who said that he was optimistic "because new life had been injected into this fascinating industry over the past two years.

During his recent European trip, Richard W. Altschuler, Republic director of world wide sales, visited the "Magic Fire" location in Bavaria, where this picturization of the Bertita Harding book about the life of Wagner is being filmed in Trucolor, and is seen here with Ernie Haller, Academy-Award winning cameraman; Rita Gam, associate producer-director William Dieterle; and Valentina Cortesa. Republic will release the film.

through engineering and scientific developments."

Mason noted the product shortage and the danger to the existence of little exhibitors if present terms and policies are continued, saying that they will be "forced to close their doors and deprive communities of the greatest entertainment medium known to the masses of people."

John J. Fitzgibbons, president, Famous Players Canadian Corporation, complimented the "lifeblood of the industry . . . the smalltown exhibitor."

He also commented on the development of Telemeter for which his company holds the franchise in Canada, pointing out that the toll systems will not seriously weaken the place of the theatre in the community. "We've made a substantial investment so that we can maintain our position as exhibitors without standing in the way of progress," he said.

Other officers elected by the MPIC besides Griesdorf were Rube Bolstad and C. S. Chaplin, co-vice-chairmen; Bill Lester, secretary-treasurer; and Arch Jolley, executive secretary.

The National Committee of Exhibitors' Associations which began the week-long industry meetings in Toronto, reelected its same officer panel headed by Morris Stein. It discussed the matter of advanced prices for films, and this is to be discussed further with the distributors. A subject for considerable discussion was the action of the various associations in dealing with the hospital tax.

A new member of the executive body of Motion Picture Theatres Association of Ontario is Russell Simpson, Ottawa Valley Amusement Company. Other members include Morris Berlin, Jack Clarke. Lou Consky, E. G. Forsythe, Angus Jewel, Lionel Lester, Dick Main, and Harry Mandell.

Arthur Mayer, well-known authority on industry affairs, was luncheon speaker and commented that people are apt to pay lip service to art instead of paying at the boxoffice. He thought that the industry had improved considerably in the past year but this was no excuse, he said, "for optimism or complacency."

Highlight of the week was the awarding of Motion Picture Pioneers' citations to Jack Arthur, Charles Stephenson, and Will McLaughlin, Pioneers of the Year, "for their contribution to the advancement of motion pictures as a popular medium."

Fitzgibbons presented Jack Arthur with his award "for happiness brought to others," while Will McLaughlin, writer for The Ottawa Journal, received his from Nat Taylor "in appreciation . . . friend and critic . . ." Charles Stephenson received his from Oscar Hanson "as showman extraordinary."

Canadian Comment

Newest member or rather a return to the newspaper-writing fraternity is Stan Helleur, who resigned from the National Film Board to rejoin The Telegram as a columnist. Before joining the NFB, Helleur was with Warners as publicity chief in Canada, and prior to that a columnist for The Telegram. . . . Staff changes in Toronto theatres set up a triangle, with Laurie Hole moving from the Village to the Alhambra, being replaced by Roy Downey, Beach; while Joe Cardwell, Alhambra, takes over the Beach. . . . Among the visitors to Toronto were Max Chechik, Vancouver, and Molly Rosenthal with her husband, Morris, New Haven. . . . Charles Cashman, photo-engraving representative to the industry is again deputy reeve, York Township. . . . Another visitor to Toronto was Douglas Yates, Republic, conferring with Walter Manley, Canadian representative. . . . ## Mexico

At a recent sales meeting in Mexico of all Warner managers from Central and South American countries, Wolfe Cohen, president, Warner International, instructed them to depart from former sales policy of selling a season's line-up or pictures in groups, and to market each picture individually on its merits, after it has been screened locally in each territory. In this manner, both the sales force and exhibitors will be able to properly evaluate each release and determine its fullest possibilities as to best theatre, play-dates, admission prices, and type of promotion campaign. Cohen emphasized that "in the future we shall not ask any exhibitor to buy any picture before it is available for screening."

Rhoden Outlines Four Point Plan For National Theatres Development

LOS ANGELES—An aggressive four-point business building program, with major emphasis on a $500,000 advertising research fund, was outlined last week by Elmer C. Rhoden, president, National Theatres, Inc., before 89 delegates assembled in the circuit's home offices for their first divisional convention since 1952.

The four key points include a $500,000 advertising research fund to carry out research work in the field of promotional advertising and direct selling of motion pictures; a traveling cavalcade to be brought to all key cities, presenting the motion picture industry in its 50 years of development and brought about through the cooperation of all Hollywood studios, as well as the local theatre owners; creation of an incentive plan for theatre managers, district managers and department heads to supersede the former periodic drive bonuses, and provide a continuous stimulus for showmanship on the part of all theatre executives, who would share in NT's increased fiscal earnings; and compliance with the government's consent judgment by Jan. 1, at which time the company would be in a position to request Department of Justice approval for the acquisition of additional theatres, a program which has been held in abeyance because of the existing government freeze.

Going into greater detail regarding his plans for the research fund, Rhoden said the project would cover the determination of relative values of presently used advertising media, research on the value of premiums, research on the recreational habits of potential customers, proper admission prices and policies, increase of advertising budget expenditures, and public tastes in entertainment.

John B. Bertero, president, Fox West Coast Theatres, and chief counsel, National Theatres, spoke on the legal aspects of the consent decree and pointed out that NT still has eight theatres and one theatre property to dispose of and is expected to do so by Jan. 1. He also said that the circuit looks forward to building drive-ins where they are not in competition with existing conventional NT houses.

Alan May, NT treasurer, stated that the company was in strong financial position and cited various sound investments, such as in the CinemaScope and stereophonic sound equipment, the acquisition of an interest in Magna-Todd-AO and the erection of two new theatres.

Andy Krappman, merchandising chief, reported that candy sales lead in Southern California houses, pop corn and beverages in the midwest, and ice cream in the Wisconsin area.

Other speakers included Bert Pirosh, film buying head, who spoke on forthcoming product; Irving Epstein, insurance department topper; and Russell H. McCullough, purchasing-maintenance chief.

Thornton Sargent, NT public relations director led a discussion on all aspects of advertising, and talks were given by Jess E. Elliott, real estate head, and Joseph P. Tuohy, labor relations chief. Delegates also witnessed a special screening of the new Magna-Todd-AO process at MGM studios.

The motion picture industry must fight complacency and reach out through every media to sell its pictures to the public, Al Lichtman, vice-president in charge of distribution, 20th-Fox, declared before the conference.

Lichtman cited various problems faced by the industry such as the need for more quality pictures; selling shows to more people; wise spending of advertising dollars; comfortable theatres for patrons; proper utilization of projection and sound equipment; personalized service given to patrons; proper attention being given to children; community cooperation in civic programs; direct mailing lists; and checking of admission prices to determine if they are not low or too high.

"Double features have hurt this business," Lichtman observed, "but the people still want quantity as well as quality. To feed them something inferior is to turn them away. If they want inferior entertainment, they can have it in their own homes."

Lichtman also said he believed 20th-Fox's Swiss Eidiphor color TV, in CinemaScope size, would be the answer to home TV. He outlined his company's product as well.

Jury Visits Theatres Involved In Law Suit

BOSTON—In an unprecedented move in the Commonwealth, the jury panel sitting on the anti-trust suit of the Victoria Amusement Corporation, was driven last week to the city of Lawrence, Mass., to view the locations and types of theatres involved in the case. At the instigation of some of the defendant distributors, it was agreed that the jury would receive a clearer impression of the subject matter if they were taken to the exact spots mentioned.

The suit is a $3,000,000 treble damage suit brought by Victoria, operating the State, Lawrence, Mass., against a group of exhibitors and the major distributors. It opened before Judge Sweeney and a jury in Federal District Court here. Violations of the Sherman anti-trust act are alleged by the plaintiff, Samuel Richmond, operator, State. The defendants are Warner Brothers Circuit Management Company, Warner Brothers Theatres, Inc., Massachusetts Amusement Corporation, Warners, Paramount, Loew's, 20th-Fox, RKO, United Artists, U-I, Columbia, Republic, Monogram, and Eagle-Lion, Inc., of Ohio.

The complaint alleges that prior to 1947 the defendants combined in a conspiracy to restrain trade and to monopolize interstate trade and commerce in motion picture films. It is charged that the defendants have maintained a uniform system of runs, clearances, and admission prices for theatres throughout the United States and particularly near the cities of Boston and Lawrence, and have declined to contract for or to deliver films to the plaintiff except in accordance with that system. The plaintiff also alleges that the defendants, with the exception of United Artists, have engaged in block booking, blind buying, and blind selling, and charged discrimination against the plaintiff in favor of the defendant exhibitors. The complaint states that the plaintiff has been required to contract for and pay for films it was unable to use and that such films were unpopular and offensive to the good taste and moral standards of its patrons.

Capitol, Lawrence, Mass., Asks $10,000,000 Damages

BOSTON—An anti-trust case seeking damages which when trebled would amount to $10,000,000 was filed last week in Federal District Court here by Jean C. Campopiano, owner and operator, Capitol, Lawrence, Mass.

The suit is directed against the Stanley Warner Circuit; Massachusetts Warner Theatres; Empire Amusement Company; Roland and Harold Siskin, theatre property owners; James A. Donovan, owner, Astor, Lawrence; Gene Ippolito, owner, Central, Lawrence; Joseph Liss, district manager, Stanley Warner Massachusetts Theatres; and James M. Connolly, northeast division manager, 20th-Fox.

Other defendants are Spyros Skouras, Al Lichtman, Nicholas Schenck, Charles Reagan, Ben Kalmenson, Si Fabian, and Harry Warner. The complaint alleges restraint of trade, monopolistic control of film distribution, and discrimination in favor of the exhibitor defendants.

Above is a shot of the 89 delegates assembled at National Theatres, Inc., home offices in Los Angeles for the first divisional convention since 1952. Elmer C. Rhoden, president, outlined an aggressive four-point business building program with emphasis on a half million dollar advertising research fund.

Konecuff (Continued from page 6) the company would never desert these independent theatres who have supported CinemaScope when Rank and others refused to do so.

Producers: Six months ago, this group was very cautious about committing themselves or their future product to CinemaScope, but now that they see, for instance, that France's 400 installations are grossing more than the 2,000 normal installations, they are anxious to use the lenses and the medium on local levels. The company has received requests for 18 lenses in England from producers; 22 for West Germany; seven for France, and nine for Italy, and time will be needed to fill the orders as well as camera and equipment adjustments.

ROLL 'EM DEPARTMENT: At last week's annual convention of the Public Relations Society, RKO-Pathe unveiled a different process for movie-making calculated to save money and improve quality, according to Jay Bonafield, executive vice-president, RKO-Pathe, and Sid Kramer, sales manager.

By combining the Du Mont Teleye, a miniature TV camera recently invented, with a regulation 35mm. Mitchell camera by mounting same on the tripod and coordinating its movements with the film recorder, the director and his staff are able to see instantaneously on a nearby monitor screen exactly how a scene will appear on film.

The advantage seems to be in being able to make necessary changes in settings, scenes, and techniques without having to wait for the daily rushes and in not having to hold sets until satisfactory takes are made. The end result should be a better picture for less dough.

THERE'S A PUPPET IN YOUR FUTURE: Michael Myerberg, producer of "Hansel And Gretel," current RKO release, related last week that he hopes to turn out one feature annually starting in 1956 using his puppet Kinemins. The first of these will be "Aladdin," "Pied Piper," or a science-fiction entry, and can be made either at his studios here or in England. He hopes to make his subjects so that they will be well suited for adults as well as for younger movie-goers.

"Hansel And Gretel" cost $1,100,000 minus advertising and prints, and he expected his future features to come in for about the same figure. His future plans call for producing subjects following original stories faithfully, which he thought would enhance the finished productions. Myerberg also hoped to continue releasing through RKO, which he termed a fine organization.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: World-wide sales supervisor Leo Samuels at Walt Disney Productions is real proud over plugs Disney product is getting via the Disneyland TV show, which he feels will help exhibitors come time for them to play the pix. New product as well as reissues are coming for proper attention. Incidentally, we understand that half the TV sets in local operation tune in on the show everytime it goes on. . . . New York subways are urging millions of travelers to go see their December selections, films made abroad, to wit: "Aida," Italian-made; "Gate Of Hell," Japanese; and the British-Italian co-production, "Romeo And Juliet." . . . David A. Bader, who recently joined Atlantic Television Corporation as general sales manager, has been named vice-president by Bob Savini, company president. . . . Ed Gallen, public relations counsel, is due back from a coast visit shortly. . . . Current issue of Vogue, classy women's magazine, devotes six pages to Gina Lollobrigida and the film "Aida," right impressive. . . . RKO pressbook on "Cattle Queen Of Montana" features pix of and suggestions from exhibitors on how to sell a film, which won them ten simoleons. It's a good way to insure exhibitor participation. . . . Neat promotion piece is out on "So This Is Paris," which turns into a usable one-sheet.

About People

LOS ANGELES—Paul Scherer, Fox West Coast Theatres' film buying department, has been upped to assistant treasurer of National Theatres, Inc., and will work under Alan May, NT treasurer, it was announced last week. In other changes announced by Edwin F. Zabel, FWC general manager, Dave Boyd, real estate department, has been promoted to the merchandising department under Andy Krappman and will be manager of the circuit's merchandising warehouse in Culver City. Murray L. Mosby, who has been with the circuit for the last 12 years, is retiring from the merchandising department. Replacing Boyd is Frank Prince, booking-buying department, who has been upped to assistant to Jess E. Elliott, real estate head. Dan Polier, booker, moves into Prince's spot and will work under Everett Sharp, head booker.

NEW YORK—George J. Schaefer announced last week that Howard E. Kohn, II, has just been named national coordinator for Century Films' "Day Of Triumph," in charge of publicity and promotion. Kohn flew to Tyler, Tex., to set the Dec. 17 world premiere engagement.

Kohn formerly was road show director for Stanley Kramer's "Cyrano De Bergerac" and prior to that was national director of advertising and publicity, road show department, United Artists. He will be under the supervision of Myer P. Beck, national director of advertising and publicity for "Day Of Triumph."

NEW YORK—Mort Magill has been named district sales supervisor for the Philadelphia, Washington, and Pittsburgh exchange areas, it was announced last week by Leo F. Samuels, president and general sales manager, Buena Vista Film Distribution Company, Inc. Magill will make his headquarters in Philadelphia. An industry veteran, Magill recently resigned as branch manager for United Artists in Philadelphia to take over the Buena Vista post.

HOLLYWOOD—Jack Gross and Phillip Krasne, Gross-Krasne, Inc., have announced the formation of Mark Stevens Productions to produce two theatrical productions annually. The first feature for theatres will be "Twisted Street," to be produced, directed, written and starred in by Stevens.

DENVER—Al Brandon has closed his independent distribution company, Brandon Pictures, and has gone to work as a salesman for RKO. He will handle the northern district.

NT Seeks Extension

WASHINGTON—The Justice Department was asked last week for another extension of the divestiture deadline in the National Theatres case. The present deadline is Dec. 7. When the last extension was granted 17 theatres remained to be disposed of. The number has now dwindled to fewer than 10.

The request was made during two days of meetings by John Bertero, vice-president, National Theatres; F. W. Pride, Dwight, Royall, Koegel and Caskey; and west coast attorney W. B. Carman.

Loew Reports 1,500 Perspecta Installations

NEW YORK—Arthur M. Loew, president, Loew's International, stated last week that over 1,500 exhibitors have installed Perspecta stereophonic sound equipment.

Recently returned from a five week tour of England, France, Belgium, Germany, Italy, and Spain, Loew revealed that 15 companies throughout the world were licensed to produce and distribute Perspecta equipment, and that 11 are now assembling or manufacturing it, two in Italy, one in Japan, one in Germany, one in France, and four in the United States.

He predicted that the 4,000 orders received for the stereophonic sound will be filled shortly. He also said that he expects many countries will soon do away with their import restrictions.

Meanwhile, Perspecta Sound, Inc., has announced that demonstrations have been scheduled for all parts of the world. During December, demonstrations will be held in the Metropolitan, Buenos Aires; the Dai Nam, Saigon; and the Metro Theatres, Johannesburg, Durban, and Capetown. Shortly after, demonstrations will be held in Indonesia, Israel, Spain, and Taipei.

Loew's International world-wide business has increased about 15 per cent as compared with the last calendar year, according to Arthur M. Loew, president of the foreign film organization. He also revealed that about five per cent of the companies overseas gross is from the 16mm. market.

Westrex, A Global Pioneer

THE revolution in projection and sound equipment that started in this country spread quickly to the rest of the world, and in the forefront of equipment distribution and research in the global market is the Westrex Corporation.

Westrex presently employs some 1,200 men and women in all parts of the world and makes available to theatres everywhere but in the U.S. and Canada all necessary equipment for operation.

Currently at the helm of the far flung corporation is President Eugene S. Gregg, whose service with Western Electric Company, Inc., Westrex parent company, goes back to 1926. As European manager for Electric Research Products, Inc., he supervised the installation of sound equipment in thousands of continental theatres.

Besides his activities as Westrex chief, Gregg has written extensively on economics and finance.

Recently, Westrex managers from all over the world convened in New York for a series of conferences and were brought up to date on the many new developments in sound, film editing, and other technical aspects of the industry. In addition to extensive examination of the equipment to be offered their customers all over the world, the conferees were treated to such extra American hospitality as a Cinerama showing in their honor.

Westrex began as little more than a good idea in 1926, and has grown since then to a point where the name is a watchword with exhibitors in foreign lands everywhere, who reap the same harvest of technical advance as the theatremen just around the corner.

R. O. Strack, commercial engineering manager, points out the features of the Westrex mixer console to J. Y. Ake, director and assistant manager, and K. Kagara, recording engineer, Westrex Company, Orient, Japan.

William De Mella, manager, Westrex Company, Caribbean, Cuba, is watched by H. B. Allinsmith, Westrex vice-president, as he tests the operation of same of the company's new multi-channel amplifier equipment.

R. W. Wight, manager, Westrex Corporation's Hollywood division, right, stresses the features of the company's new film editing machine to J. A. Tadd, recording manager, Westrex Company, Limited, England.

R. E. Warn, Westrex vice-president, left, explains the use of measuring equipment to P. Amourgis, manager, Westrex Company, East, Egypt.

U. B. Ross, Westrex director for Latin America, and J. Cuevas, manager, Westrex Company, Brazil, discuss features of Westrex Corporation's penthouse stereophonic magnetic reproducer and sound head. The company has been instrumental in recent technical advances.

R. J. Hortis, manager, Westrex Company, Argentina, is shown the Westrex R7 type re-recorder for photographic film by Manager G. W. Sisom.

R. A. Colistra, comptroller, and R. Senechal, head, recording department, Westrex Company, France-Belgium, inspect new multi-channel amplifier.

Gregg reviews with C. Adlerstrahle, manager, Westrex Scandinavia, AB., Sweden, the Technical advances incorporated in the company's mixer.

M. Storms II, manager, Westrex Company, Caribbean, Venezuela, discusses equipment installation and operation with W. H. Grosselfinger, radio.

BETTER MANAGEMENT

*Valuable Exploitation Keys
To Profitable Merchandising*

Thousands of film fans jammed around the Monroe, Chicago, recently as Ginger Rogers and her husband, Jacques Bergerac, arrived for the premiere of UA's "Twist Of Fate," which was heralded by a sock campaign including the street bally of the beauties, second from left; Miss Rogers making the first purchase of Chicago's seasonal charity stamps from George Dixon, local chairman, Christmas Seal sale committee; and a bannered car, a Rolls-Royce Bentley, duplicate of sedan used in the film, which toured Miss Rogers and her husband through Chicago on round-the-clock schedule of personal appearances backing the premiere of the film at the Monroe. News, radio and TV breaks were made on behalf of the film.

Varied Bally Angles Hypo "Contessa" Bow

BALTIMORE—Manager Ray Trumble, New, mounted a live-wire campaign for United Artists' "The Barefoot Contessa" by exploiting the title, taking advantage of the national co-ops, and creating some effective tie-ups of his own.

Working the barefoot angle for street promotion, Ray dispatched two shoeless models with appropriate placards to patrol the downtown streets. The payoff came with newspaper picture breaks.

The $10,000 collection of jeweled shoes, which is being toured nationally to hypo the Contessa footwear line being marketed by five leading manufacturers, provided another peg for the campaign.

Hopping a ride on another pre-set national promotion, the alert manager landed important window space in the Bond clothing store that featured the Van Heusen Shirt tie-up, scene stills, and play-date announcements. The national letter-writing contest that will award free trips to Italy was boomed in the windows and on the counters of travel agencies.

D and H Distributors, who handle RCA-Victor records, backed a music campaign spotlighting the Hugo Winterhalter waxing of "The Song of the Barefoot Contessa." Ten music stores contributed window builds and counter displays, with streamers and counter cards providing additional penetration. Copies of the platter were also serviced to disc jockeys.

Trumble swung a deal with the Realty Parking Lot, a block from the theatre, that carried the message to thousands of downtown shoppers and suburbanites, "Park here to see 'The Barefoot Contessa'."

"Pagan" Beauty Sought

NEW YORK—Universal-International, in conjunction with the internationally famed Art Students League, last week started a contest to find the perfect embodiment of a fifth century beauty as visualized in the company's forthcoming CinemaScope Technicolor production, "Sign Of The Pagan."

Approximately 100 top students of the league attended a special screening of the film. The artists will make rough sketches during the filming and subsequently make finished drawings of their conception of the fifth century beauty. Cash awards will be made for the three top drawings which will be selected by a committee representing both the Art Students League and U-I.

The company will then endeavor to find a girl who is a counterpart of the winning drawing.

More than 350,000 persons lining Chicago's State Street for the recent annual Thanksgiving celebration, "Santa's Parade of Stars," witnessed the above float built around Michael Myerberg's "Hansel and Gretel," RKO release. With members of the Goodman Little Theatre portraying Hansel, Gretel, and the witch in front of the famous Gingerbread House, the float served as an advance announcement that the film would be the Christmas holiday feature at the Loop. Additional thousands saw the float on TV. So impressive was the float that two neighborhood merchants' associations requested its appearance in their forthcoming annual Christmas parades.

U-I's "Bridges" Gets Magazine Saturation

NEW YORK—For the first time in its history, Universal-International will blanket the men's magazine field in an advertising campaign to reach the largest possible audience for its melodrama, "Six Bridges To Cross," based on the $2,500,000 Boston robbery and starring Tony Curtis, Julie Adams, and George Nader.

A total of 11 "male-appeal" publications will be utilized in the campaign, David A. Lipton, vice-president, disclosed last week, in carrying forward U-I's policy of pre-selling through national magazines carefully chosen to reach the largest possible audience that is available for a specific picture.

This is the first time such a large group of national magazines of this specific type have ever been used by a film company to call attention to a single film. The magazines are True, Argosy, National Detective, Saga, Sport, Official Detective Stories, Police Detective, True Crime, True Cases, and True Mystery, all point to the male viewpoint.

In addition, to reach all segments of movie-goers with ads fashioned to appeal to the specific magazine readership, U-I is using Collier's which first published the original story by veteran Boston crime reporter Joseph F. Dinneen, "They Stole $2,500,000—and Got Away With It," on which the Aaron Rosenberg production is based.

For general readership, ads on "Six Bridges To Cross" will appear in Life and Look. More specifically for teenagers and regular movie-goers, U-I is using Seventeen and various movie magazines, making a total of 20 publications of varying appeal to pre-sell the forthcoming melodrama.

The two score magazines which will carry the "Six Bridges To Cross" advertising during the month of January have a combined circulation in excess of 22,000,000 and a readership estimated at three times that figure.

LAYING IT

Roughing Up The Ball

All of us have probably seen a baseball player rub a new ball before putting it into play. The reason for this is that a shiny new baseball is difficult to control. Although not particularly seasonal, this procedure might be applied to the operation of a motion picture theatre. Most of the systems and equipment recently put into use were too shiny with newness to be controlled and employed with a maximum amount of efficiency. In three weeks 1954 will pass into history. Much of this past year has been spent in "roughing up the ball," and learning how to handle the tools and ideas which were put at the disposal of the theatreman.

This analogy holds true for theatre design and construction as well as projection and sound. The vast changes made in motion picture film presentation made it mandatory that the structures which housed the innovations complement and enhance them. Although theatre construction has not shown any appreciable rise over recent years, those units that have been built clearly indicate that they are capable of giving full support to the improved sights and sounds which are presented for public approval.

One of the most prevalent trends in new theatre construction is that of making the auditoriums visually and orally as perfect as modern methods and materials will allow. An example of this will be found in this issue in the story about the recently constructed Fox Theatre, in Trona, Calif. Everything has been done to permit the audience to get the fullest enjoyment and appreciation of the sights and sounds that are projected.

Outdoor theatre design has also been keeping pace with the demands for bigger and better everything. This month's drive-in feature is devoted to a new theatre which has been constructed, designed and equipped so as to be able to take advantage of the wide screen and stereophonic sound, and still have plenty of eye-appeal.

It has long been a recognized fact that much of today's modern home designs were influenced by styles and materials used in motion pictures. This is probably still true, but we believe that the ultra modern theatres of today are also making a contribution in this area.

As the year 1955 unfolds there is little possibility that, except for the still vigorous drive-in field, there will be a large number of theatres constructed. However, those that are erected should continue the trend toward a more enlightened use of the methods and materials constantly being produced and improved by science and industry.

Therefore, although exhibitors are not often thought of in terms of architectural and decorating pioneers, we think they deserve a bit of praise for having the courage to gamble on new designs in their effort to give the public the best.

PHYSICAL THEATRE

Vol. 9, No. 13

December 8, 1954

A THEATRE which embodies all of the latest trends in construction, sound and projection was unveiled recently when the Fox West Coast Theatres opened its new Fox Theatre in Trona, Calif.

This 636-seat house is conceded to be one of the most complete and artistic structures of its kind. The newest features of architecture, engineering and acoustics have been incorporated in the construction of this entertainment palace.

One of the prime considerations was the safety of the patrons. All structural steel columns, beams, girders and trusses have been belted and joined together in such a fashion that the building is believed to be earthquake-proof, as well as able to stand up under all weather conditions. In addition, the slope of the aisles, the convenience of the exits and the specially designed aisle lights were all planned for the patrons' safety and convenience.

The screen at the Fox is 19 by 40 feet and is capable of presenting CinemaScope and other wide screen systems. The screen has been curved in order to reduce distortion and improve sight-lines.

The New Fox Theatre

The Front

The display of interchangeable letters on the theatre marquee presents the current attractions with plastic letters in color. The boxoffice is designed and equipped so as to handle the sale of tickets with a minimum amount of waiting time. One of the items which helps speed up the process is a new type of ticket issuing machine, said to dispose of tickets with faster action than any machine presently in use. The lighting for the poster frames has been designed so that the displays are easy to read. The area underneath the marquee is pleasantly illuminated by recessed fixtures in the marquee ceiling.

The Interior

Patrons enter the theatre through attractive glass and aluminum lobby doors which are equipped with panic bolts that are operated by a special device.

The concession counter is located facing the entrance doors, making it a simple task for patrons to make their purchases before being seated. The snack bar has been designed so that the merchandise can be easily seen and reached, thus also making a purchase a swift and simple operation.

Lounge rooms have been constructed on each side of the foyer. These rooms are rich in appearance and are enhanced with comfortable furnishings. The recessed lighting supplies soft, mellow illumination. The ladies' lounge includes a specially designed shelf and mirror so that female customers may apply their cosmetics without the interference of shadows and with as much comfort as possible.

In keeping with the flowing unbroken lines of the theatre, the drinking fountain has been recessed in the side wall of the foyer. The carpeting for the Fox is said to be of a special design never before used in a theatre. It is thick in pile and padded heavily so that it provides a very soft cushion for the patrons.

The Auditorium

The auditorium of this new house embodies many radical innovations. The principal feature is the perfect sound which is accomplished by the use of Fiberglas, which is fireproof and has a very high coefficient of sound absorption. According to the management the acoustical treatment of the Fox is the result of exhaustive study and research.

The seating consists of 636 of the latest type chairs with padded backs and spring edges. The seats have been spaced so as to provide as much comfort and convenience as possible. The arrangement of the seats is similar to an extended fan providing excellent viewing from all parts of the auditorium. In addition to the extra attention given sight-lines, the projection throw has been determined so as to reduce to a minimum the possibility of eye-strain.

The stage has been constructed with sufficient width and height to house the equipment necessary for the showing of standard films, CinemaScope, VistaVision, and large screen television. It is claimed by the management that the Fox is the first perfect sound motion picture theatre, with no dead spots, assuring constant volume of sound in any part of the auditorium.

In this rear view of the auditorium it is possible to see the surround speakers built into the walls. The attractive carpet, also seen, is of a special design never before used in motion picture theatres.

The stage draperies extend across the entire width of the proscenium. A special draw title curtain has been installed, as well as a specially designed festoon valance. The title curtain is operated with a motor by remote control from the projection booth.

Lighting

All illumination in the theatre is recessed. The house lighting circuit containing white light, is concealed in the auditorium ceiling. All exit lights are of such design as to eliminate interference with the patrons' vision. The electrical wiring is unique and up-to-date in every respect. All circuits are protected by relays instead of fuses in all main lighting and circuit panels. There are said to be many special electrical hookups in this building which have never been used in a theatre.

Another useful feature is the house telephone system which makes it a simple matter for any employe to communicate with any part of the theatre. The telephone system is connected between the cashier, the doorman, the manager's office, the ushers' room, stage and projection booth.

Sound and Projection Equipment

The sound equipment includes the latest optical type sound with 60 watts of power output. In addition, the latest four channel magnetic stereophonic sound equipment has also been installed.

A 19 by 40 foot Miracle Mirror screen has been used, and it is curved to a 107 foot radius, thus making for a projected picture that is free of distortions, as well as having maximum brilliance and definition.

The latest Simplex projector mechanisms are used, mounted on super bases, which assures rock steady projection. Two high intensity projection arc lamps supply the screen illumination, with a motor generator having a rating of 65 amperes for each projector lamp.

The projection booth equipment includes a public address system which is connected to concealed horns. Also a microphone is used backstage so that announcements can be made in connection with entertainment. A specially designed control station enables the projectionist to have full control of the lighting system, curtains, and public address system at all times. This sound equipment has dual amplification to take care of any emergency which may arise due to trouble in any one of the amplifiers.

Heating and Cooling Systems

The air conditioning system is of modern design and is automatically controlled by thermostats which maintain the most comfortable temperatures throughout the entire year. All air in the theatre is filtered to remove dust and is distributed throughout the entire auditorium through various types of ornamental ceiling diffusers. The refrigeration system is hermetically sealed and uses Freon 12, a harmless refrigerant.

The heating system uses hot water for heat, and is also controlled automatically, with the thermostats being located in various parts of the theatre to maintain an even temperature throughout. Each minute 30,000 cubic feet of filtered cool or heated air, as may be required, is delivered in the theatre.

The decorative scheme of the Fox is one of dynamic design that flows unbroken around the side walls of the auditorium. The proscenium arch is designed to be the center of interest, with strength of detail.

The large modern concession stand above is located near the entrance, making it simple for patrons to make their purchases before being seated.

Such care was given to the acoustics of the Fox auditorium above that the management has called it the perfect sound motion picture theatre.

WAGNER ATTRACTION PANELS AND LETTERS

That's why more theatres install Wagner panels and letters than all other makes! Wagner offers panels which are large enough for plenty of powerful sales copy—letters in a variety of sizes and colors which permit more attractive displays and proper emphasis of features.

Wagner alone offers frames and glass units which can be built without limitation of size and which can be economically serviced through open windows and without removing frames. They're stronger, and can be installed before installing the glass.

The exclusive new type tapered slotting of Wagner Translucent Plastic Letters causes them to "lock" on the mounting bar. Yet, they're the easiest to change of all letters. Only Wagner plastic letters can be stacked in storage without danger of warping. 5 sizes. 5 gorgeous colors . . . the widest range made. Also, slotted aluminum letters in the widest range of sizes, styles and colors.

Shown is an installation for the Key City Drive-In, made by the Thomas Neon Sign, Abilene, Texas; and another for the Starlite Drive-In made by Empire Neon Co., Rochester, N. Y.

A LOW COST PANEL FOR DRIVE-INS

Wagner Enduronamel Steel Panels comprise both the background and the letter mounting arrangement. Chip-proof, shock-proof, alkali resistant, and salt spray-resistant, baked enamel. Shown in an installation by White Woy Electric Sign Co., Chicago, Ill.

Its Extreme Versatility Indicates There Are Many Uses For

Plywood In Theatres

By Robert E. Eskew

Douglas Fir Plywood Association

IT is said that the test of a good actor is versatility and the same holds true when it comes to building materials. Fir plywood, the most versatile performer in today's building materials field, plays its vital role in the construction and remodeling of indoor and outdoor theatres throughout the nation, to continued applause from theatre owners and builders alike.

Versatility

Plywood's claim to versatility is not a boast; it's a fact. For example, here's an idea of how much of the construction show plywood can carry: subfloors, underlayment for finish floors, wall and roof sheathing, exterior siding, interior wall paneling, outdoor picture screens, partitions for rest rooms, backstage dressing rooms for ushers and usherettes, and built-in storage units for marquee letters, candy, tickets and general theatre supplies.

Versatility such as this plus fir plywood's large standard panel size four by eight feet, which means speed of application, adds up to outstanding savings for the theatre owner or builder who specifies plywood-savings not at the expense of durability and appearance but in addition to it. For fir plywood, despite its light weight and low cost, is rugged structurally. Pound for pound, it is one of the strongest building materials on the market today. As for appearance, it offers the warm, rich-grained surface of real wood for natural interior wall paneling as well as a smooth, unblemished surface for fine painting.

Types of Fir Plywood

When specifying fir plywood for any building or remodeling job, it is well to know that it is manufactured in two distinct types. Exterior type plywood is made of 100 per cent waterproof glue for use where exposed to moisture or weather. This type of plywood is branded on the panel edge with the industry-owned grademark, "EXT-DFPA," which is the buyer's assurance that it won't come apart even if it is subjected to boiling water. On the other hand, interior type plywood is manufactured with a highly moisture resistant but not waterproof glue. This means it can withstand occasional wettings such as might occur during construction but will come apart under constant moisture.

Knowledge of these two types will eliminate two dangers: delamination through use of an interior panel where exterior plywood was indicated; unnecessary expense because exterior plywood was used where less expensive interior panels would have been more suitable.

Also, it is well to know that within each type of fir plywood are a half dozen "grades" which further suggest specific use. These grades are determined by the appearance of the outer faces or plys of a panel. For example, an exterior panel with one or two smooth, highly paintable surfaces would be wasted on anything but a finish job. Whereas a panel with rough, unsanded faces would be unsuitable for anything but a structural application.

Fir Plywood For Theatre Construction

Fir plywood's remarkable two-way strength, which makes it such a valuable structural material, is the result of its cross-grain panel construction. Thin sheets of veneer (plys) spread with adhesive are assembled in odd numbers (three, five, or seven plys to a panel) with the grain pattern of each sheet running counter to that of adjacent plys. This cross-lamination of plys also makes fir plywood puncture proof and split proof, both of which are invaluable qualities to the theatre owner, especially if he operates on "wild west" Saturday afternoons.

Either in new construction or remodeling of the modern theatre, fir plywood is an economical, ideal solution to the problem of subflooring. This is one of the most important elements in construction because the durability and appearance of finish flooring, whether it be wall-to-wall carpeting or asphalt tile, depends entirely on its foundation. Plywood subfloors give rigidity, level surface and dimensional stability (resistance to shrinking, swelling, warping and buckling) and plywood underlayment, the smooth base for finish flooring, provides broad, level, joint-free planes which means no bulges, humps or other dangerous points of wear in the finish material.

Walls sheathed with rigid, lightweight panels of plywood have been proved twice as strong as those sheathed diagonally with ordinary boards. To the theatre builder, this means added strength and durability plus savings because the big four by eight sheets go on quickly with less nailing necessary. The same holds true for roofs sheathed with fir plywood.

Smooth, paintable panels of exterior type fir plywood offer a striking contrast when used for siding accents in combination with rough stone, cement brick or glass. In suburban neighborhoods, the community theatre sided with dramatic

Why Strong Lamps Are Different

WHY THEY ARE USED WITH MOST CINEMASCOPE PRESENTATIONS

Best possible screen lighting is a major objective—the most light, evenly distributed, of constant intensity, and unchanging color value.

These exacting high standards have been realized with the development of Strong's exclusive Lightronic crater-positioning system which automatically maintains the position of the positive arc crater at the EXACT focal point of the reflector. Manual adjustments, which at best lead to uncertain results, have been made entirely unnecessary.

As the only lamps produced complete within one factory, Strong lamps can be screen-engineered for maximum efficiencies. That's why more dealers sell and more theatres buy Strong-made projection arc lamps than any other make.

Send today for full details on the Strong Super "135" and Mighty "90" projection arc lamps.

ALL YOU DO IS STRIKE THE ARC

The positive and negative carbons are advanced by separate motors, the speeds of which are governed by the Bi-metal Lightronic Tube. Once the arc has been struck, the crater position and gap length are maintained automatically, and without constant attention by the projectionist.

With the new presentation techniques complicating his job, the projectionist is particularly appreciative of this simplified control. Furthermore, he is quick to see the advantages of the unitized component design which affords such wide versatility in these lamps. He can, in a matter of moments and right in his projection room, effect the simple changes necessary to attain the correct light requirement for any of the various techniques. It is even possible for him to get the light requirements of two different types of techniques on the same program.

TRUE VERSATILITY

A choice of four different carbon trims can be burned in a total of seven separate manners to attain any desired degree of cost of operation, screen illumination, or burning time.

SIMPLIFIED CONTROL

Only one control is required for selecting any amperage within the range of a particular mode of operation.

THE MOST POWERFUL LAMPS

Burning 10 mm "Hitex" carbons at 135 amperes, or 11 mm regular carbons at 120 amperes, impartial foot candle meter tests prove the Strong "Super 135" the most powerful projection arc lamp, and you can't argue with a light meter.

The Infra-Ban Beam-Cooler unit diverts the heat rays away from the aperture, making possible a tremendous increase in usable light without a corresponding increase in heat at the aperture.

A stream of air directed just above the arc stabilizes its burning and prevents the deposit of soot on the reflector.

Strong has also designed new rectifiers with a range of from 90 to 135 amperes to fill the power requirements of all the systems of screen presentation.

panels of Texture One-Eleven with its rich linear and textural pattern takes on a unique distinction. The outstanding value of this new panel material in addition to its visual beauty is that it offers considerable savings because it can be applied directly to studs as a combination sheathing and finish material.

Theatre interiors benefit extensively through use of fir plywood for wall and ceiling paneling, built-in refreshment bars, rest room booths and partitions, backstage storage and dressing room facilities. Lobby or foyer walls and ceilings paneled with warm, attractive real wood extend a hospitable welcome and offer an air of informal comfort when finished with a rich, natural lustre. Built-in candy bars are economical to build and can be made portable because of plywood's light weight and because it requires so little framing. Backstage storage units and dressing rooms go together quickly and cut costs further because they can be constructed of less expensive grades of interior plywood with no sacrifice of strength and durability.

Finishing Fir Plywood

Fir plywood finishes easily and well. But in the case of a theatre owner who plans to do his own finishing, it is well to know that a job of painting or staining will only be as good as the preparation and materials that go into it. Always make certain that the surface to be finished is smooth and free of dust and oil. And use nothing but top quality paints and stains.

In painting exterior type fir plywood, the determinant is whether the finish surface is smooth or textured. In the case of a smooth surface, the best paint for regular wood is also best for exterior fir plywood. High grade exterior house paints of either TLZ formulation or white-lead-and-oil give excellent service. Paints which set to a hard, brittle film should be avoided.

To prevent the possibility of any surface checking when using exterior plywood, edge-sealing is recommended. A heavy application of high-grade exterior primer, exterior aluminum paint or heavy lead and oil paint does the best job. In unusually damp localities, and especially in the case of fir plywood outdoor picture screens, it is wise to prime the back of panels before construction starts with a coat of exterior primer.

The best painting system for exterior plywood is this:

1. The prime coat, the most important coat of all. This seals the wood and provides a good base for the following coats. A top quality exterior primer thinned with one pint of pure raw linseed oil per gallon of paint, applied with a brush, is the best. High grade exterior aluminum house paint also makes a good primer.

2. and 3. Over the prime coat apply second and third coats according to directions on the can.

High quality 2-coat TLZ house paints can also be used. However, each coat must be proportionately heavier so that the same dry film thickness as in the 3-step system is built up. First, brush on the primer, thinned as in step one above; then apply a second coat according to directions on the label.

This chart offers valuable data about the various types of plywood that are available and what job each type is best qualified to perform.

Finishing Textured Surface

On the other hand, if the finish surface is textured, as in the case of Texture One-Eleven, finish procedure is different for two reasons. First, the object is to preserve the textural qualities and natural low sheen of the material. Second, edge-sealing can be omitted because any surface checking will only add to the weathered beauty of the wood.

To preserve the naturalness of T 1-11, a highly pigmented opaque stain finish is recommended. Not a stain in the conventional sense of the word, this type of finish material is known in the trade as either Shake or Shingle paint. Its desirability stems from the fact that it dries flat; does not penetrate completely into the surface but leaves a thin coating over it; produces uniform color over dark and light parts of the wood grain and knots; is not translucent or transparent; softens grain pattern but does not hide it and does not destroy textured surface with a smooth, paint-like film. For maximum durability, a two-coat brush application of this stain is recommended, however, one coat will cover thoroughly.

Low pigmented stains when applied to exterior fir plywood (either smooth or textured) when permanently exposed to weather are of insufficient durability to adequately protect the wood and are definitely not recommended.

Finishing Interior Plywood

Interior fir plywood is even easier to finish with good conventional wall and woodwork paints or enamels. Here again, it pays to properly prepare all surfaces

EXTERIOR TYPE FIR PLYWOOD

EXT-DFPA — A-A

For permanent outdoor uses where appearance of both sides is important: entrance display walls, partitions, signs for drive-in theatres.

EXT-DFPA — A-B

Uses similar to Exterior A-A panels but where appearance of one side is less important: ticket stalls, offices for drive-in theatres.

EXT-DFPA — PLYSHIELD

Versatile "one-side" grade of exterior fir plywood with waterproof bond, excellent for picture screens for drive-in movies.

EXT-DFPA — SHEATHING

Unsanded grade of exterior for backing or rough construction: backing for outdoor screens, tool and maintenance sheds for drive-ins.

INTERIOR TYPE FIR PLYWOOD

INTERIOR — A-A

For all interior applications where both sides will be in view: cabinet doors, built-in storage units, displays, rest room partitions.

INTERIOR — A-B

For all inside uses requiring one surface of highest appearance and opposite side solid and smooth: aisle markers, lobby displays.

PLYPANEL

Many-purpose "one-side" material for interior use where appearance of only one side is important: wall and ceiling paneling, built-ins, counters, fixtures, displays, cut-outs, finish floor underlayment.

PLYBASE

Base and backing material: backstage storage compartments, equipment stalls; face solid, paintable.

PLYSCORD

Unsanded sheathing or structural grade of interior fir plywood: wall and roof sheathing, subflooring, temporary enclosures, partitions.

FIR PLYWOOD SPECIAL PANELS

TEXTURE ONE-ELEVEN

Striking exterior panel with waterproof bond for distinctive exteriors; marked by deep parallel grooves and rich texture of unsanded real wood: for fences, display walls, ticket stalls, entrance walls in drive-in theatres. Effective decorative material for interior accent walls, displays.

OVERLAID PLYWOOD

Exterior fir plywood with waterproof bond, excellent, grainless paint surface of glass-smooth, flint-hard resin: suitable for siding, entrance display walls, counter tops, picture screens; impervious to acids, abrasion.

PLYRON

Composite panel with either exterior or interior bond offering wearing qualities and toughness of tempered or treated hardboards plus strong, rigid fir plywood backbone: cabinet doors, exterior siding, counter tops.

PROJECTION ARC LAMP

"135"

Be sure to get the lamp that is readily adaptable to all types of modern screen presentation.

National's Reflect-O-Heat unit permits the great increase in volume of light at the mammoth new screens, without a corresponding increase in heat at the aperture.

The Automatic Crater Positioning Control System insures that both carbons are so fed as to maintain a correct arc gap length and to keep the position of the positive crater at the exact focal point of the reflector. Thus, throughout the presentation, the screen light is always of the same color, without variations from white to either blue or brown. The projectionist is accordingly freed from the necessity of constantly supervising the arc so that he can devote himself to the care of other technical features of projection which are not on an automatic basis and which require continual attention.

The arc is stabilized by a stream of air which maintains a prescribed system of ventilation of the area surrounding the arc. This air jet prevents the hot tail flame of the arc from reaching the reflector, supplies enough oxygen so that no black soot is produced, and keeps white soot from collecting on the reflector in such quantity as to absorb heat which would cause breakage.

Unit construction permits easy removal of the elements for inspection in servicing.

Prefinished Wall Paneling

Marlite planks and blocks, a new tongue and groove prefinished paneling recently introduced by Marsh Wall Products, Inc., offers substantial economies in installation and maintenance costs, it is said. Designed for speed installation, without the division mouldings and adhesive usually required for prefinished paneling, these materials save labor costs in either new construction or remodeling.

The planks are 16 inches wide and eight feet long. Blocks are 16 inch squares, and both are 3/16 of an inch thick.

An exclusive baking process is said to make these planks and blocks resistant to moisture, heat and stains. The permanent, soilproof surface is very easy to clean. Maintenance time is greatly reduced, and periodic painting and redecorating is eliminated.

The planks and blocks are available in 10 "companion colors" as well as four wood pattern finishes.

This prefinished paneling which comes in two forms, planks (left) and blocks (right), are installed easily and maintenance is very simple.

Drive-In Speaker Protection

A polyethylene film cover for the protection of drive-in speakers during winter months has been developed by Central States Paper and Bag Company.

The speaker covers can protect the speakers from the elements throughout the winter months, it is claimed, because of the unique properties of the plastic from which they are made. The film used in the fabrication of the covers is Visqueen, manufactured by the Visking Corporation.

Visqueen film is said to be tough, durable and will not become brittle in temperatures down to 60 degrees below zero. The covers fit snugly over the speaker and may easily be taped at the bottom, affording the utmost in protection from snow and sleet.

It is also advised that theatre operators who prefer to take their speakers indoors during the winter months may use the covers to protect them from dust and dampness.

The covers are available in two sizes—22 by 22 inches and 27 by 28 inches.

These plastic covers have been specially designed to protect drive-in speakers throughout the cold winter months when they are not in use.

Dryer Uses New Principle

A hand and face dryer making use of a new heating principle has been placed on the market by the Electronic Towel Corporation. Known as the "Steri-Dri" it features a patented "Heet Bin" which utilizes the GE calrod heat transmission principle. This new principle is said to provide instantaneous hot dry air electronically.

The unit is said to be ready for use simply by plugging into any convenient outlet, as heavy wiring is not necessary. It is claimed that the Heet Bin actually stores hot air, thus a heavy load is not put on one electrical system as in the case of heating coils.

Featuring a new heating principle, this hand and face dryer is said to instantly provide hot dry air. New system eliminates danger of fire.

Self Closing Waste Receptacle

A new self-closing waste receptacle is now being marketed by Solar-Sturges Manufacturing division, Pressed Steel Car Company, Inc.

Known as the Solar Jet this receptacle accepts waste from any point of approach, because the stainless steel top swings freely in any direction. With no weights, springs, or hinges used, the Solar Jet has only one moving part, the free-swinging top, it is claimed. The dome top swings inside of the outer shell, enabling the receptacle to operate even when placed against a wall, or in a corner.

The self-closing dome top is securely attached to a ball suspension joint located immediately beneath the point of balance. A one-piece outer shell has a white baked enamel finish, and is encircled by two reinforcing bands of highly polished stainless steel. The inner refuse container is heavily galvanized to help prevent rust and corrosion, according to the manufacturer. There are also stainless steel legs which afford sturdy support to both outer shell and inner container keeping them seven-eighths of an inch off the ground.

A useful new item for theatres is this self-closing waste receptacle that can receive waste products from any point of approach, it is said.

Equipped For Latest Projection And Sound Systems, The Jolly Roger Is A Ship-Shape Drive-In

THE Jolly Roger, the first and only drive-in theatre in the state of Michigan and one of the few in the entire country to be equipped with true stereophonic sound, opened recently.

This new, half-million-dollar, 1,500-car drive-in is located a short distance west of Detroit on Van Born Road, just a quarter of a mile west of busy U.S. 24. This is the center of several fast-growing communities, including Dearborn, Melvindale, and Allen Park.

Nicholas George Theatres, Inc., an independent circuit operating the down-river area of metropolitan Detroit, began the Jolly Roger late last spring, constructing it for the future as well as the present. All the new innovations have been embodied in its design. The curved screen tower, for example, was designed primarily for the presentation of all the new wide-screen projection processes. It measures 122 by 82 feet.

DRIVE-IN THEATRES

The projection booth is 540 feet from the screen tower, thus making it one of the longest projection throws in the country.

The screen tower consists of eight steel frames with 16 bases supported on anchor bolts embedded in 40 cubic yards of concrete. Such a structure will withstand a wind stress up to 180 miles per hour, it is claimed. More than 20 lineal miles of lumber were used in the construction of the tower. The screen tilts several degrees inward at the top to reflect the maximum of projected light on the 7,500 square feet of picture area.

The exterior of the tower is entirely covered by transite which gives it a marble stone effect. The entrance and exit canopies are attached to the tower. Two modernistically designed boxoffices, each with its own temperature-control heating panel, are located below the 82-foot entrance canopy. These boxoffices are strategically placed to admit six lanes of traffic. The exit canopy is 70-feet wide and permits quick movement of traffic. The West Construction Company, Flint, Mich., designed and built the drive-in screen tower.

Al Boudouris of Theatre Equipment Company, Toledo, O., engineered and installed the projection, sound and field equipment. This includes Century water-cooled projectors, Strong Super 135 projection-arc lamps. Strong 135-ampere selenium rectifiers, 4-inch diameter Kollmorgen objective lenses, and Bausch and Lomb large-diameter, anamorphic lenses to permit the showing of CinemaScope pictures to their best advantage at an aspect ratio of 2.55 to 1. A full 1,800 watts of undistorted audio power are available to the Eprad 3-unit dimensional, high-fidelity, stereophonic-sound speaker from the Century Amplifiers which were specially modified and engineered by Theatre Equipment Company. The sound equipment rack was also engineered and built by Theatre Equipment Company. Ease of switching from optical sound to stereophonic sound and the use of all three in-the-car speaker units make for superior sound, it is claimed.

The signs, pictorials, and lighting display were designed, manufactured and erected by Diskey Advertising Service, Marion, Indiana. The theatre name is formed in eight-foot-high, old-English, porcelain-enamel letters mounted atop the screen tower.

The letters have recessed faces and are lighted by multiple rows of lamps wired to high-speed flashers to give a scintillating effect. A huge pirate ship, complete with the Jolly Roger flag, is painted on

Seen here is the 95 by 34 foot attraction board with Wagner letters, frames, and glass installed.

The projection booth is fully equipped to handle all of the latest projection and sound techniques.

The Story Behind Development of Neviol Signs

THE STORY behind the conception and development of the Neviol sign, which has caused such a furore in the sign industry since its introduction in the United States a few months ago, is even more dramatic than the impact this entirely new type of sign has caused to date.

Conceived and perfected in Holland and patented in 48 countries by International Neviol, Ltd., Neviol signs combine the brilliance of neon with the versatility of plastic and, but recently, two companies were licensed for manufacture in the United States.

At present, Wagner Sign Service of Chicago, is manufacturing Neviol changeable copy sign letters while Artkraft Sign Co., Lima, Ohio, is making point-of-sale and outdoor display signs.

"Neviol" originated with Leo Meijer, and this Hollander is responsible for its development and perfection and its entirely new principle of using ultra violet or "black light" to rear-light a display.

Neviol originated in Holland just prior to the end of war at a time when the only light available in many Dutch homes came from a small oil lamp or from small four-volt lamps, current for which was obtained through the skillful tapping of German field telephone lines.

After the war, Meijer continued his work but the first Neviol signs were cumbersome affairs. The fluorescent black-light tube had not as yet been developed and the ultra violet light was obtained from a high-pressure mercury lamp in combination with a "choke" type of special transformer.

The sign itself was made by hand from copper wire covered with a luminescent material and lighted from the front, using a metal casing coated with a highly reflective material. While the effect was good, the luminescence was too weak to compete with surrounding light and the entire sign was too large to be practicable.

First improvement came with the development of the fluorescent black light tube which stepped up the efficiency of the lamps and provided a more even spreading of illumination. However, two important problems still remained—the durability of the luminescent powders and the intensity of the light they converted.

With true Dutch tenacity, Meijer tackled the problem of the luminescent materials first. With the aid of the laboratory of a prominent manufacturer, he succeeded in developing an entirely new luminescent powder that was weather-resistant and could be incorporated in almost every type of plastic, or impregnated in the sign face rather than just covering the surface of it.

Plastic Bags Protect Film

NEW YORK—Another service to the film industry was added this week by Circle Film Laboratories, when it inaugurated the use of special plastic heat sealed bags for the shipment of processed film to its clients. Specially designed for Circle by Vizofilm Manufacturing Corporation made of Dupont polyethylene, the containers are dust and moisture proof. This is said to insure that film will remain clean and that prolonged storage will not dry it out.

The final and logical step toward an entirely new type of illuminated sign—conversion into a rear-lighted display which combines the brilliance of neon with the versatility of plastic—followed.

As a result of Meijer's advanced thinking and determination, Europe—which first gave us the neon sign—has again made an outstanding contribution to advertising.

The advantages of Neviol signs over those that have been and are still being used, are according to the inventor and the two companies now manufacturing them, greater legibility, more distance visibility, uniformity of brilliance over the entire sign face, imperviousness to the elements and a wide range of extremely brilliant colors.

A Review of 1954 By TOA Research Committee

A YEAR AGO at this time the industry was greatly concerned whether third-dimension would prevail and if changes could be made to revive it. History now shows that presently third-dimension viewed by glasses is on the way out.

We also were greatly concerned about the requirement of stereophonic sound for the running of CinemaScope pictures. The committee had many discussions with the leading distributors in the industry and believe that through the combined efforts of the Research Committee, as well as the officers and Board of Directors, were able to clarify the problem at hand which eliminated the requirement of stereophonic sound for the showing of CinemaScope pictures. It is our belief that magnetic reproduction was a great step forward in bringing better sound to our audiences and we are grateful to the pioneers of this system. Yet we still believe each exhibitor should have the right of deciding on what equipment he should have in his theatre and this should not be dictated by the distributor.

Presently, any and all theatres can run CinemaScope pictures provided they have the proper optical system. Considerable pressure is still being brought on the film companies to release CinemaScope pictures in the standard ratio so that investment is not necessary for anamorphic lenses. This problem pertains mainly to small theatres and many drive-ins. It is our belief that it is not economically practical for an exchange to have prints on a picture with full magnetic CinemaScope, single track and optical CinemaScope, as well as the standard prints, which means an exchange would have to carry four different types of prints for such an attraction.

Lens manufacturers must take note that because of large screen projection more consideration should be given to what was in the past considered normal aberration tolerance. Corrections for astigmatism and chromatic and spherical aberrations can be made for present lenses at a nominal cost. This correction will aid considerably to help bring a good wide screen picture to all theatres in nearly any seat in the auditorium.

Many exhibitors have been experimenting with optical CinemaScope prints to find out if they can change the ratio of 2.35 to 1 in order to better fit the size screen they might have in their auditorium or drive-in. We believe nearly every theatre that does have a problem of screen size and is desirous of a 2 to 1 picture, or less, can properly accomplish this by changing aperture plates. Aperture plates of .715 by .715 will give you a 2 to 1 picture and actually has a larger light area than the standard aperture now used. This can produce a better light on the screen than you would have with even a smaller picture.

All of us in the industry continue to be enthused with the new developments that have the attention of all the production companies in Hollywood. During this past year new lenses for Hollywood's cameras have been developed that will give better and sharper pictures. Eastman, as well as other companies, has improved its film so that there will be more depth of focus in your future color pictures. VistaVision, developed by Paramount, which is available to all studios at no cost, again is an improvement that your public will recognize. MagnaScope, now being developed by Todd A-O, also will prove to be a technique to advance the science of motion pictures. Presently the MagnaScope Company is contemplating a few limited runs in most of the key centers but pictures made by this system can easily be reprinted for the general market.

We are sure that the future in the motion picture industry will be bright for all of us because the studios now realize that technical changes and improvements have to be made so that our industry will survive.

The highlight brightness is approximately five foot-lamberts on an embossed aluminized screen. The combined kinescopes and optical systems utilize the full bandwidth of the color television signal.

The experimental color system, which can also be used for theatre projection of black-and-white television pictures, is basically similar to RCA's monochrome theatre system, he said. However, whereas the latter utilizes a single optical system, the color projector employs three 26-inch Schmidt-type optical systems—one for each of the three primary colors, red, green, and blue. In addition, the color system requires a decoder, two additional video amplifiers, and increased scanning power.

The decoder is the heart of the theatre color TV system, Volkmann explained. It "extracts" the color information from the incoming video signal and combines it in proper proportion with the brightness information in the video signal to form the red, green, and blue signals. The red, green, and blue outputs drive the theatre system equipment's three television picture tubes.

Theatre Color TV System Developed

LOS ANGELES—Development of an RCA theatre color television system which projects large-screen television pictures in sizes up to 15 by 20 feet was described by J. E. Volkmann, engineer of the Radio Corporation of America, in a paper delivered before the meeting of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers, in the Ambassador Hotel.

The paper, entitled "Large Screen Color Television Projection," was prepared by L. L. Evans and R. V. Little, Jr., engineers at RCA's Camden, N. J., plant.

The theatre color-TV equipment, developed out of the research which led to development of the RCA compatible color television broadcast system, is already being used for demonstration and study purposes by the National Broadcasting Company at its Brooklyn, N. Y., color studio, Volkmann said.

The new system projects theatre-size color television pictures with good resolution and highlight brightness, he said.

Plywood In Theatres

and to use nothing but the best materials, carefully regarding directions as to mixing, thinning, and drying time for each coat.

Interesting textured effects can be obtained with stippling paints, either flat or gloss. This type of finish is easy to apply and covers minor imperfections. For cabinet doors or other surfaces which require frequent cleaning, washable paints or enamels are recommended. Here are the basic steps to follow when painting or enameling plywood:

1. Fill open surface areas with wood putty or dough. Sand lightly and dust clean. For additional smoothness, panel edges can be coated with surfacing putty or wood putty. Apply a thin layer and sand smooth when dry.

2. Brush on flat paint or enamel undercoat. Cover sides and edges. If you discover any unfilled surface blemishes, fill with spackle when coat is dry. Sand lightly and dust clean.

3. Apply second coat of undercoat. For high gloss enamel finish use undercoat mixed of equal parts flat undercoat and high gloss enamel. For semi-gloss or flat finish, use undercoat tinted to approximate shade of finish coat. Sand lightly when dry.

4. Apply final coat as it comes from can. This coat as well as preceding coats may be thinned slightly with turpentine or thinner to get better bushability.

A two-coat system consisting of prime and finish coats may also be used.

Textured surfaces may be obtained by priming as in Step 2 above, followed by a heavy coat of stippling paint. The paint coat may then be textured with a stipple brush, roller or sponge.

If water thinned paints are to be used, the plywood should first be sealed with a clear resin sealer, shellac or flat white paint to prevent grain raise. The paint should then be applied according to manufacturer's directions for a sealed surface. If slight grain raise is not objectionable, seal coat may be omitted.

Light stain glaze, bond, wax stain and dark stain finishes are also very effective on fir plywood. These all subdue the grain pattern of the wood and yet retain its natural warmth and character. Plywood should first be sealed with clear resin sealer before dark stain is applied.

Although it is not probable that this plan will catch on, Norman A. Bonneau, operator of the Parkway Drive-In, Bartlettboro, Vt., has built a motel nearby with picture windows and speakers enabling customers to view program from cabin.

This and That Around the Trade

The Raytone Screen Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., recently announced the appointment of Samuel N. Saiia, of Buffalo, N. Y., to its sales staff. Saiia has had eight years of experience selling intangibles, and was the New York State Industrial representative for several eastern paint corporations. He spent two years with an eastern screen company, and resigned to join Raytone . . .

. . . Filmack Trailer Company, Chicago, is providing exhibitors with a new brochure that shows merchants exactly what their Holiday ads and greetings will look like on the screen, according to an announcement from Irving Mack, president. This brochure shows no prices, and is aimed directly at the merchants, making the theatremen's selling job easier, according to the firm . . .

. . . Development of "noise-free" light bulbs for use in motion picture and television studios was revealed by the General Electric Lamp division. The noiseless incandescent lamps are expected to improve the audio portion of sound in theatres by eliminating the hum ordinarily found in the high wattage bulbs necessary for proper lighting effects in the studio . . .

Carl S. Hallauer, newly-elected president of the Bausch & Lomb Optical Company, Rochester, N. Y. Hallauer, who started his business career as a newsboy when he was orphaned at the age of nine, has been executive vice-president of Bausch & Lomb since 1952. He is also president of Bausch & Lomb, Ltd., of Canada, and Brazil, the firm's South American subsidiary.

. . . The Kollmorgen Optical Corporation, New York City, is offering a new catalog on the firm's line of projection lenses, and features the new high speed f/1.7 Super Snaplite lenses. The catalog also contains a handy screen chart for easy figuring of proper focal length lens for any installation . . .

. . . The Cine Revolucion Theatre, in Mexico, has ordered one of the largest wide screen installations on record from the Raytone Screen Corporation. The Raytone Hilux all-purpose screen will measure over 2,000 square feet, and after installation is completed, it is reported that the actual picture area will measure 29 by 72 feet . . .

. . . A special delegation of Altec Service Corporation representatives attended the recent convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors of Florida, at the Roosevelt Hotel, Jacksonville, Fla. Included were Marty Wolf, assistant sales manager from New York headquarters; M. G. Thomas, division manager from the Atlanta area; and Bruce Newborn, Atlanta branch manager . . .

. . . The firm of John and Drew Eberson, New York, was commissioned to design three theatres in Central America for Teatros De El Salvadore, S.A., according to Drew Eberson, noted architect. The theatres will be operated by a group headed by Louis Poma . . .

. . . A revised and up-to-date edition of the installation manual for CinemaScope was recently issued by the Research and Development division of 20th-Fox. The booklet contains an entire new section dealing with the demagnetization (de-gaussing) of magnetic stereophonic sound equipment . . .

. . . Altec Service Corporation is issuing a new two-color eight page booklet explaining its sound services.

New Sound System From Ampex

REDWOOD CITY, CAL.—A motion picture theatre sound system capable of reproducing CinemaScope magnetic stereophonic sound, single track magnetic sound, single track optical sound and Perspecta-Sound is now being marketed by the Ampex Corporation, it was reported.

In announcing the availability of the new combined optical-magnetic system, Jim Mahon, theatre equipment sales manager, said the price for a complete system, including all facilities for three-track CinemaScope sound, was about equal to the cost of simply replacing the aging single track optical sound systems still used in many theatres.

"For little more than what he spends in replacing worn-out optical sound equipment with modern high fidelity amplifiers and speakers, the theatre owner can now have facilities for playing every type sound track in existence," Mahon said. "The new Ampex optical-magnetic system replaces all sound equipment currently in the booth except the optical

As supplied by Ampex, unless specially ordered, the system does not include the integrator needed for Perspecta Sound. However, complete switching facilities for Perspecta are provided so that only the addition of the integrator is necessary, should the theatre owner wish to use that medium, it was said.

A single box mounted on the front wall of the projection booth provides facilities for selecting magnetic, optical, Perspecta or phonograph sound; for changeover between projectors, and for controlling sound volume.

the front of the tower in the center. The painting measures 45 feet high, 60 feet long, and is completely outlined and lighted with neon tubing. In addition tubing overlays, shaped into waves and connected to flashers, bring about the realistic effect of waves beating against the ship.

On the face of the entrance and exit canopies, which extend from both sides of the tower, are yellow porcelain-enamel facias. These consist of three rows of lamps. They have four-inch centers wired to high-speed chaser-flashers to give light action which flows out from the screen tower. The porcelain-enamel entrance and exit signs are lighted by neon tubing mounted on top the canopies.

The huge, two-sided attraction board in front of the screen tower has an overall length of 45 feet. The height is 34 feet and the flag pole supporting the Jolly

Roger flag is 60 feet. The changeable-letter section of the attraction board has six lines of letter space and is lighted from the inside by 784 feet of 24-millimeter, 4500 degree white tubing powered by 1500-volt, 120-milliamper lighting transformers. The Jolly Roger letters at the top of the attraction board are three feet six inches high with a neon outline. Three rows of lamps on high-speed chaser flashers border the glass panel. The base of the attraction board is enclosed by an eight-inch-thick, yellow-hued brick wall that provides a storage room for the letters. The frames, glass and letters for the changeable-copy display were furnished by Wagner Sign Service, Inc.

The refreshment stand building, which measures 80 by 70 feet is operated by the Michigan Confection Cabinet Corporation. Forbes, cabinet designer of Oak Park, Michigan, designed the equipment and planned the layout. The 80-foot main counter is divided into six separate serving units equipped with stainless steel. The theme of the Jolly Roger has been followed throughout in both color scheme and display. The counters have Formica covers of various shades of blue and yellow. The attractive, wood-paneled back wall is coral and blue.

In front of the 55-foot viewing window is a special, 26-foot, curved counter where candy, soft drinks, and buttered pop corn are sold. The floor of the concession area is of beautiful mosaic, glazed tile.

This same building also houses the projection booth and the rest rooms. The rest rooms are completely modern with glazed tile walls and floors.

The entire theatre area, all beautifully landscaped, is enclosed by an eight-foot-high, all-aluminum fence.

Altec-Lansing's Low Cost Sound System

NEW YORK—A new stereophonic sound system which provides complete amplification, changeover facilities, and all controls necessary for either three or four channel installation in one unit, was announced by the Altec Lansing Corporation.

Known as the Altec S-15, the system features simple switching which provides either magnetic equalization or optical equalization for use with Perspecta Sound. The S-15 is said to have sufficient power for theatres seating as many as 1200, and can be used with additional power amplifiers to provide an economical and compact system for larger theatres.

Installation of the new system is simple, and the unit is compact enough for mounting between machines or anywhere in the booth, either on the floor or attached to the wall. Since the entire system is said to be complete, connection of the input to "penthouse" reproducers, output to stage, auditorium and monitor speakers, and power supply to AC connection places the S-15 in immediate operating condition. To assure maximum quality, simple screwdriver adjustment for low and high frequency equalization are provided on each amplifier, according to the manufacturer.

Seen here are three views of the new Altec single unit stereophonic sound system.

The operating controls consist of: main power switch, fuse and pilot light; changeover switch; stereo and optical switch with indicator lamps; main gain control (Daven step type with three sections driven by common shaft); surround speaker gain control and monitor speaker selector.

Push button stations with indicator lights are provided for remote machine and system changeover. The top panel, containing all the controls, is slanted for good visibility. It is hinged for access to tubes and components. In addition, the amplifiers can be removed and replaced in three minutes, it is claimed. The power supply, common to all amplifiers, has a choke input filter for good regulation, with three parallel rectifier tubes providing a large safety factor and long life.

The S-15A system contains amplifiers for three channels only but is wired so the fourth surround channel may be added at any time. The S-15B is fully equipped for four channel stereo.

Fairchild Recording Company Makes Personnel Changes

WHITESTONE, N. Y.—Two personnel changes were announced by Ray F. Crews, executive vice-president of Fairchild Recording Equipment Company.

Frank G. Mullins, Jr., has joined the company as manager of Engineering and special counsel. Mullins was formerly with the Electronic division of Westinghouse Electric Corporation in Baltimore, Md., and holds an Electrical Engineering degree from the University of Alabama. In addition to graduate work at Carnegie Institute of Technology, he has a law degree from the University of Maryland and is a member of the Maryland Bar. His extensive background in development and design of both commercial and military equipment coupled with his past administrative direction of major projects in these fields will aid in the firm's expansion and development.

Robert J. Marshall has been promoted from chief engineer to head the recently established New Product Development group. Planned to coordinate the firm's expansion in new products, Marshall will be responsible for analyzing and making recommendations for a wide variety of new products under consideration for manufacture and sales. Marshall has had a varied background in both audio and motion picture work and holds a number of patents in these fields.

Every exhibitor in each of the areas named was invited to attend the meeting in his area. Wilhite; Tune, vice-president; Morris, TTOA representative to TOA; and George Gaughan, TOA field representative, attended each meeting. The meetings served as the launching point for an all out drive to prevent any additional tax burden being placed upon the Tennessee Theatre Owners during the 1955 session of the legislature. It has been recommended by the Legislative Council that an additional one percent gross tax would be helpful in meeting the state's tax needs. Also discussed was a report from the TOA convention, with a full explanation of the proposed exhibitor production finance company; methods to be adopted to secure some relief from oppressive film rentals; and other subjects of vital importance to Tennessee theatre owners. The agenda for each of the meetings included discussion on the threat of an increase in the state gross tax; opinion on government control of film rentals, etc.; exhibitor financing of production to increase number of pictures; a full explanation of TOA activities in this field; arbitration; and unification.

Stamps, Wometco maintenance department, reports from Will Rogers Memorial Hospital, Saranac Lake, New York, that he is feeling pretty good and spending most of his time painting, including copying Grandma Moses' Thanksgiving scenes. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Herman Silverman became the parents of their first child, a daughter. He is the Wometco chief booker.

The Ritz opened with CinemaScope. . . . George C. Hoover, chief barker, Variety Clubs International, and local resident, was elected regional vice-president, United Cerebral Palsy, at the national convention in Washington. He is president of United Cerebral Palsy of Florida.

Sidney Meyer, co-owner, Wometco Theatres and WTVJ, was unanimously elected president, Westview Country Club.

Tom Rayfield, manager, Carib, Miami Beach, Fla., recently obtained the co-operation of the Coca Cola Bottling Company for putting the above "Carmen Jones" banners on all of their trucks. The cost was absolutely nothing, and the exploitation certainly helped the 20th-Fox film at the Carib, Miami, and Miracle.

For "Carmen Jones," Sonny Shepherd, Wometco district manager, had a comprehensive campaign. He secured the cooperation of Arturo de Filippi, president, Miami Opera Guild, who contacted all of his opera patrons recommending that they see the picture. Caesar LaMonaca, conductor, Bayfront Park Concert Orchestra, played numbers from the picture, making the credit announcements before the opening in the Miami, Carib, and Miracle. John Bitter, director, University of Miami Symphony Orchestra, included numbers from the picture in a University concert. All art patrons in the area were contacted through a mailing list acquired from the opera group, the concert group, the symphony group, and the University of Miami. Contacts were made with the drama groups in various schools in greater Miami. Television publicity included special presentations showing "Carmen Jones" dances and pink evening wear with a tie-up with a leading department store. Special screenings were held for all disc jockeys and also invitations sent to them to attend the opening night. In return, credit was given to the playdates whenever they played "Carmen Jones" records. Tieups were set with department stores to feature special "Carmen Jones" colors in men's wear and ladies' clothes. All ushers at the three theatres were decked with pink carnations with a silk badge advertising "Carmen Jones." A large automobile paint dealer was contacted to create a "Carmen Jones" red special painted automobile during the run of the picture. More than 50 trucks of the Coca-Cola bottling company carried banners on the backs of their trucks advertising the picture, at absolutely no cost. Stills were placed in jewelry and drug and department stores for jewelry and cosmetic tieups. Patrons were invited to play for free their favorite "Carmen Jones" record at juke boxes in the lobbies. A "Carmen Jones" sundae was created for serving in a drug store chain.

North Carolina Durham

The Criterion, Durham, N. C., opened under new management and with entirely new personnel after having been remodeled, recarpeted, redecorated and equipped with a new wide-screen. L. C. ## South Carolina Charleston

The 1955 license bill just passed by City Council by unanimous vote cuts theatre license fees. Theatres, formerly taxed on the basis of one-half of one percent of gross receipts, will now be taxed on a seat basis with those of more than 1,000 seats paying $300, those of 400 to 1,000 seats paying $200, and those of less than 400 seats paying $100. This license fee, it was pointed out, will be more comparable to the scale employed in other cities of proportionate size.

Dallas

According to managers of six El Paso theatres, the motion picture projectionists' union is holding a 1924 city ordinance as a "club" over theatre operators. A spokesman for the managers, who appeared before City Council, charged that union members are receiving copies of city examinations for projectionists' licenses in advance, while non-union projectionists are not. The examinations are required under the 1924 ordinance and are given, it is charged by the managers, by a licensing board on which there are several union projectionists, including the Fire Marshal. The managers asked for repeal of the ordinance which they labeled "unnecessary and obsolete." They said that it is no longer needed to protect the safety of theatre patrons, the purpose for which it was originally passed. "The projection equipment of 1954 is absolutely fool proof," said the spokesman. If the ordinance is not repealed entirely, the managers asked that drive-ins be exempt. The managers continued, "We would prefer not to have City Council on the side of the union. It's the right of an American citizen to be union or non-union. If he dares to want to be non-union, he's out of business automatically under your ordinance." Mayor Hervey replied that "these are very serious charges. Members of the licensing board will be asked to appear before Council and give their side of it." The theatre managers who appeared were Fred Lindau, Valley; Sam Wade, Cowboy; James Ward, El Paso; Del Norte, Bordertown Theatres; and Bob Harris, Fiesta Drive-In.

Vera Ellen's tour of the southwest preceding the opening of "White Christmas" took her to Houston, Fort Worth, and Dallas. A helicopter took her to Fort Worth, and she returned to Dallas with Mayor R. L. Thornton to attend the annual Will Rogers Memorial luncheon.

The drive-in, a postwar innovation which pioneered such recreational stunts as playgrounds for the kiddies, car speakers, swimming between shows, and carload admissions, has added a new wrinkle here. For those movie fans whose fancy leans toward air travel, the Cinderella Drive-In is offering helicopter rides. For the present, the egg-beater-in-the-sky will cater to afternoon passengers only. Later, night flights may be arranged. Ed Greene, Cinderella, states that a good day averages 75 flights, mostly to women. The charge for this is $3.50 for about five minutes.

This coming attractions lobby display at the Interstate Theatres' Majestic, Dallas, on Paramount's "Rear Window" was made possible by the use of red brick background paper and stone wall background paper as furnished by Evans Printing and Poster Company, Dallas.

The Tex Drive-In has been purchased by Capri Theatres, Inc., which headquarters in Dallas, and the name will be changed to read The Capri Drive-In. Charles Donaldson will be the local manager. Remodeling will be done but the boxoffice will not be closed.

Surprise Party
Honors Pinanski

BOSTON—A luncheon honoring Samuel Pinanski for his many benefits to the industry was a strictly New England affair with about 100 intimate industry friends gathering to pay tribute to the president of American Theatres Corporation, who has won national recognition for his valued services and leadership. The luncheon was at the Hotel Statler on the day before Thanksgiving, with Nathan Yamins and Arthur H. Lockwood co-chairmen.

Lockwood, as toastmaster, introduced the speakers at the head table. First was Walter Brown, chief barker, Variety Club of New England, who told of the many effective war bond drives Pinanski had conducted during World War II when he threw his entire staff and office facilities into the effort. Martin J. Mullin, his former partner in M and P Theatres, also spoke.

Herman Levy, general counsel, TOA, came on from New Haven to tell of Pinanski's contribution to the industry. Edward S. Canter, treasurer, ATC was chosen to make the presentation address and to give Pinanski a beautiful wrist watch from the gathering. Canter said, "It has been my great fortune to be associated with Sam for many years. It will be 32 years next March when I first met him and I have never ceased to admire his enthusiasm, his basic optimism, his great foresight, and his eternal youthfulness. Many honors which he richly deserves have come to Sam over the years. Today, we, the representatives of the motion picture industry in New England, honor him for the great work he has done for our industry . . ."

Pinanski was recently appointed honorary chairman of the board of directors of TOA and subsequently was named chairman of the newly-founded Exhibitors Film and Financing Group, Inc. He also serves as co-chairman of the governing tribunal of COMPO, representing all facets of the industry. Perhaps his most prominent local appointment was made four years ago when he was chosen to be on the board of directors of the John Hancock Life Insurance Company.

At the finish of the testimonial luncheon, Lockwood asked that the following statement be issued to the New England industry at large, "Arthur Lockwood expressed his regret and apologized to the many friends of Samuel Pinanski who were not invited to the surprise testimonial luncheon. He explained that several months ago a group of friends were arranging a formal and elaborate testimonial dinner for Pinanski. When he heard of the plans, he immediately asked that they be stopped. After the recent TOA meeting in Chicago, a few close friends decided to arrange a private, unpublicized surprise luncheon to express their appreciation of the many wonderful things he has done for the industry. As word got around, it suddenly mushroomed with more than 100 persons attending. It was not intentional to omit anyone on behalf of Samuel Pinanski and co-chairman Nathan Yamins, we hoped those who were not formally invited will understand."

MPAA Speaker Raps Censorship

ALBANY — The Production Code and police laws, plus the sense of responsibility which the industry possesses and which individual Americans exercise in their selection of pictures to patronize or pass up, make censorship by states and municipalities unnecessary. This was the theme of a talk on "The Fine Line of Censorship," delivered by Mrs. Marjorie Dawson, member, MPAA public relations staff, and organizer of Children's Film Library, on an American Education Week program.

Mrs. Dawson told of her first experience with censorship in attending "The Scarlet Letter" at Montreal, and barraged censorship boards, their biases and inconsistencies, saying that states were lapping up the gravy from the very considerable revenue which film licensing produces.

Mrs. Dawson further reported recent Supreme Court decisions had weakened censorship bodies. The only valid grounds for censorship now are licentious, obscene, and indecent, all of which, Mrs. Dawson argued, could be effectively handled under city and state police statutes.

The speaker levelled her guns at the Boston board. Through the devious device of regulating Sunday entertainment, she said, it has clamped censorship on much of New England, despite the fact that Massachusetts voters overwhelmingly defeated a censorship referendum proposal some years ago. Mrs. Dawson also rapped the vagaries of Memphis censorship under aged Lloyd Binford, and asserted that many of his rulings probably could be overturned, but the cost of legal machinery to upset them was almost prohibitive.

The Production Code, administered by an industrious group of representative people, has proven so successful, she said, that "not a single state has adopted censorship since its inception." The major producing companies give the Code their strongest support, and pictures for "sensation seekers" are made by independents. Ninety-eight percent of the films shown are submitted to the Code for a seal. A majority of the larger circuits and theatres do not exhibit pictures which lack the Code seal.

NEWS OF THE *TerritoryPhiladelphia

Crosstown

Stars, directors, and producers of the industry will participate in the dedication of the Nickelodeon in Franklin Institute on Jan. 18, co-sponsored by the Institute and the Motion Picture Associates of Philadelphia. The MPA will also hold a $25-a-plate dinner that evening in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel honoring pioneers of the local movie industry. The proceeds of the dinner will go to the MPA's welfare committee, according to Sam Diamond, 20th-Fox branch manager and president of the group. William Goldman is general chairman of the MPA dinner committee, and also donor of the Nickelodeon, which he plans as "a shrine to the movie industry." The Franklin Institute Nickelodeon will be a replica of the turn-of-the-century movie houses, forerunners of today's giant film emporiums. It will feature showings of silent film classics with all proceeds of the Nickelodeon showings going to the Franklin Institute. Before the entrance to the Nickelodeon will be a wooden sidewalk, which will be replaced block by block by concrete. Embedded in the concrete will be distinguishing marks of motion picture and other celebrities who visit the shrine of the industry. Goldman is head, William Goldman Theatres; president, Gregory-Goldman Enterprises, a production company; and a distributor as president, the Williams Company. Highlights of the story of the Nickelodeon were shown on television via WPTZ-TV recently.

Jules Levey was in in the interest of Republic's "The She Wolf" and was taken on a whirlwind trip of the town's newspapers, radio, and TV stations by Irving Blumberg, SW publicist; Al Plough, manager, SW Stanton, where the film opens; and Norman Silverman, Republic branch manager. . . . Nelson Wax, formerly head, Boxoffice Attractions, has taken over the Globe from J. Wolfe.

The Ritz, St. Clair, Pa., and Ritz, New Holland, Pa., owned by Stanley Peters, have rejoined Allied Motion Pictures Theatre Service. James Carey's York, York, Pa., also rejoined.

Whitey Molitch, Highway Express Lines, was recuperating at home after another hospital siege. . . . Jack Weiss has reentered the distribution field, handling both live and film roadshow attractions. . . . Max Bronow, MGM booker, was doing okeh following a recent operation at the University Hospital.

Benny Glatz is now a booker at MGM, as well as handling the projection duties and censorship as heretofore. . . . Condolences are extended to Joseph Quin-

New Orders Issued In Melvin Fox Case

PHILADELPHIA — Several additional orders were made last week by U. S. District Court Judge John W. Lord, Jr., in connection with the pending major distributors' suit against Melvin J. Fox.

The defendants' motion for re-argument of defendants' motion to dismiss, of defendants' motion for production of documents, of plaintiffs' motion for production of documents, and of defendants' motion to strike affidavit of Arnold Nemiroff, were denied. Regarding the plaintiffs' objections to defendants' interrogatories, the plaintiffs will furnish defendant with information regarding specific returns where they consider there has been fraud in paying license fees to plaintiffs; together with information now in their possession as to what they consider the proper amounts which should have been stated and the source of that information. As to other interrogatories, the objections are sustained.

livan, Warners salesman, upon the death of his wife from a heart condition.

Her many friends will be sorry to hear that Mrs. John Golder was in Graduate Hospital for an eye operation.

Harvey Felt is on his way home from Labrador. After a brief stay, he and Mrs. Felt will leave for Seattle. . . . Mr. and Mrs. David E. Brodsky celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary.

. . . Bob Hanover, Byrd, was on the sick list.

Meyer Adleman is industry chairman of the annual Deborah Sanatorium and Hospital maintenance drive. Associate chairmen are Jack Beresin, Sam Diamond, Norman Silverman, and Dave Supowitz. Deborah is now in its 33rd year of free, non-sectarian service to the tuberculous poor, and the society has now begun to offer care and treatment to heart and cancer victims.

Ben Harris has just about completed repainting and renovating his American exchange. . . . Dave Rosen was in New York City negotiating for some additional English-made product to handle in the area. . . . Milt Young, Columbia exploiter, was busy with "Phffft," Goldman. . . . Max Miller, UA tub thumper, was back and spent a few days with his baby. . . . Harry Brillman, Screen Guild, made a trip out of town. . . . Jack and Joe Engel, Screen Guild, were enthused over having the next two Goldwyn reissues, "The Farmer's Daughter" and "Notorious." . . . Eddie Gabriel, Capital, celebrated his 39th year on the street. He says he now has a great line up of product, including Astor releases and some foreign films. . . . Leon Cohen has been busy with some interesting screenings at his Vine Street Screening Room, which is now fully equipped for CinemaScope, etc. . . . Mort Magill and Leonard Mintz expected to announce the acquisition of Film Row quarters for Buena Vista almost any day now. . . . ## Circuits Stanley-Warner

The holiday stage and screen show for kiddies given at the SW Mastbaum was presented as the spearhead of a concerted effort by Stanley Warner Theatres in the Philadelphia zone to recapture the child audiences. Ted Schanger, Stanley Warner zone manager, feels that such a program is vital not only to the present business, but to combat new competition vying for the attention of child patronage. More than 4,000 children attended. Ordinarily, the 4300-seat Mastbaum does not cater to child patronage, thus the success of the show indicates the potentialities of a well-balanced program designed directly to appeal to kiddies. The stage show featured Rex Trailer and his horse, from a local TV station, who did rope stunts, played the guitar, told stories and sang; a puppet show, a mechanical man, and other acts with kiddie appeal, personalities children had become acquainted with through the medium of television.

Delaware Wilmington

G. Park Weaver, projectionist, Ben Shindler's Ace, reports that Nov. 24 marked the 21st anniversary of the nation's oldest theatre club for children, the Young Timers of the Ace. Organized in 1933, it has a present membership, he said, of more than 1,400 boys and girls, and includes children whose parents were formerly members of the club. The Young Timers was founded in Dover, Del., in 1931, and a number of similar units followed in other parts of the nation after publication of trade paper accounts of the organization.

G. Earl Smith, city manager, Eskin Theatres, received injuries of the head, face, hands and legs when a trolley coach on which he was a passenger stopped suddenly and collided with an automobile. Following hospital treatment, Smith was back on the job, but under doctor's care. . . . Wilmington Dry Goods Company sponsored a free two-hour show for kiddies at H. S. Eskin's Queen, including the feature film, "A Christmas Carol," and a community sing with Santa, after which Santa made his headquarters at the WDG store, across the street from the theatre.

Elizabeth G. Sholly, Rialto, wife of Henry L. Sholly, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR correspondent, celebrates her birthday anniversary today (Dec. 8).

Delmar News Agency trucks carried cards 30x40 advertising 20th-Fox's "Desiree," Rialto, as part of that film's promotional campaign, which included expanded radio and newspaper coverage. In addition, Robelen's record store displayed a poster featuring the various recordings of "The Song From Desiree," also carrying theatre credit. . . . Lewis S. Black, manager, SW Warner, used larger newspaper ads for "Dr. Silkini's Asylum of Horrors" which was in for a midnight one-performance stand. . . . The SW Warner Ritz and SW Grand held extra matinees for the kiddies during the Thanksgiving holidays. . . . Edgar J. Doob, manager, Loew's Aldine, gave MGM's "The Last Time I Saw Paris" a big advertising sendoff.

Maryland Baltimore

Chairman Sydney R. Traub, Maryland Board of Motion Picture Censors addressed the annual Thanksgiving service at the Beth Jacob Brotherhood. He discussed the application of motion picture censorship at the local and national level. . . . The Westport has installed CinemaScope.

Funeral services were held for Carroll G. Bayne, Sr., business manager, IATSE Local 181. For the past 27 years he had been projectionist at the Stanley. His widow, two daughters, and a son survive.

Mrs. Lucille Williams, cashier, Met, has returned to duty, having recovered from recent surgery at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

This model recently attracted plenty of attention to American Films' Samuel Goldwyn reissues, "Dead End" and "The Westerner," SW Stanton, Philadelphia, as she gave out numbered invitations to see the film. If corresponding number was posted at the theatre, bearer got in free. Stunt was worked out by American's Benny Harris and Al Plough, Stanton manager.

... Electric in-car heaters have been installed at the Edmondson Drive-In. ... The Howard has installed new seating.

Maurice Hendricks, Hicks-Baker Theatres, and his brother, George Hendricks, Mayfair manager, are mourning the loss of their sister. ... Oscar B. Coblenz, Jr., owner, Alpha, is vacationing in Florida. ... I. M. Rappaport, Hippodrome and Town, was in New York on business.

The New, Reisterstown, Md., is now operated by the Durkee Circuit. It was formerly a part of the Garman Circuit. ... Meyer Leventhal, manager, Lord Baltimore, was visiting in Washington. ... Dick Dizon, Town manager, promoted and gave away an automatic rotisserie as part of his campaign in advance of "Phffft." ... Bill Meyers, owner, DeLuxe, was in Pocomoke City, Md., on business.

Georgetown

Kenneth Holson has been named manager, Ayres, succeeding Merritt F. Smith, recently deceased. Holson had been with the Ayres circuit of theatres from 1942 to 1951, when he left to enter the Army. After completing his service, he became manager of their Miami Beach, Fla., theatre and last winter was manager, Paramount, Palm Beach, Fla.

Hagerstown

Nat Glasser, formerly district manager, Warners, paid a visit. He is now living retired in Washington. ... Concluding outdoor church service was held at Red Run Drive-In, near Waynesboro, Pa. ... 1,300 children packed the Tivoli, Frederick, Md., on a recent kids day. A parade preceded free movies. ... SW Colonial, Claude Poole, manager, recently inaugurated CinemaScope.

Leonardtown

Nat A. Hodgdon, who managed the 235 Drive-In, California, Md., is now at the Plaza, Lexington Park, Md., for the winter. ... Billy Anoson, assistant manager, Park and Plaza, Lexington Park, Md., visited the University of Maryland and attended a football game there.

Some of the 4,000 kiddies and adults who attended the holiday kiddie stage and screen show at the SW Mastbaum, Philadelphia, recently, are seen above. Presented in connection with TV station WPTZ, the show featured in person Rex Trailer and his horse, Chuckwagon Pete, Bertie the Bunyip, and Mr. Rivets. The screen attraction was Walt Disney's featurette, "Stormy, The Thoroughbred."

Pennsylvania Allentown

CinemaScope is being installed at Sol Shockor's Franklin. Other renovations are also being made as the theatre is being readied for the holiday season. ... Preparations have also been made at Fabian's Rialto for CinemaScope to be installed. There is a 32 foot screen, Earl Arnold, manager, states.

Harry Albert, Boulevard Drive-In manager, is relief man at Fabian's Colonial and Rialto during the winter until March when the drive-in season resumes its full weekly schedule. At that time Bill Irwin will resume the relief stint. ... Local theatres have sent in their Will Rogers Salute funds for the tuberculosis sanatorium at Saranac Lake, N. Y.

Good response is noted to the sale of Variety Club booklets in the charity campaign with awards valued at $10,000 for the benefit of the Variety Club's camp for handicapped children. ... Lou R. Golding, general manager, Fabian, was a visitor at the Rialto and Colonial. ... Charles Golding, auditor for Fabian, spent two days with the Colonial, Rialto, and Boulevard Drive-In.

Lions Club of Allentown's annual Santa Claus benefit tickets are in effect at the Colonial and Rialto for a two-week period. This annual benefit nets the club funds for a Christmas welfare project.

—M. S.

Lewistown

Harold Cohen, owner, Center, formerly the Temple, which reopened recently deserves credit for a great exploitation job. He had Miss Pennsylvania present in person, bands, etc. He also operates the Embassy; and there are now four first-run houses in Lewistown, with building moving toward the Center, which has parking space for 600 cars. Allied Motion Picture Service, Philadelphia, is doing the buying and booking. Among those present at the opening were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Samuelson, AMPS; Tom Noble, Warners salesman; Bill Doyle, UA salesman; H. Bache,

A PLACE FOR LAWYERS . . . AND EVERY LAWYER IN HIS PLACE

DID YOU EVER STOP to think that it is quite possible that this business started to get fouled up when the lawyers, and the legal aspects of everything, started to become a first consideration, instead of being only secondary to the objectives of honorable negotiations.

Walk into a film exchange today and ask for a clearance change and you will be told to submit it in writing so it can be sent to New York "for clearance with the Legal Department."

Try to arrange a product split, try to negotiate a bid, or try to settle a difference of opinion, and even before you can discuss the matter and reason its values with the local exchange manager who is locally informed, the bugaboo of that "faceless" legal staff whom you will never meet is planted firmly athwart the effort. Even some theatremen, arguing for prices, dates, clearances, and other points that are a normal businessman's duty, think nothing of threatening legal steps or sending lawyer's letters, rather than using honesty, fairness and their knowledge of their business to gain consideration.

So, as a result of laws and lawyers, our industry is becoming an armed camp of tempest and strife, threat and counter threat, blackjack and club, instead of a normal business where normal businessmen, respecting and respected, negotiate their business deals; business deals that are only submitted to lawyers if later difficulties arise; business deals that start with the promise that businessmen are capable executives who know right from wrong and are qualified to run their businesses; and not business deals that must have legal fences built on either side of the road before two businessmen can take a walk together.

Fortunately, in this business we have an Al Lichtman who recently advocated, "Let's talk things over." Al is no Johnny-come-lately among film distribution. He goes way back to the days of "Queen Elizabeth," through Realart, Paramount, UA, MGM, and now 20th Century-Fox. He is as hard bitten and tough as any distributor alive. But he has the experience and the wisdom to know that this crazy business can't be reduced to textbooks and charts, or to law books and courts, without destroying the unorthodox, the showmanship, and the gamble that made it great.

Picking up Al's "Let's talk things over!", we would like to suggest that we leave the lawyers at home. Let's stop worrying about the lawyers or what the lawyers will say. Let's talk over our mutual problems and reach our decisions as honest and honorable businessmen. We can have no fears if we have no intent to do wrong. And after we have reached our decisions, if our hearts and hands are clean, and only then, let the lawyers see what we've done.

STATURE OF A MAN

WE RECENTLY HAD OCCASION to note the intimate details of an employment switch in distribution, through which a capable sales executive left a company with which he had been connected for many years and joined another. With children to educate and all of the usual responsibilities, we watched him writhe and stew over his decision with probably much more fear and trepidation than any theatremen ever showed in acquiring the biggest theatre. More than dollars were on the line. Reputation, future, and industry standing were in the balance.

And the key man in much of this thinking was his "boss" at the home office.

Theirs had been the usual disagreements and hassles. Yet, through the years, there had apparently built up a respect and an admiration that neither appreciated.

So, to Bernie Kranze, the "boss" who doesn't know that we, or anyone else, knows, goes a doff of the hat for the human way in which he treated a fellow man. Nice work, Bernie! You not only made one loyal friend, but you made another glad to be one.

By Mel Konecoff

CHARLES REAGAN, in his debut press conference since taking over as general sales manager at MGM, came forth with some fine plans for the new year which are expected to do quite a bit to assist exhibitors in selling tickets and bringing in audiences. The salute to exhibitors is bolstered by earthy campaigns, seasoned with imagination and garnished with experience. MGM started the ball rolling in the right direction with its "Ticket-Selling Workshops" and is winding up in the winning column with its confidence in the future via its campaign on behalf of exhibitors and company product. 1955 might indeed be "a great movie year," in the words of Reagan. Let's sell 'em and see.

OPEN NOTE TO ED SULLIVAN: Dear Ed, can we borrow your crystal ball for a short period? It could be of tremendous help in this biz. It did wonders for you when on Dec. 9 you stated, "No Business Like Show Business" (is) a hit on national movie screens," and it wasn't playing anywhere. The world premiere isn't scheduled until tomorrow (Dec. 16) at the Roxy, but national grosses are way up there, aren't they?

Mind you, we think you'll be right about the statement.

Best wishes, M.K.

MAIL: Dear Mel, The luncheon I had with you and the boys was most enjoyable. Thanks for everything and I hope to see you on my next trip—probably shortly after the first of the year.

Kindest regards, Dick Powell.

Dear Richard, It was our pleasure and

McGee Asks Studios To Develop New Stars

SIoux FALLS, S. D.—Pat McGee, IOA vice-president, addressing the South Dakota Exhibitors Association, called the studios' lack of "a program for developing new personalities," one of the contributing factors in the present product shortage. Asserting that the companies "wait for someone else to take the chance," McGee stated that there are dozens of youngsters in California who could be developed into stars.

The speaker deplored the fact that "there are no replacements being produced for kiddie shows now on the market." McGee maintained that "producers could make worthwhile kiddie programs on which they could at least break even; if they can be made for television why can't they be made for this special purpose?"
